THE NORSE TRADITION

Discovery of the North American continent by Norse, or Northermen, from Greenland and Iceland rests on unverified sagas. Five voyages around 1000 A.D. are described, principal one being that of Leif Ericsson, who left Greenland with 35 men. A land of grapes was called Vinland by Leif. Attempts have been made to identify Labrador, Nova Scotia and Martha's Vineyard as Norse landing places. The Old Stone Tower in Newport, R.I., is sometimes attributed to Norse origin, but remains a subject of conjecture.

A careful examination of claims and inscriptions was made in 1950 by Johannes Brondsted, director, Danish National Museum, Copenhagen, Denmark, and published in the Annual Report of the Smithsonian Institution, 1953. Brondsted concluded that so-called inscriptions on rocks on the eastern seaboard were Indian pictographs or the result of weathering. Seventeen rusted objects dug up in Ontario and Minnesota impressed him as possibly of medieval origin, but he had doubts about when they were put into the ground. After studying the Newport stone tower he thought it might be an English watchtower or beacon of about 1640.

Strong claims have been made for the Kensington stone, found in 1898 in Minnesota. It has a runic description alleging that 8 Goths and 22 Norwegians from Vinland were there in 1362 A.D. Brondsted cited discrepancies in the runic text and concluded: "The philological opposition to its authenticity too strong. Useless." The assertion that Scandinavian mooring stones exist in Minnesota likewise does not convince him that Northermen crossed half the continent to leave a record in Minnesota. Other authorities have different interpretations.

Map of 1424—A map of 1424, drawn by a Venetian and showing 4 islands in the Atlantic Ocean named Antilia (Antilles) was published for the first time in 1954 in The Nautical Chart of 1424 by Armando Cortesao of the Univ. of Coimbra, Portugal. The chart was found in the manuscript collection of Sir Thomas Phillipps (1792-1872).

VOYAGES OF COLUMBUS

Columbus was born in Genoa, Italy; sailed for Spain.

1492—First voyage. Left Palos, Spain, Aug. 3 with 88 men (est.). Discovered San Salvador (Guanahani or Watling Isl., Bahamas) Oct. 12. Also Cuba, Hispaniola (San Domingo); built Fort La Navidad on latter.

1493—Second voyage, first part, Sept. 25, with 17 ships, 1,500 men. Dominica (Lesser Antilles) Nov. 3; Guadalupe, Montserrat, Antigua, San Martin, Santa Cruz, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islds. Settled Isabella on San Domingo. Second part (Columbus having remained in Western Hemisphere), Jamaica, Isle of Pines, La Mona Isl.

1498—Third voyage, 6 ships. Trinidad, Isla Santa off South America, Gulf of Paria (Orinoco).

1500—Fourth voyage, 4 caravels, 150 men. St. Lucia, Guayana off Honduras; Capa Gracias a Dios, Honduras; San Juan R. and Laguna de Chiriqui, Costa Rica; Veragua, Puerto Bello, Almirante (Isthmus of Panama).

*1840—President Harrison died a month after his inauguration on April 4, 1841, and Vice President John Tyler became President.

1848—President Taylor died in office on July 9, 1850, and was succeeded by Vice President Millard Fillmore.

1864—President Lincoln was shot April 14, 1865 at Ford's Theatre, Washington, by actor J. Wilkes Booth, and died April 15, whereupon Vice President Andrew Johnson became President.

1876—Florida, Louisiana, Oregon and South Carolina election returns were disputed. A board of Commissioners, referred to as The Electoral Commission, was created by act of Congress (approved Jan. 29, 1877) for the purpose of deciding disputed cases in the 1876 presidential election. It was in session from Feb. 1 to March 2, 1877 and its decisions resulted in the seating of Hayes, the Republican party lines—8 Republicans and 7 Democrats. Congress, in joint session (March 2, 1877) declared Hayes Tilden. The Senate was Republican. The House, which was Democratic, resolved and declared as a separate body (March 3) that Tilden and Hendricks were elected on the face of the returns.

1880—President Garfield was shot July 2, 1881, at Washington, D. C., by Charles J. Guiteau of New York and died Sept. 19, whereupon Vice President Chester A. Arthur became President.

1888—On the result of the popular vote Cleveland had more votes than Harrison but the 233 electoral votes cast for Harrison against the 168 for Cleveland elected Harrison President.

1900—President McKinley was shot, Sept. 6, 1901, at the Pan American Exposition, Buffalo, N. Y. He died on Sept. 14, and Vice President Theodore Roosevelt became President. The assassin, Leon Czolgosz, was executed Oct. 29, 1901.

1920—President Harding died at San Francisco, Calif., Aug. 2, 1923, and was succeeded by Vice President Calvin Coolidge.

1944—President Roosevelt died at Warm Springs, Ga., on April 12, 1945, whereupon Vice President Harry S. Truman became President.

Thomas Nast, famous American cartoonist (1840-1902), was responsible for the two popular symbols of the major political parties—the Republican elephant and the Democratic donkey. He published the elephant first in Harper's Weekly, Nov. 7, 1874. The donkey appeared in a cartoon of Jan. 15, 1870, entitled "A Live Jackass Kicking a Dead Lion," in which he represented the Democratic press attacking Edwin M. Stanton after his death.

*The 39 electoral votes of Alabama (11), Louisiana (10), Mississippi (9), South Carolina (8) and Tennessee (1), in 1948 were cast for the States' Rights Democratic candidates, James Strom Thurmond (S. C.), for president and Fielding L. Wright (Miss.) for vice president.

The Constitution, Article 2, Section 1 (consult index), provides for the appointment of electors, the counting of the electoral ballots and the procedure in the event of a tie.

Impeachments in United States History

Source: Official Government Records

Under the Constitution, the President, Vice President, and all civil officers of the United States are liable to impeachment for "treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors," and, on conviction, shall be removed from office.

Only the House of Representatives may impeach, and only the Senate can try the accused. A two-thirds vote is needed to convict. The convicted official may be removed from office and disqualified from holding any office of honor, trust or profit of the United States. The record:

(1) William Blount, one of the first Senators from Tennessee, was charged with treason and sedition in having plotted to aid Great Britain in wresting Florida and the Louisiana territory from Spain. The Senate, 25 to 1, expelled Blount, July 8, 1797. The House, Dec. 4, 1797, impeached him, and the impeachment trial began Dec. 17, 1798. His counsel said the Senate had lost jurisdiction when it expelled Blount. The Senate agreed to that view of the case, and dismissed the impeachment.

(2) John Pickens, Judge of the District Court for New Hampshire; impeached 1803 for drunkenness and disregard of the terms of the statutes; voted guilty, 19 to 7, removed from office.

(3) Samuel Chase, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States; impeached 1804 for misconduct at trials of persons charged with breach of the Sedition Law; trial Nov. 30, 1804, to March 1, 1805; verdict acquittal.

(4) James Peck, Judge of the District Court for Missouri; impeached for tyrannous treatment of counsel, 1830; tried April 26, 1830, to Jan. 31, 1831; vote, 21 guilty, 22 not guilty, verdict acquittal.

(5) West H. Humphreys, Judge of the District Court for Tennessee, impeached 1862 for supporting the secession movement and unlawfully acting as Judge of the Confederate District Court; voted guilty, removed from office.

(6) Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, impeached for usurpation of the law, corrupt use of the veto power, interference at elections and high crimes and misdemeanors; trial, Feb. 25 to May 26, 1868; vote, guilty, 35, not guilty, 19; verdict, acquittal.

(7) William W. Belknap, Secretary of War, impeached for accepting bribes; trial, March 3 to Aug. 1, 1876; verdict, acquittal.

(8) Charles Swayne, Judge of the District Court for the Northern District of Florida; impeached 1905 for misconduct in office; trial Dec. 14, 1904 to Feb. 27, 1905; acquitted.

(9) Robert W. Archbald, Associate Judge of the Commerce Court, was impeached July 11, 1912, charged with corrupt collusion with coal mine owners and railroad officials. Tried, July 13, 1912, Jan. 13, 1913. Verdict guilty, removed from office.

(10) George W. English, U. S. District Judge, Eastern District, Ill. The House, April 1, 1926, voted his impeachment. He resigned.

(11) Harold Louderback, U. S. District Judge, at San Francisco, was impeached Feb. 27, 1933. It was charged that he had profited pecuniarily by the appointment of receivers and had shown favoritism. The Senate, on May 24, 1933, voted on the indictment, and he was acquitted.

(12) Halsted L. Ritter, U. S. District Judge in Southern District of Florida, was impeached Mar. 2, 1936, on charges of unethical transactions relating to fees. He was acquitted on 6 counts, voted guilty on one, 56 to 28 and removed from office, but not disqualified from holding further office.

Representative-at-Large Defined

The term Representative-at-Large is applied to a Representative in Congress selected by the voters of the entire State instead of by the voters of a specific district within a State. Representatives-at-large are selected in this manner when the State fails to re-district after an apportionment of Representatives following a decennial census.

Internal Security Act, as Amended

Originally known as the McCarran Act, passed by Congress over the President's veto Sept. 23, 1950; amended Mar., 1951, June, 1952, and Aug., 1954. Part I, the Subversive Activities Control Act, (1) classifies Communist organizations; (2) creates the Subversive Activities Control Board to identify such organizations; (3) makes it unlawful to conspire to establish a totalitarian dictatorship; to transmit secrets to a foreign agent without authority, if a Government employee, or to obtain such secrets unauthorized, if a foreign agent; (4) broadens espionage and sabotage laws, extends the time limit for prosecution under those laws, and (5) requires all trained in espionage and sabotage by a foreign government to register with the Attorney General.

A Communist-action organization is defined as one (1) substantially directed, dominated or controlled by the government or organization controlling the world Communist movement, and (2) operating to advance this movement. A Communist-front organization is (1) directed, dominated or controlled by a Communist-action organization or (2) operated to give aid to such organization, government, or movement. A Communist-infiltrated organization is one which is (1) directed, dominated, or controlled by individuals who within three years have given active aid to any Communist-action organization, a Communist foreign government, or the world Communist movement, and (2) within three years has served as a means for giving aid to any such organization, government or movement or for impairing the military or industrial strength of the United States, except that any labor organization affiliated with any anti-Communist national labor federation is presumed not to be Communist-infiltrated.

Registration with the Attorney General is required of Communist-action organizations and their members, and Communist-front organizations and their officers. These organizations must file periodic financial statements and identify their literature, radio and television programs. Contributions to such organizations may not be deducted from income tax. Members of those organizations may not hold nonelective Government office or employment; hold office in or work for a labor organization; or represent an employer before the National Labor Relations Board. It is unlawful to conceal membership in such organizations when seeking Government employment; to contribute to such organizations, if a Government employee; or to work in a defense facility or use a United States passport, if a Communist.

A Communist-infiltrated organization is deprived of rights conferred by the National Labor Relations Act, as amended, upon labor organizations and employers. Members of a Communist-infiltrated labor organization may obtain an election to select a new representative for collective bargaining purposes.

Supplemental provisions of the Communist Control Act of 1954, approved Aug. 24, 1954, declare (1) the Communist Party of the United States to be an instrumentality for the overthrow of the Government, and (2) members of that party, or any other organization for the overthrow of the Government, having knowledge of its purposes, to be members of a Communist-action organization subject to the Subversive Activities Control Act. That party, and any such organization, also are deprived of all rights, privileges, and immunities conferred by law upon legal bodies.

Part II, Emergency Detention Act, stipulates that the President may proclaim an internal security emergency in the event of invasion of U. S. territory or its possessions, declaration of war by Congress, or insurrection in the U. S. in aid of a foreign enemy. Those suspected of conspiracy for espionage or sabotage may be detained, subject to a hearing, a review by a bipartisan Detention Review Board, and access to the courts. The act does not suspend writs of habeas corpus, and persons arrested under it will not be confined with criminals or required to do forced labor.

Method of Congressional Apportionment

The number of representatives of each state in Congress is determined by the population of the state, every state being entitled to at least one representative. A representative must be a resident of the state from which he is chosen, must be at least 25 years of age and have been a citizen for at least 7 years. Adjustments are made when the decennial census of the United States indicates population changes.

A law that became effective Nov. 15, 1941, directed that all apportionment of representatives in Congress should be made by the method of equal proportions. This method sets up the following criterion of a good apportionment. Suppose an actual apportionment bill, allotting any given number of seats (say 435) among the several states, is before Congress for consideration; and suppose an attempt is made to improve the bill by transferring a seat from one state to some other state. Such proposed transfer of a seat from one state to another state should be made if, and only if, the percentage difference between the congressional districts in these two states would be reduced by the transfer.

Qualifications for Voting by States

A voter must be at least 21 years of age (18 in Georgia), a citizen; not a convict; able to read or write; must be registered. In some states paupers are ineligible.

Law on Succession to the Presidency

Approved July 18, 1947

If by reason of death, resignation, removal from office, inability, or failure to qualify there is neither a President nor Vice President to discharge the powers and duties of the office of President, then the Speaker of the House of Representatives shall, upon his resignation as Speaker and as Representative, act as President. The same rule shall apply in the case of the death, resignation, removal from office, or inability of an individual acting as President.

If, at the time when a Speaker is to begin the discharge of the powers and duties of the office of President there is no Speaker, or the Speaker fails to qualify as Acting President, then the President pro tempore of the Senate, upon his resignation as President pro tempore and as Senator, shall act as President.

An individual acting as President shall continue to act until the expiration of the then current Presidential term, except that (1) if his discharge of the powers and duties of the office is founded in whole or in part in the failure of both the President-elect and the Vice President-elect to qualify, then he shall act only until a President or Vice President qualifies, and (2) if his discharge of the powers and duties of the office is founded in whole or in part on the inability of the President or Vice President, then he shall act only until the removal of the disability of one of such individuals.

If, by reason of death, resignation, removal from office, or failure to qualify, there is no President pro tempore to act as President, then the officer of the United States who is highest on the following list, and who is not under disability to discharge the powers and duties of President, shall act as President: Secretary of State, Secretary of the Treasury, Secretary of Defense, Attorney General, Postmaster General, Secretary of the Interior, Secretary of Agriculture, Secretary of Commerce, Secretary of Labor.

Major National Convention Cities 1856-1956

Independence Hall and the Liberty Bell

Independence Hall is the central and main building of a group in Philadelphia, located in Independence Square and facing Chestnut St. It is connected by arcades with two 2-story buildings, the East and West Wings, and two separate corner buildings. Of the latter Congress Hall is at Sixth St., and Old City Hall at Fifth St.

Independence Hall originally was the State House. It was begun in 1732 and completed in 1759. The East and West Wings were intended to house offices. Tower and spire were completed by June 1753.

The Pennsylvania Assembly occupied Assembly Hall in 1736, when the whole structure was far from completed. In 1775 it gave up the room to the Continental Congress. Here, in 1776, the Declaration of Independence was adopted. Here, in 1787, the Constitutional Convention drew up the Constitution of the United States.

Congress Hall, at the west end of the group, was erected in 1787 and was the seat of the United States Congress from 1790 to 1800, when the Congress moved to Washington, D. C. The Court House, or Old City Hall, at the east end, was built in 1790 for the municipal courts, and was the first seat of the United States Supreme Court.

Little attention was paid to the building as a national treasure until the Marquis de la Fayette arrived as the guest of the United States in 1824. The Assembly Room was then formally called the Hall of Independence. It was redecorated, the windows receiving scarlet and blue drapes studded with stars. Portraits of presidents and heroes were placed around the walls. The steeple, which had been removed in 1781, was reerected. The name Independence Hall was officially bestowed on the building in 1852. On July 4, 1876, it was opened as a national museum. The buildings were designated a national shrine in 1943. Independence Square was made a national park in 1948.

In 1955 the General Federation of Women's Clubs took over the restoration of the famous Assembly Hall to the state it was in when the Continental Congress met. Although most of the furniture has been lost, the records give a clear indication of how Windsor chairs, tables with candles and venetian blinds were used. A silver inkstand made in 1752 by a Philadelphia silversmith is believed to have served the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Casting of the Bell

A new Province bell was ordered from and cast by Thomas Lister of Whitechapel, London, to celebrate the 50th year of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The bell arrived in Philadelphia, Aug., 1752, and cracked during its testing. It was recast twice by Pass and Stow, two Philadelphia workmen, who placed it in position in the State House in June 1753; the State House was completed six years later. The bell bears the inscription from Leviticus, XXV, 10: "Proclaim Liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof."

The recast Province bell, later known as the Liberty Bell, was hung on trusses in the State House yard (now called Independence Square) to try out its sound before raising it to the tower. Early in September "it was cracked by a stroke of the clapper during a test without any other violence."

In the recasting the English model was broken up and the same metal was used with the addition of an ounce and one-half of American copper to a pound of the old bell metal to reduce the brittleness of the bell. The same form and lettering were preserved with the substitution of the names of the founders, the place and the years of recasting.

The third casting of the bell with the original metal proved satisfactory and it is the relic that the visitor views today. The bell was hung this time permanently, in a steeple of the State House (Independence Hall) where it remained until the steeple was taken down, July 16, 1781, and the bell was lowered into the brick tower, where it remained until 1846. At this date it was placed on public exhibition as a relic in the Declaration Chamber in Independence Hall. It remained there until 1876 when it was placed on its old walnut frame in the tower hallway, remaining there until 1877 when it was hung from the ceiling of the clere story of the tower by a chain of 13 links. It was returned again to the Declaration Chamber and was placed in a glass case the following year, and in 1896 was taken back to the tower hall. In 1915 the case was removed so that the public might have the opportunity to touch it.

Circumference around the lip, 12 feet.

Circumference around the crown, 7 ft. 6 in.

Lip to the crown, 3 feet.

Height over the crown, 2 ft. 3 in.

Thickness at lip, 3 inches.

Thickness at crown, 1¼ inches.

Weight, 2080 pounds.

Length of clapper, 3 ft. 2 in.

Cost, £60 14s 5d.

The bell—always brittle—cracked in 1835 when it tolled at the funeral procession of Chief Justice John Marshall of the United States Supreme Court.

Travels and Exhibitions

The bell has been removed from Independence Hall on the following occasions:

Sept. 18, 1777—When the British Army was about to occupy the City of Philadelphia. The bell was removed from the State House for its preservation. It was conveyed with the heavy baggage of the American Army in a supply train of 700 wagons guarded by 200 North Carolina and Virginia cavalry mounted troops, to Allentown, Pa., where it was hidden in Zion's Church until June 27, 1778, when it was returned to Philadelphia and rehung in the tower of Independence Hall.

Jan. 23, 1885—Philadelphia to New Orleans, La., World's Industrial and Cotton Exposition.

July 25, 1893—Philadelphia to Chicago, Ill., World's Columbian Exposition.

Oct. 24, 1895—Philadelphia to Atlanta, Ga., Cotton States and Atlanta Exposition.

Jan. 6, 1902—Philadelphia to Charleston, S. C., Interstate and West Indian Exposition.

1904—Philadelphia to St. Louis, Mo., Louisiana Purchase Exposition.

Oct. 23, 1913—Philadelphia Historical Street Parade, Founder's Week celebration.

July 4, 1915—Philadelphia to San Francisco, Calif.; Panama-Pacific Exposition.

Oct. 10, 1917—Philadelphia Street Parade, First Liberty Loan Day.

Broadcasts

D-Day—June 6, 1944—The bell was tapped with a rubber mallet on two broadcasts by Mayor Bernard Samuel. The first broadcast was at 7 to 7:15 a.m. The program started at another point but the mayor spoke from Independence Hall at about 7:12 a.m. As the program ended the mayor tapped the bell, once for each letter in the word Independence.

The second broadcast was carried at 7:15 till 7:30 a.m. During this broadcast the bell was again tapped by Mayor Samuel seven times, once for each letter in the word Liberty.

The Monroe Doctrine

President James Monroe on Dec. 2, 1823, announced "as a principle in which the rights and interests of the United States are involved, that the American continents, by the free and independent condition which they have assumed and maintain, are henceforth not to be considered as subjects for future colonization by any European powers." Monroe explained that if any European power tried to interfere with the American governments, the United States would consider it an unfriendly act, "dangerous to our peace and safety." He also pointed out that Spain could never subdue the new governments.

The immediate provocation for the message was the proposal in Europe to overthrow new democratic governments erected from former colonies of Spain. The Holy Alliance of Austria, Russia and Prussia, supported by France, undertook "to put an end to the system of representative government." Monroe published his doctrine after consultation with his cabinet, which included John Quincy Adams, secretary of state, John C. Calhoun and William Wirt, and with Thomas Jefferson. The British foreign secretary, George Canning, also had urged such a statement. The Monroe administration also in 1823 denounced a ukase by the Russian emperor prohibiting citizens of other nations from navigating and fishing within 100 miles of the Northwest coast of North America, from Behring Straits to Lat. N. 51. The American reply declared "the American continents are no longer subjects for any new colonial establishments."

Origin of the Constitution

The War of Independence was conducted by delegates from the original 13 states, called the Congress of the United States of America and generally known as the Continental Congress. In 1778 the Congress submitted to the legislatures of the states the Articles of Confederation and Perpetual Union, which were ratified by New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, and finally, in 1781, by Maryland.

The first article of the instrument read: "The stile of this confederacy shall be the United States of America." This did not signify a sovereign nation, because the states delegated only those powers they could not handle individually, such as power to wage war, establish a uniform currency, make treaties with foreign nations and contract debts for general expenses, such as paying the army. Taxes for the payment of such debts were levied by the individual states. The president under the Articles signed himself "President of the United States in Congress assembled," but here the United States were considered in the plural, a cooperating group. Canada was invited to join the union on equal terms but did not act.

When the war was won it became evident that a stronger federal union was needed to protect the mutual interests of the states. The Congress left the initiative to the legislatures. Virginia in January, 1786, appointed commissioners to meet with representatives of other states, with the result that delegates from Virginia, Delaware, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania met at Annapolis. Alexander Hamilton prepared their call asking delegates from all states to meet in Philadelphia in May, 1787, "to render the Constitution of the Federal government adequate to the exigencies of the union."

Congress endorsed the plan Feb. 21, 1787. Delegates were appointed by all states except Rhode Island.

The convention met May 14, 1787. George Washington was chosen president (presiding officer). The states certified 65 delegates, but 10 did not attend. The work was done by 55, not all of whom were present at all sessions. Of the 65 qualified delegates, 16 failed to sign, and 39 actually signed Sept. 17, 1787, some with reservations. Washington sent the Constitution to Congress with a covering letter and that body, Sept. 28, 1787, ordered it sent to the legislatures, "in order to be submitted to a convention of delegates chosen in each state by the people thereof."

In 1911 Max Farrand declared 74 delegates had been named and 19 failed to attend. His count was repeated by Charles Warren and other historians. Actually the 9 additional persons in Farrand's list refused to accept appointment and hence were never delegates, and were not counted as absentees by the convention.

The Constitution was ratified by votes of state conventions as follows: Delaware, Dec. 7, 1787, unanimous; Pennsylvania, Dec. 12, 1787, 43 to 23; New Jersey, Dec. 18, 1787, unanimous; Georgia, Jan. 2, 1788, unanimous; Connecticut, Jan. 9, 1788, 128 to 40; Massachusetts, Feb. 6, 1788, 187 to 168; Maryland, April 28, 1788, 63 to 11; South Carolina, May 23, 1788, 149 to 73; New Hampshire, June 21, 1788, 57 to 46; Virginia, June 26, 1788, 89 to 79; New York, July 26, 1788, 30 to 27. Nine states were needed to establish the operation of the Constitution "between the states so ratifying the same" and New Hampshire was the ninth state. The government did not declare the Constitution in effect until the first Wednesday in March, 1789, which was March 4. After that North Carolina ratified it Nov. 21, 1789, 197 to 77; and Rhode Island May 29, 1790, 34 to 32. Vermont in convention ratified it Jan. 10, 1790, and by act of Congress approved Feb. 19, 1791, was admitted into the Union as the 14th state.

Text of the Constitution

Original Seven Articles

PREAMBLE

We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect Union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America.

ARTICLE I.

Section 1—(Legislative powers; in whom vested;)

All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives.

Section 2—(House of Representatives, how and by whom chosen. Qualifications of a Representative. Representatives and direct taxes, how apportioned. Enumeration. Vacancies to be filled. Power of choosing officers, and of impeachment.)

1. The House of Representatives shall be composed of members chosen every second year by the people of the several States, and the electors in each State shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the State Legislature.

2. No person shall be a Representative who shall not have attained to the age of twenty-five years and been seven years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that State in which he shall be chosen.

3. Representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several States which may be included within this Union according to their respective numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole number of free persons, including those bound to service for a term of years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three-fifths of all other persons. The actual enumeration shall be made within three years after the first meeting of the Congress of the United States, and within every subsequent term of ten years, in such manner as they shall by law direct. The number of Representatives shall not exceed one for every thirty thousand, but each State shall have at least one Representative; and until such enumeration shall be made, the State of New Hampshire shall be entitled to choose 3; Massachusetts, 8; Rhode Island and Providence Plantations, 1; Connecticut, 5; New York, 6; New Jersey, 4; Pennsylvania, 8; Delaware, 1; Maryland, 6; Virginia, 10; North Carolina, 5; South Carolina, 5, and Georgia, 3.

4. When Vacancies happen in the representation from any State, the Executive Authority thereof shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies.

5. The House of Representatives shall choose their Speaker and other officers, and shall have the sole power of impeachment.

Section 3—(Senators, how and by whom chosen. How classified. State Executive, when to make temporary appointments, in case, etc. Qualifications of a Senator. President of the Senate, his right to vote. President pro tem., and other officers of the Senate, how chosen. Power to try impeachments. When President is tried, Chief Justice to preside. Sentence.)

1. The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, chosen by the Legislature thereof, for six years; and each Senator shall have one vote.

2. Immediately after they shall be assembled in consequence of the first election, they shall be divided as equally as may be into three classes. The seats of the Senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year, of the second class at the expiration of the fourth year, and of the third class at the expiration of the sixth year, so that one-third may be chosen every second year; and if vacancies happen by resignation or otherwise during the recess of the Legislature of any State, the Executive thereof may make temporary appointment until the next meeting of the Legislature, which shall then fill such vacancies.

3. No person shall be a Senator who shall not have attained to the age of thirty years, and been nine years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that State for which he shall be chosen.

4. The Vice-President of the United States shall be President of the Senate, but shall have no vote unless they be equally divided.

5. The Senate shall choose their other officers, and also a President pro tempore, in the absence of the Vice-President, or when he shall exercise the office of the President of the United States.

6. The Senate shall have the sole power to try all impeachments. When sitting for that purpose, they shall be on oath or affirmation. When the President of the United States is tried, the Chief Justice shall preside; and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present.

7. Judgment in cases of impeachment shall not extend further than to removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust, or profit under the United States; but the party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment, and punishment, according to law.

Section 4—(Times, etc., of holding elections, how prescribed. On session in each year.)
1. The times, places and manner of holding elections for Senators and Representatives shall be prescribed in each State by the Legislature thereof; but the Congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations, except as to places of choosing Senators.

2. The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meeting shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by law appoint a different day.

Section 5—(Membership. Quorum. Adjournments. Rules. Power to punish or expel. Journal. Time of adjournments, how limited, etc.)

1. Each House shall be the judge of the elections, returns, and qualifications of its own members, and a majority of each shall constitute a quorum to do business; but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members in such manner and under such penalties as each House may provide.

2. Each House may determine the rules of its proceedings, punish its members for disorderly behavior, and with the concurrence of two-thirds expel a member.

3. Each House shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and from time to time publish the same, excepting such parts as may in their judgment require secrecy; and the yeas and nays of the members of either House on any question shall, at the desire of one-fifth of those present, be entered on the journal.

4. Neither House, during the session on Congress shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which the two Houses shall be sitting.

Section 6—(Compensation. Privileges. Disqualifications in certain cases.)

1. The Senators and Representatives shall receive a compensation for their services to be ascertained by law, and paid out of the Treasury of the United States. They shall in all cases, except treason, felony, and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the session of their respective Houses, and in going to and returning from the same; and for any speech or debate in either House, they shall not be questioned in any other place.

2. No Senator or Representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time; and no person holding any office under the United States shall be a member of either House during its continuance in office.

Section 7—(House to originate all revenue bills. Veto. Bill may be passed by two-thirds of each House, notwithstanding, etc. Bill not returned in ten days, to become a law. Provisions as to orders, concurrent resolutions, etc.)

1. All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives, but the Senate may propose or concur with amendments, as on other bills.

2. Every bill which shall have passed the House of Representatives and the Senate shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the President of the United States; if he approve, he shall sign it, but if not, he shall return it, with his objections, to that House in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the objections at large on their journal and proceed to reconsider it. If after such reconsideration two-thirds of that House shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other House, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered; and if approved by two-thirds of that House it shall become a law. But in all such cases the votes of both Houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each House respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the President within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress by their adjournment prevent its return; in which case it shall not be a law.

3. Every order, resolution, or vote to which the concurrence of the Senate and House of Representatives may be necessary (except on a question of adjournment) shall be presented to the President of the United States, and before the same shall take effect shall be approved by him, or being disapproved by him, shall be repassed by two-thirds of the Senate and the House of Representatives, according to the rules and limitations prescribed in the case of a bill.

Section 8—(Powers of Congress.)

1. The Congress shall have power
To lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts, and excises to pay the debts and provide for the common defense and general welfare of the United States; but all duties, imposts, and excises shall be uniform throughout the United States.

2. To borrow money on the credit of the United States.

3. To regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States and with the Indian tribes.

4. To establish a uniform rule of naturalization and uniform laws on the subject of bankruptcies throughout the United States.

5. To coin money, regulate the value thereof, and of foreign coin, and fix the standard of weights and measures.

6. To provide for the punishment of counterfeiting the securities and current coin of the United States.

7. To establish post-offices and post-roads.

8. To promote the progress of science and useful arts by securing for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive rights to their respective writings and discoveries.

9. To constitute tribunals inferior to the Supreme Court.

10. To define and punish piracies and felonies committed on the high seas, and offences against the law of nations.

11. To declare war, grant letters of marque and reprisal, and make rules concerning captures on land and water.

12. To raise and support armies, but no appropriation of money to that use shall be for a longer term than two years.

13. To provide and maintain a navy.

14. To make rules for the government and regulation of the land and naval forces.

15. To provide for calling forth the militia to execute the laws of the Union, suppress insurrections, and repel invasions.

16. To provide for organizing, arming, and disciplining the militia, and for governing such part of them as may be employed in the service of the United States, reserving to the States respectively the appointment of the officers, and the authority of training the militia according to the discipline prescribed by Congress.

17. To exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever over such district (not exceeding ten miles square) as may, by cession of particular States and the acceptance of Congress, become the seat of Government of the United States, and to exercise like authority over all places purchased by the consent of the Legislature of the State in which the same shall be, for the erection of forts, magazines, arsenals, dockyards, and other needful buildings; And

18. To make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers and all other powers vested by this Constitution in the Government of the United States, or in any department or officer thereof.

Section 9—(Provision as to migration or importation of certain persons. Habeas Corpus. Bills of attainder, etc. Taxes, how apportioned. No export duty. No commercial preference. Money, how drawn from Treasury, etc. No titular nobility. Officers not to receive presents, etc.)

1. The migration or importation of such persons as any of the States now existing shall think proper to admit shall not be prohibited by the Congress prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight, if a tax or duty may be imposed on such importation, not exceeding ten dollars for each person.

2. The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended, unless when in cases of rebellion or invasion the public safety may require it.

3. No bill of attainder or ex post facto law shall be passed.

4. No capitation or other direct tax shall be laid, unless in proportion to the census or enumeration heretofore directed to be taken.

5. No tax or duty shall be laid on articles exported from any State.

6. No preference shall be given by any regulation of commerce or revenue to the ports of one State over those of another, nor shall vessels bound to or from one State be obliged to enter, clear, or pay duties to another.

7. No money shall be drawn from the Treasury but in consequence of appropriations made by law; and a regular statement and account of the receipts and expenditures of all public money shall be published from time to time.

8. No title of nobility shall be granted by the United States. And no person holding any office of profit or trust under them shall, without the consent of the Congress, accept of any present, emolument, office, or title of any kind whatever from any king, prince, or foreign state.

Section 10—(States prohibited from the exercise of certain powers.)

1. No State shall enter into any treaty, alliance, or confederation, grant letters of marque and reprisal, coin money, emit bills of credit, make anything but gold and silver coin a tender in payment of debts, pass any bill of attainder, ex post facto law, or law impairing the obligation of contracts, or grant any title of nobility.

2. No State shall, without the consent of the Congress, lay any imports or duties on imports or exports, except what may be absolutely necessary for executing its inspection laws, and the net produce of all duties and imposts, laid by any State on imports or exports, shall be for the use of the Treasury of the United States; and all such laws shall be subject to the revision and control of the Congress.

3. No State shall, without the consent of Congress, lay any duty of tonnage, keep troops or ships of war in time of peace, enter into agreement or compact with another State, or with a foreign power, or engage in war, unless actually invaded, or in such imminent danger as will not admit of delay.

ARTICLE II.

Section 1—(President: his term of office. Electors of President; number and how appointed. Electors to vote on same day. Qualification of President. On whom his duties devolve in case of his removal, death, etc. President's compensation. His oath of office.)

1. The Executive power shall be vested in a President of the United States of America. He shall hold his office during the term of four years, and together with the Vice President, chosen for the same term, be elected as follows:

2. Each State shall appoint, in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors equal to the whole number of Senators and Representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress; but no Senator or Representative or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States shall be appointed an elector.

(*The electors shall meet in their respective States and vote by ballot for two persons, of whom one at least shall not be an inhabitant of the same State with themselves. And they shall make a list of all the persons voted for, and of the number of votes for each, which list they shall sign and certify and transmit, sealed, to the seat of the Government of the United States, directed to the President of the Senate. The President of the Senate shall, in the presence of the Senate and House of Representatives, open all the certificates, and the votes shall then be counted. The person having the greatest number of votes shall be the President, if a number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed; and if there be more than one who have such a majority, and have an equal number of votes, then the House of Representatives shall immediately choose by ballot one of them for President; and if no person have a majority, then from the five highest on the list the said House shall in like manner choose the President. But in choosing the President, the vote shall be taken by States, the representation from each State having one vote. A quorum, for this purpose, shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the States, and a majority of all the States shall be necessary to a choice. In every case, after the choice of the President, the person having the greatest number of votes of the electors shall be the Vice-President. But if there should remain two or more who have equal votes, the Senate shall choose from them by ballot the Vice President.)

(*This clause has been superseded by the 12th amendment.)

3. The Congress may determine the time of choosing the electors, and the day on which they shall give their votes, which day shall be the same throughout the United States.

4. No person except a natural born citizen, or a citizen of the United States at the time of the adoption of this Constitution, shall be eligible to the office of President; neither shall any person be eligible to that office who shall not have attained to the age of thirty-five years and been fourteen years a resident within the United States.

(For qualification of the Vice-President, see Article XII of the amendments.)

5. In case of the removal of the President from office, or of his death, resignation, or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve on the Vice President, and the Congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation, or inability, both of the President and Vice-President, declaring what officer shall then act as President, and such officer shall act accordingly until the disability be removed or a President shall be elected.

(This clause has been amended by Article XX, sections 3 and 4, of the amendments.)

6. The President shall, at stated times, receive for his services a compensation which shall neither be increased nor diminished during the period for which he shall have been elected, and he shall not receive within that period any other emolument from the United States or any of them.

7. Before he enter on the execution of his office he shall take the following oath or affirmation: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect, and defend the Constitution of the United States."

Section 2—(President to be Commander-in-Chief. He may require opinions of Cabinet Officers, etc., may pardon. Treaty-making power. Nomination of certain officers. When President may fill vacancies.)

1. The President shall be Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy of the United States, and of the militia of the several States when called into the actual service of the United States; he may require the opinion, in writing, of the principal officer in each of the executive departments upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices, and he shall have power to grant reprieves and pardons for offenses against the United States except in cases of impeachment.

2. He shall have power by and with the advice and consent of two-thirds of the Senators present to concur; and he shall nominate and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate shall appoint ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, judges of the Supreme Court, and all other officers of the United States whose appointments are not herein otherwise provided for, and which shall be established by law; but the Congress may by law vest the appointment of such inferior officers as they think proper in the President alone, in the courts of law, or in the heads of departments.

3. The President shall have power to fill up all vacancies that may happen during the recess of the Senate by granting commissions, which shall expire at the end of their next session.

Section 3—(President shall communicate to Congress. He may convene and adjourn Congress, in case of disagreement, etc. Shall receive Ambassadors, execute laws, and commission officers.)

He shall from time to time give to the Congress information of the state of the Union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient; he may, on extraordinary occasions, convene both Houses, or either of them, and in case of disagreement between them with respect to the time of adjournment, he may adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper; he shall receive ambassadors and other public ministers; he shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed, and shall commission all the officers of the United States.

Section 4—(All civil offices forfeited for certain crimes.)

The President, Vice-President, and all civil officers of the United States shall be removed from office on impeachment for and conviction of treason, bribery or other high crimes and misdemeanors.

ARTICLE III

Section 1—(Judicial powers. Tenure. Compensation.)

The judicial power of the United States shall be vested in one Supreme Court, and in such inferior courts as the Congress may from time to time ordain and establish. The judges, both of the Supreme and inferior courts, shall hold their offices during good behavior, and shall at stated times receive for their services a compensation which shall not be diminished during their continuance in office.

Section 2—(Judicial power; to what cases it extends. Original jurisdiction of Supreme Court Appellate. Trial by jury, etc. Trial, where.)

1. The judicial power shall extend to all cases in law and equity arising under this Constitution, the laws of the United States, and treaties made, or which shall be made, under their authority; to all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls; to all cases of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction; to controversies to which the United States shall be a party; to controversies between two or more States, between a State and citizens of another State, between citizens of different States, between citizens of the same State claiming lands under grants of different States, and between a State, or the citizens thereof, and foreign States, citizens, or subjects.

(This section is abridged by Article XI of the amendments.)

2. In all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers, and consuls, and those in which a State shall be party, the Supreme Court shall have original jurisdiction. In all the other cases before mentioned the Supreme Court shall have appellate jurisdiction both as to law and fact, with such exceptions and under such regulations as the Congress shall make.

3. The trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury, and such trial shall be held in the State where the said crimes shall have been committed; but when not committed within any State the trial shall be at such place or places as the Congress may by law have directed.

Section 3—(Treason defined. Proof of Punishment of.)

1. Treason against the United States shall consist only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court.

2. The Congress shall have power to declare the punishment of treason, but no attainder of treason shall work corruption of blood or forfeiture except during the life of the person attained.

ARTICLE IV.

Section 1—(Each State to give credit to the public acts, etc., of every other State.)

Full faith and credit shall be given in each State to the public acts, records, and judicial proceedings of every other State. And the Congress may by general laws prescribe the manner in which such acts, records, and proceedings shall be proved, and the effect thereof.

Section 2—(Privileges of citizens of each State. Fugitives from justice to be delivered up. Persons held to service having escaped, to be delivered up.)

1. The citizens of each State shall be entitled to all privileges and immunities of citizens in the several States.

2. A person charged in any State with treason, felony, or other crime, who shall flee from justice, and be found in another State, shall, on demand of the Executive authority of the State from which he fled, be delivered up, to be removed to the State having jurisdiction of the crime.

3. No person held to service or labor in one State, under the laws thereof, escaping into another shall in consequence of any law or regulation therein, be discharged from such service or labor, but shall be delivered up on claim of the party to whom such service or labor may be due. (See 13th amendment.)

Section 3—(Admission of new States. Power of Congress over territory and other property.)

1. New States may be admitted by the Congress into this Union; but no new State shall be formed or erected within the jurisdiction of any other State, nor any State be formed by the junction of two or more States, or parts of States, without the consent of the Legislatures of the States concerned, as well as of the Congress.

2. The Congress shall have power to dispose of and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the United States; and nothing in this Constitution shall be so construed as to prejudice any claims of the United States, or of any particular State.

Section 4—(Republican form of government guaranteed. Each State to be protected.)

The United States shall guarantee to every State in this Union a Republican form of government, and shall protect each of them against invasion, and, on application of the Legislature, or of the Executive (when the Legislature cannot be convened) against domestic violence.

ARTICLE V.

(Constitution: how amended. Proviso.)

The Congress, whenever two-thirds of both Houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose amendments to this Constitution, or, on the application of the Legislatures of two-thirds of the several States, shall call a convention for proposing amendments, which in either case, shall be valid to all intents and purposes, as part of this Constitution, when ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the several States, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the Congress, provided that no amendment which may be made prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight shall in any manner affect the first and fourth clauses in the Ninth Section of the First Article; and that no State, without its consent, shall be deprived of its equal suffrage in the Senate.

ARTICLE VI.

(Certain debts, etc., declared valid. Supremacy of Constitution, treaties, and laws of the United States. Oath to support Constitution, by whom taken. No religious test.)

1. All debts contracted and engagements entered into before the adoption of this Constitution shall be as valid against the United States under this Constitution as under the Confederation.

2. This Constitution and the laws of the United States which shall be made in pursuance thereof and all treaties made, or which shall be made, under the authority of the United States, shall be the supreme law of the land, and the judges in every State shall be bound thereby, anything in the Constitution or laws of any State to the contrary notwithstanding.

3. The Senators and Representatives before mentioned, and the members of the several State Legislatures, and all executive and judicial officers, both of the United States and of the several States, shall be bound by oath or affirmation to support this Constitution; but no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States.

ARTICLE VII.

(What ratification shall establish Constitution.)

The ratification of the Conventions of nine States shall be sufficient for the establishment of this Constitution between the States so ratifying the same.

Done in convention by the unanimous consent of the States present the 17th day of September in the year of our Lord 1787, and of the independence of the United States of America the 12th. In witness whereof we have hereunto subscribed our names.

Ten Original Amendments (Bill of Rights)

(In force December 15, 1791)

Opposition in and out of Congress to the Constitution, in that it was not sufficiently explicit as to individual and State rights, led to an agreement to submit to the people immediately after the adoption of the Constitution a number of safeguarding amendments.

And so it was that the First Congress, at its first session, in the City of New York, Sept. 25, 1789, submitted to the States twelve proposed amendments—A Bill of Rights as it has been popularly called.

In the preamble to the resolution offering the proposed amendments, Congress said: "The conventions of a number of the States having at the time of their adopting the Constitution, expressed a desire, in order to prevent misconstruction or abuse of its powers, that further declaratory and restrictive clauses should be added, and as extending the ground of public confidence in the government will best insure the beneficent ends of its institution, be it resolved," etc.

Ten of these amendments (now commonly known as one to ten inclusive, but in reality three to twelve inclusive) were ratified by the States as follows—New Jersey, (Nov. 20, 1789); Maryland, (Dec. 19, 1789); North Carolina, (Dec. 22, 1789); South Carolina, (Jan. 19, 1790); New Hampshire, (Jan. 25, 1790); Delaware, (Jan. 28, 1790); Pennsylvania, (March 1, 1790); New York, (Feb. 24, 1790); Rhode Island, (June 11, 1790); Vermont, (Nov. 3, 1791); Virginia, (Dec. 15, 1791); Massachusetts, (March 2, 1793); Georgia, (March 18, 1793); Connecticut, (April 19, 1793). These original ten ratified amendments appear in order on the next page as Article I to X inclusive.

States, and without regard to any census or enumeration.

ARTICLE XVII.

United States Senators to Be Elected by Direct Popular Vote.

The following amendment was proposed to the Legislatures of the several States by the Sixty-second Congress (May 16, 1912) and was declared to have been ratified in a proclamation by the Secretary of State (May 31, 1913). The amendment was adopted by 37 of the 48 States, but was rejected by Utah.

1. The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, elected by the people thereof, for six years and each Senator shall have one vote. The electors in each State shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the State Legislatures.

2. When vacancies happen in the representation of any State in the Senate, the executive authority of such State shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies: Provided, That the Legislature of any State may empower the Executive thereof to make temporary appointment until the people fill the vacancies by election as the Legislature may direct.

3. This amendment shall not be so construed as to affect the election or term of any Senator chosen before it becomes valid as part of the Constitution.

ARTICLE XVIII.

Liquor Prohibition Amendment.

The following amendment was proposed to the Legislatures of the several States by the Sixty-fifth Congress (Dec. 18, 1917), and (Jan. 29, 1919) the United States Secretary of State proclaimed its adoption by 36 States, and declared it in effect (Jan. 16, 1920).

The total vote in the Senates of the various States was, 1,310 for, 237 against—84.6% dry. In the lower houses of the States the vote was, 3,782 for, 1,035 against—78.5% dry.

The amendment ultimately was adopted by all the States except Connecticut and Rhode Island.

1. After one year from the ratification of this article the manufacture, sale, or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into, or the exportation thereof from the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes is hereby prohibited.

2. The Congress and the several States shall have concurrent power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

3. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the Legislatures of the several States, as provided in the Constitution, within seven years from the date of the submission hereof to the States by the Congress.

Repealed by Article XXI effective Dec. 5, 1933.

ARTICLE XIX.

Giving Nation-Wide Suffrage to Women.

The following amendment was presented to the Legislatures of the several States by the Sixty-fifth Congress having been adopted by the House of Representatives (May 12, 1919) and by the Senate (June 4, 1919). The Secretary of State (Aug. 26, 1920) proclaimed it in effect, having been adopted (June 10, 1919-August 18, 1920) by three-quarters of the States. In West Virginia, despite Senate rules of procedure which forbade reconsideration of a measure during the sessions in which it was defeated, the Senate ratified the proposed 19th amendment, subsequent to a rejection in the same session. The amendment was rejected by Alabama, Maryland, and Virginia.

1. The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex.

2. Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

ARTICLE XX.

Terms of President and Vice-President to Begin on Jan. 20; Those of Senators and Representatives, on Jan. 3.

The following amendment was proposed to the Legislatures of the several States by the Seventy-second Congress (March, 1932), a joint resolution to that effect having been adopted, first by the House, and then (March 2) by the Senate. The Secretary of State (Feb. 6, 1933) proclaimed it in effect, 39 of the 48 States having ratified. By Oct. 15, 1933, it had been ratified by all of the 48 States.

Section 1. The terms of the President and Vice-President shall end at noon on the 20th day of January, and the terms of Senators and Representatives at noon on the 3rd day of January of the years in which such terms would have ended if this article had not been ratified; and the terms of their successors shall then begin.

Section 2. The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meeting shall begin at noon on the 3rd day of January, unless they shall by law appoint a different day.

Section 3. If, at the time fixed for the beginning of the term of the President, the President elect shall have died, the Vice-President elect shall become President. If a President shall not have been chosen before the time fixed for the beginning of his term, or if the President elect shall have failed to qualify, then the Vice-President elect shall act as President until a President shall have qualified; and the Congress may by law provide for the case wherein neither a President elect nor a Vice-President elect shall have qualified, declaring who shall then act as President, or the manner in which one who is to act shall be selected, and such person shall act accordingly until a President or Vice-President shall have qualified.

Section 4. The Congress may by law provide for the case of the death of any of the persons from whom the House of Representatives may choose a President whenever the right of choice shall have devolved upon them, and for the case of the death of any of the persons from whom the Senate may choose a Vice-President whenever the right of choice shall have devolved upon them.

Section 5. Sections 1 and 2 shall take effect on the 15th day of October following the ratification of this article (Oct., 1933).

Section 6. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the several States within seven years from the date of its submission.

ARTICLE XXI.

Repeal of the Eighteenth (Prohibition) Amendment by Conventions in the States.

The following proposed amendment in the Constitution, embodied in a joint resolution of the 72nd Congress (Senate, Feb. 16, 1933, by 63 to 23; House, Feb. 20, 1933, by 289 to 121), was transmitted to the Secretary of State on Feb. 21 and he at once sent to the governors of the States copies of the resolution. The amendment went into effect on Dec. 5, 1933, having been adopted by 36 of the 48 States—Utah was the 36th State to ratify.

Section 1. The eighteenth article of amendment to the Constitution of the United States is hereby repealed.

Section 2. The transportation or importation into any State, Territory, or Possession of the United States for delivery or use therein of intoxicating liquors, in violation of the laws thereof, is hereby prohibited.

Section 3. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by convention in the several States, as provided in the Constitution, within seven years from the date of the submission hereof to the States by the Congress.

ARTICLE XXII.

Limiting Presidential Terms of Office.

The following proposed amendment in the Constitution, embodied in a joint resolution of the 80th Congress (House, Feb. 6, 1947, by 285 to 121; Senate, March 12, 1947, by 59 to 23). Signed by the Speaker of the House, Mar. 24, 1947, and by the President pro tempore of the Senate, Mar. 24, 1947. Presented to the Secretary of State, Mar. 24, 1947. Went into effect Feb. 26, 1951, when Nevada became the 36th State to ratify. Utah had ratified earlier the same day, and Minnesota, Feb. 27th.

No person shall be elected to the office of the President more than twice, and no person who has held the office of President, or acted as President, for more than two years of a term to which some other person was elected President shall be elected to the office of President when this Article was proposed by the Congress, and shall not prevent any person who may be holding the office of President, or acting as President, during the term within which this Article becomes operative from holding the office of President or acting as President during the remainder of such term.

Lincoln's Gettysburg Address

President Abraham Lincoln delivered his address at Gettysburg, often called the peak of American eloquence, at the dedication of the military cemetery there Nov. 19, 1863. The battle had been fought July 1-3, 1863. He was preceded by Edward Everett, former president of Harvard, secretary of state and senator from Massachusetts, then 69 and one of the nation's great orators. Everett gave a full resume of the battle. Lincoln's speech was so short that the photographer did not get his camera adjusted in time. The report that newspapers ignored Lincoln's address is not entirely accurate; Everett's address swamped their columns, but the greatness of Lincoln's speech was immediately recognized. Everett wrote him: "I should be glad if I could flatter myself that I came as near the central idea of the occasion in two hours as you did in two minutes."

Five copies of the Gettysburg address in Lincoln's hand are extant. The first and second draft, prepared in Washington and Gettysburg just before delivery, are in the Library of Congress; the second draft was exhibited on the Freedom Train. The third draft, written at the request of Everett to be sold at a fair in New York for the benefit of soldiers, was given the Illinois State Historical Library by popular subscription.

The fourth copy was written out by Lincoln for George Bancroft, the historian, and remained in custody of the Bancroft family until 1929, when it was acquired by Mrs. Nicholas H. Noyes, of Indianapolis, Ind. In 1949 Mrs. Noyes presented this copy to the Cornell University Library, Ithaca, N.Y. The fifth copy, usually described as the clearest and best, was also written by Lincoln for George Bancroft, for facsimile reproduction in a volume to be sold for the benefit of soldiers and sailors in Baltimore, where Bancroft lived. It is the second Bancroft copy. It passed to Bancroft's stepchildren, named Bliss, and was sold for $54,000 by the estate of Dr. William J. A. Bliss in New York April 27, 1949, to Oscar B. Cintas, former Cuban ambassador to the United States.

THE OFFICIAL VERSION OF THE GETTYSBURG ADDRESS

Fourscore and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation or any nation so conceived and so dedicated can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field, as a final resting-place of those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But, in a larger sense, we cannot dedicate—we cannot consecrate—we cannot hallow—this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it, far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember, what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion—that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain—that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom—and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

The National Anthem—The Star-Spangled Banner

The Star-Spangled Banner was ordered played by the military and naval services by President Woodrow Wilson in 1916. It was designated the National Anthem by Act of Congress, March 3, 1931. It was written by Francis Scott Key, of Georgetown, D. C., during the bombardment of Fort McHenry, Baltimore, Md., Sept. 13-14, 1814. Key was a lawyer, a graduate of St. John's College, Annapolis, and a volunteer in a light artillery company. When a friend, Dr. Beanes, a physician of Upper Marlborough, Md., was taken aboard Admiral Cockburn's British squadron for interfering with ground troops, Key and J. S. Skinner, carrying a note from President Madison, went to the fleet under a flag of truce on a cartel ship to ask Beanes' release. Admiral Cockburn consented, but as the fleet was about to sail up the Patapsco to bombard Fort McHenry he detained them, first on H. M. S. Surprise, and then on a supply ship.

Key witnessed the bombardment from his own vessel. It began at 7 a.m., Sept. 13, 1814, and lasted, with intermissions, for 25 hours. The British fired over 1,500 shells, each weighing as much as 220 lbs. They were unable to approach closely because the Americans had sunk 22 vessels in the channel. Only four Americans were killed and 24 wounded. A British bomb-ship was disabled.

During the bombardment Key wrote a stanza on the back of an envelope. Next day at the Fountain inn, Baltimore, he wrote out the poem and gave it to his brother-in-law, Judge J. H. Nicholson. Nicholson suggested the tune, Anacraon in Heaven, and had the poem printed on broadsides, of which two survive. On Sept. 25 it appeared in the Baltimore American. Later Key made 3 copies; one is in the Library of Congress and one in the Pennsylvania Historical Society.

The copy that Key wrote in his hotel Sept. 14, 1814, remained in the Nicholson family for 93 years. In 1907 it was sold to Henry Walters of Baltimore. In 1934 it was bought at auction in New York from the Walters estate by the Walters Art Gallery, Baltimore, for $26,400. The Walters Gallery in 1953 sold the manuscript to the Maryland Historical Society for the same price. The purchase price was donated by Mrs. Thos. Courtney Jenkins, Baltimore, in memory of her mother-in-law, Mrs. Catherine Key Jenkins, daughter of a first cousin of Francis Scott Key.

The flag that Key saw during the bombardment is preserved in Smithsonian Institution, Washington. It is 30 by 42 ft., and has 15 alternate red and white stripes and 15 stars, for the original 13 states plus Kentucky and Vermont. It was made by Mary Young Pickersgill. The Baltimore Flag house, a museum, occupies her premises, which were restored in 1953.

THE STAR-SPANGLED BANNER

III

And where is that band who so vauntingly swore
That the havoc of war and the battle's confusion,
A home and a country should leave us no more!
Their blood has washed out their foul footsteps' pollution.

No refuge could save the hireling and slave
From the terror of flight, or the gloom of the grave:

And the star-spangled banner in triumph doth wave

O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!

IV

Oh! thus be it ever, when freemen shall stand Between their loved homes and the war's desolation!

Blest with victory and peace, may the heav'n rescued land
Praise the Power that hath made and preserved us a nation.

Then conquer we must, when our cause is just,
And this be our motto: "In God is our trust."

And the star-spangled banner in triumph shall wave

O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!

I

Oh, say can you see by the dawn's early light
What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming?

Whose broad stripes and bright stars, thru the perilous fight,

O'er the ramparts we watched were so gallantly streaming?

And the rocket's red glare, the bombs bursting in air,

Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there.

Oh, say does that star-spangled banner yet wave

II

On the shore, dimly seen through the mists of the deep,

Where the foe's haughty host in dread silence reposes,

What is that which the breeze, o'er the towering steep,

As it fitfully blows, now conceals, now discloses?

Now it catches the gleam of the morning's first beam,

In full glory reflected now shines on the stream:

'Tis the star-spangled banner! O long may it wave

O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!

Charter of the United Nations

We, the peoples of the United Nations Determined to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war, which twice in our lifetime has brought untold sorrow to mankind, and

To reaffirm faith in fundamental human rights, in the dignity and worth of the human person, in the equal right of men and women and of nations large and small, and

To establish conditions under which justice and respect for the obligations arising from treaties and other sources of international law can be maintained, and

To promote social progress and better standards of life in larger freedom, and for these ends

To practice tolerance and live together in peace with one another as good neighbors, and

To unite our strength to maintain international peace and security, and

To insure, by the acceptance of principles and the institution of methods, that armed force shall not be used, save in the common interest, and

To employ international machinery for the promotion of the economic and social advancement of all people have resolved to combine our efforts to accomplish these aims.

Accordingly, our respective governments, through representatives assembled in the city of San Francisco, who have exhibited their full powers found to be in good and due form, have agreed to the present Charter of the United Nations and do hereby establish an international organization to be known as the United Nations.

CHAPTER I PURPOSES

Article 1—The purposes of the United Nations are:

1. To maintain international peace and security, and to that end: to take effective collective measures for the prevention and removal of threats to the peace and for the suppression of acts of aggression or other breaches of the peace, and to bring about by peaceful means, and in conformity with the principles of justice and international law, adjustment or settlement of international disputes or situations which might lead to a breach of the peace;

2. To develop friendly relations among nations based on respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples, and to take other appropriate measures to strengthen universal peace;

3. To achieve international cooperation in solving international problems of an economic, social, cultural or humanitarian character, and in promoting and encouraging respect for human rights and for the fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion; and

4. To be a center for harmonizing the actions of nations in the attainment of these common ends.

PRINCIPLES

Article 2—The organization and its members, in pursuit of the purposes stated in Article 1, shall act in accordance with the following principles:

1. The organization is based on the principle of the sovereign equality of all its members.

2. All members, in order to ensure to all of them the rights and benefits resulting from membership, shall fulfill in good faith the obligations assumed by them in accordance with the present charter.

3. All members shall settle their international disputes by peaceful means in such a manner that international peace, and security, and justice, are not endangered.

4. All members shall refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any member or state, or in any other manner inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations.

5. All members shall give the United Nations every assistance in any action it takes in accordance with the provisions of the present charter, and shall refrain from giving assistance to any state against which the United Nations is taking preventive or enforcement action.

6. The organization shall ensure that states not members act in accordance with these principles so far as may be necessary for the maintenance of international peace and security.

7. Nothing contained in the present charter shall authorize the United Nations to intervene in matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of any state or shall require the members to submit such matters to settlement under the present charter; but this principle shall not prejudice the application of enforcement measures under Chapter VII.

CHAPTER II MEMBERSHIP

Article 3—The original members of the United Nations shall be the states which, having participated in the United Nations Conference on International Organization at San Francisco, or have previously signed the declaration of the United Nations of Jan. 1, 1942, sign the present charter and ratify it in accordance with Article 110.

Article 4—1. Membership in the United Nations is open to all other peace-loving states which accept the obligations contained in the present charter and which, in the judgment of the organization, are able and willing to carry out these obligations.

2. The admission of any such state to membership in the United Nations will be effected by a decision of the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council.

Article 5—A member of the United Nations against which preventive or enforcement action has been taken by the Security Council may be suspended from the exercise of the rights and privileges of membership by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council. The exercise of these rights and privileges may be restored by the Security Council.

Article 6—A member of the United Nations which has persistently violated the principles contained in the present charter may be expelled from the organization by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council.

CHAPTER III ORGANS

Article 7—1. There are established as the principal organs of the United Nations: A General Assembly, a Security Council, an Economic and Social Council, an International Court of Justice, a Trusteeship Council and a Secretariat.

2. Such subsidiary organs as may be found necessary may be established in accordance with the present charter.

Article 8—The United Nations shall place no restrictions on the eligibility of men and women to participate in any capacity and under conditions of equality in the principal and subsidiary organs.

CHAPTER IV THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY COMPOSITION

Article 9—The General Assembly shall consist of all the members of the United Nations.

Each member shall not have more than five representatives in the General Assembly.

FUNCTIONS AND POWERS

Article 10—The General Assembly may discuss any questions or any matters within the scope of the present Charter or relating to the powers and functions of any organs provided in the present Charter, and, except as provided in Article 12, may make recommendations to the members of the United Nations or to the Security Council, or both, on any such questions or matters.

Article 11—1. The General Assembly may consider the general principles of cooperation in the maintenance of international peace and security, including the principles governing disarmament and the regulations of armaments, and may make recommendations with regard to such principles to the members or to the Security Council or both.

2. The General Assembly may discuss any questions relating to the maintenance of international peace and security brought before it by any member of the United Nations, or by the Security Council, or by a State, which is not a member of the United Nations, in accordance with the provisions of Article 35, Paragraph 2, and, except as provided in Article 12, may make recommendations with regard to any such questions to the State or States concerned or to the Security Council, or both. A question on which action is necessary shall be referred to the Security Council by the General Assembly either before or after discussion.

3. The General Assembly may call the attention of the Security Council to situations which are likely to endanger international peace and security.

4. The powers of the General Assembly set out in this article shall not limit the general scope of Article 10.

Article 12—1. While the Security Council is exercising in respect of any dispute or situation the functions assigned to it in the present Charter, the General Assembly shall not make any recommendation with regard to that dispute or situation unless the Security Council so requests.

2. The Secretary General, with the consent of the Security Council, shall notify the General Assembly at each session of any matters relative to the maintenance of international peace and security which are being dealt with by the Security Council and shall similarly notify the General Assembly, or the members of the United Nations if the General Assembly is not in session, immediately the Security Council ceases to deal with such matters.

Article 13—1. The General Assembly shall initiate studies and make recommendations for the purpose of:

(a) Promoting international cooperation in the political field and encouraging the progressive development of international law and its codification;

(b) Promoting international cooperation in the economic, social, cultural, educational and health fields and assisting in the realization of human rights and basic freedoms for all without distinctions as to race, sex, language or religion.

2. The further responsibilities, functions and powers of the General Assembly with respect to matters mentioned in Paragraph (b) above are set forth in Chapter IX and X.

Article 14—Subject to the provisions of Article 12, the General Assembly may recommend measures for the peaceful adjustment of any situation, regardless of origin, which it deems likely to impair the general welfare or friendly relations among nations, including situations resulting from a violation of the provisions of the present Charter setting forth the purposes and principles of the United Nations.

Article 15—1. The General Assembly shall receive and consider annual and special reports from the Security Council; these reports shall include an account of the measures that the Security Council has adopted or applied to maintain international peace and security.

2. The General Assembly shall receive and consider reports from the other bodies of the organization.

Article 16—"The General Assembly shall perform such functions with respect to the international trusteeship system as are assigned to it under Chapters XII and XIII, including the approval of the trusteeship agreements for areas not designated as strategic."

Article 17—1. The General Assembly shall consider and approve the budget of the organization.

2. The General Assembly shall consider and approve any financial and budgetary arrangements with specialized agencies referred to in Article 57 and shall examine the administrative budgets of such specialized agencies with a view to making recommendations to the agencies concerned.

3. The expenses of the organization shall be borne by the members as apportioned by the General Assembly.

VOTING

Article 18—1. Each member of the United Nations shall have one vote in the General Assembly.

2. Decisions of the General Assembly on important questions shall be made by a two-thirds majority of those present and voting. These questions shall include: recommendations with respect to the maintenance of international peace and security, the election of the non-permanent members of the Security Council, the election of the members of the Economic and Social Council, the election of the members of the United Nations which are to designate the members on the Trusteeship Council in accordance with the provisions of Article 86 (C), the admission of new members, the suspension of the right and privileges of members, questions relating to the operations of the trusteeship system, and budgetary questions.

3. Decisions on the questions—including the determination of additional categories of questions to be decided by a two-thirds majority—shall be made by a majority of those present and voting.

Article 19—A member which is in arrears in the payments of its financial contributions to the organization shall have no vote if the amount of its arrears equals or exceeds the amount of the contributions due from it for the preceding two full years. The General Assembly may, nevertheless, permit such a member to vote if it is satisfied that the failure to pay is due to conditions beyond the control of the member.

PROCEDURE

Article 20—"The General Assembly shall meet in regular annual sessions and in such special sessions as occasion may require. Special sessions shall be convoked by the Secretary General at the request of the Security Council or of a majority of the members of the United Nations."

Article 21—"The General Assembly shall adopt its own rules of procedure. It shall elect its president for each session."

Article 22—"The General Assembly may establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary for the performance of its functions."

CHAPTER V

THE SECURITY COUNCIL COMPOSITION

Article 23—1. The Security Council shall consist of eleven members of the United Nations. The United States of America, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the Republic of China, and France, shall be permanent members of the Security Council. The General Assembly shall elect six other members of the United Nations to be non-permanent members of the Security Council, due regard being specially paid, in the first instance, to the contribution of members of the United Nations to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the organization, and also to equitable geographical distribution.

2. The non-permanent members of the Security Council shall be elected for a term of two years. In the first election of the non-permanent members, however, three shall be chosen for a term of one year. A retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election.

3. Each member of the Security Council shall have one representative.

PRIMARY RESPONSIBILITY

Article 24—1. In order to insure prompt and effective action by the United Nations, its members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security, and agree that in carrying out its duties under this responsibility the Security Council acts on their behalf.

2. In discharging these duties the Security Council shall act in accordance with the purposes and principles of the United Nations. The specific powers granted to the Security Council for the discharge of these duties are laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII, and XII.

3. The Security Council shall submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly for its consideration.

Article 25—"The members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the provisions of the present charter."

Article 26—"In order to promote the establishment and maintenance of international peace and security with the least diversion for armaments of the world's human and economic resources, the Security Council shall be responsible for formulating, with the assistance of the Military Staff Committee referred to in Article 47, plans to be submitted to the members of the United Nations for the establishment of a system for the regulation of armaments."

VOTING

Article 27—1. Each member of the Security Council shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the Security Council on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of seven members.

3. Decisions of the Security Council on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of seven members including the concurring votes of the permanent members; provided that, in decisions under Chapter VI and under Paragraph 3 of Article 52 a dispute shall abstain from voting.

PROCEDURE

Article 28—1. The Security Council shall be so organized as to be able to function continuously. Each member of the Security Council shall for this purpose be represented at all times at the seat of the organization.

2. The Security Council shall hold periodic meetings at which each of its members may, if it so desires, be represented by a member of the Government or by some other specially designated representative.

3. The Security Council may hold meetings at such places other than the seat of the organization as in its judgment may best facilitate its work.

Article 29—"The Security Council may establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary for the performance of its functions."

Article 30—"The Security Council shall adopt its own rules of procedure, including the method of selecting its president."

Article 31—"Any member of the United Nations which is not a member of the Security Council may participate without a vote in the discussion of any question brought before the Security Council whenever the latter considers that the interests of that member are specially affected."

Article 32—"Any member of the United Nations which is not a member of the Security Council or any State not a member of the United Nations."

If it is a party to a dispute under consideration by the Security Council, shall be invited to participate in the discussion relating to the dispute. The Security Council shall lay down such conditions as it may deem just for the participation of a State which is not a member of the United Nations.

CHAPTER VI

PACIFIC SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES

Article 33—1. The parties to any dispute, the continuance of which is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security, shall, first of all, seek a solution by negotiation, inquiry, mediation, conciliation, arbitration, judicial settlement, resort to regional agencies or arrangements, or other peaceful means of their own choice.

2. The Security Council shall, when it deems necessary, call upon the parties to settle their dispute by such means.

Article 34—"The Security Council may investigate any dispute, or any situation which might lead to international friction or give rise to a dispute, in order to determine whether the continuance is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security."

Article 35—1. Any member of the United Nations may bring any dispute or any situation of the nature referred to in Article 34 to the attention of the Security Council, or of the General Assembly.

2. A state which is not a member of the United Nations may bring to the attention of the Security Council or of the General Assembly any dispute to which it is a party, if it accepts in advance, for the purposes of the dispute, the obligations of pacific settlement provided in the present charter.

3. The proceedings of the General Assembly in respect of matters brought to its attention under this article will be subject to the provisions of Articles 11 and 12.

Article 36—1. The Security Council may, at any stage of a dispute of the nature referred to in Article 33 or of a situation of like nature, recommend appropriate procedures or methods of adjustment.

2. The Security Council should take into consideration any procedures for the settlement of the dispute which have already been adopted by the parties.

3. In making recommendations under this article the Security Council should take into consideration that legal disputes should as a general rule be referred by the parties to the International Court of Justice in accordance with the provisions of the statute of the court.

Article 37—1. Should the parties to a dispute of the nature referred to in Article 33 fail to settle it by the means indicated in that article, they shall refer it to the Security Council.

2. If the Security Council deems that the continuance of the dispute is in fact likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security, it shall decide whether to take action under Article 36 or to recommend such terms of settlement as it may consider appropriate.

Article 38—Without prejudice to the provisions of Articles 33-37 of this chapter, the Security Council may, if all the parties to any dispute so request, make recommendations to the parties with a view to a peaceful settlement of the dispute.

CHAPTER VII

ACTION WITH RESPECT TO THREATS TO THE PEACE, BREACHES OF THE PEACE AND ACTS OF AGGRESSION.

Article 39—The Security Council shall determine the existence of any threat to the peace, breach of the peace, or act of aggression and shall make recommendations, or decide what measures shall be taken in accordance with the provisions of Articles 41 and 42, to maintain or restore international peace and security.

Article 40—In order to prevent an aggravation of the situation, the Security Council may, before making the recommendations or deciding upon the measures provided for in Article 41, call upon the parties concerned to comply with such provisional measures as it deems necessary or desirable. Such provisional measures shall be without prejudice to the rights, claims, or position of the parties concerned. The Security Council shall duly take account of failure to comply with such provisional measures.

Article 41—The Security Council may decide what measures not involving the use of armed force are to be employed to give effect to its decisions, and it may call upon members of the United Nations to apply such measures. These may include complete or partial interruptions of economic relations and of rail, sea, air, postal, telegraphic, radio, and other means of communication, and the severance of diplomatic relations.

Article 42—Should the Security Council consider that measures provided for in Article 41 would be inadequate, or have proved to be inadequate, it may take such action by air, sea or land forces as may be necessary to maintain or restore international peace and security. Such action may include demonstrations, blockade, and other operations by air, sea or land forces of members of the United Nations.

Article 43—1. All members of the United Nations, in order to contribute to the maintenance of international peace and security, undertake to make available to the Security Council, on its call and in accordance with a special agreement or agreements, armed forces, assistance, and facilities, including rights of passage, necessary for the purpose of maintaining international peace and security.

2. Such agreement or agreements shall govern the numbers and types of forces, their degree of readiness and general location, and the nature of the facilities and assistance to be provided.

3. The agreement or agreements shall be negotiated as soon as possible on the initiative of the Security Council. They shall be concluded between the Security Council and member states or between the Security Council and groups of member states and shall be subject to ratification by the signatory states in accordance with their constitutional processes.

Article 44—When the Security Council has decided to use force it shall, before calling upon a member not represented on it to provide armed forces in fulfillment of the obligations assumed under Article 43, invite that member, if the member so desires, to participate in the decisions of the Security Council concerning the employment of contingents of that member's armed forces.

Article 45—In order to enable the United Nations to take urgent military measures, members shall hold immediately available national air force contingents for combined international enforcement action. The strength and degree of readiness of these contingents and plans for their combined action shall be determined, within the limits laid down in the special agreement or agreements referred to in Article 43, by the Security Council with the assistance of the Military Staff Committee.

Article 46—Plans for the application of armed force shall be made by the Security Council with the assistance of the Military Staff Committee.

Article 47—1. There shall be established a Military Staff Committee to advise and assist the Security Council on all questions relating to the Security Council's military requirements for the maintenance of international peace and security, the employment and command of forces placed at its disposal, the regulation of armaments, and possible disarmament.

2. The Military Staff Committee shall consist of the Chiefs of Staff of the permanent members of the Security Council or their representatives. Any member of the United Nations not permanently represented on the committee shall be invited by the committee to be associated with it when the efficient discharge of the committee's responsibilities requires the participation of that member in its work.

3. The Military Staff Committee shall be responsible, under the Security Council, for the strategic direction of any armed forces placed at the disposal of the Security Council. Questions relating to the command of such forces shall be worked out subsequently.

4. The Military Staff Committee, with the authorization of the Security Council and after consultation with appropriate regional agencies, may establish regional subcommittees.

Article 48—1. The action required to carry out the decisions of the Security Council for the maintenance of international peace and security shall be taken by all the members of the United Nations, or by some of them, as the Security Council may determine.

2. Such decisions shall be carried out by the members of the United Nations directly and through their action in the appropriate international agencies of which they are members.

Article 49—The members of the United Nations shall join in affording mutual assistance in carrying out the measures decided upon by the Security Council.

Article 50—If preventive or enforcement measures against any state are taken by the Security Council, any other state, whether a member of the United Nations or not, which finds itself confronted with special economic problems arising from the carrying out of those measures shall have the right to consult the Security Council with regard to a solution of those problems.

Article 51—Nothing in the present charter shall impair the inherent right of individual or collective self-defense, if an armed attack occurs against a member of the organization, until the Security Council has taken the measures necessary to maintain international peace and security. Measures taken by members in the exercise of this right of self-defense shall be immediately reported to the Security Council and shall not in any way affect the authority and responsibility of the Security Council under the present charter to take at any time such action as it may deem necessary in order to maintain or restore international peace and security.

CHAPTER VIII

REGIONAL ARRANGEMENTS

Article 52—1. Nothing in the present Charter precludes the existence of regional arrangements or agencies for dealing with such matters relating to the maintenance of international peace and security as are appropriate for regional action, provided that such arrangements or agencies and their activities are consistent with the purposes and principles of the organization.

2. The members of the United Nations entering into such arrangements or constituting such agencies shall make every effort to achieve peaceful settlement of local disputes through such regional arrangements or by such regional agencies before referring them to the Security Council.

3. The Security Council should encourage the development of peaceful settlement of local disputes through such regional arrangements or by such regional agencies either on the initiative of the states concerned or by reference from the Security Council.

4. This article in no way impairs the application of Articles 34 and 35.

Article 53—1. The Security Council shall, where appropriate, utilize such arrangements or agencies for enforcement action under its authority. But no enforcement action shall be taken under regional arrangements or by regional agencies without the authorization of the Security Council, with the exception of measures against any enemy state, as described below, provided for pursuant to Article 107, or in regional arrangements directed against renewal of aggressive policy on the part of any such state, until such time as the organization may, on request of the governments concerned, be charged with the responsibility for preventing further aggression by such a state.

2. The term "enemy state" as used in Paragraph 1 of this article applies to any state which during the second World War has been an enemy of any signatory of the present charter.

Article 54—The Security Council shall at all times be kept fully informed of activities undertaken, or in contemplation, under regional arrangements or by regional agencies for the maintenance of international peace and security.

CHAPTER IX INTERNATIONAL ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COOPERATION

Article 55—With a view to the creation of conditions of stability and well-being which are necessary for peaceful and friendly relations among nations based on respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of people, the United Nations shall promote:

(a) Higher standards of living, full employment, and conditions of economic and social progress and development;

(b) Solutions of international economic, social, health and related problems and international cultural and educational cooperation and

(c) Universal respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion.

Article 56—All members pledge themselves to take joint and separate action in cooperation with the organization for the achievement of the purposes set forth in Article 55.

Article 57—1. The various specialized agencies established by inter-governmental agreement, and having wide international responsibilities as defined in their basic instruments in economic, social, cultural, educational, health and related fields, shall be brought into relationship with the United Nations in accordance with the provisions of Article 63.

2. Specialized agencies thus brought into relationship with the organization are hereinafter referred to as "the specialized agencies."

Article 58—The organization shall make recommendations for the coordination of the policies and activities of the specialized agencies.

Article 59—The organization shall, where appropriate, initiate negotiations among the States concerned for the creation of any new specialized agency required for the accomplishment of the purposes set forth in Article 55.

Article 60—Responsibility for the discharge of the organization's functions set forth in this chapter shall be vested in the General Assembly and, under the authority of the General Assembly, in the Economic and Social Council, which shall have for this purpose the powers set forth in Chapter X.

CHAPTER X ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL COMPOSITION

Article 61—1. The Economic and Social Council shall consist of eighteen members of the United Nations elected by the General Assembly.

2. Subject to the provisions of Paragraph 3, six members of the Economic and Social Council shall be elected each year for a term of three years. A retiring member shall be eligible for immediate re-election.

3. At the first election, eighteen members of the Economic and Social Council shall be chosen. The term of office of six members so chosen shall expire at the end of one year, and of six other members at the end of two years, in accordance with arrangements made by the General Assembly.

4. Each member of the Economic and Social Council shall have one representative.

FUNCTIONS AND POWERS

Article 62—1. The Economic and Social Council may make or initiate studies and reports with respect to international economic, social, cultural, educational, health, and related matters and may make recommendations with respect to any such matters to the General Assembly, to the members of the United Nations, and to the specialized agencies concerned.

2. It may make recommendations for the purpose of promoting respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all.

3. It may prepare draft conventions for submission to the General Assembly, with respect to matters falling within its competence.

4. It may call, in accordance with the rules prescribed by the United Nations, international conferences on matters falling within its competence.

Article 63—1. The Economic and Social Council may enter into an agreement, approved by the General Assembly, with any of the agencies referred to in Article 57, defining the terms on which the agency concerned shall be brought into relationship with the United Nations.

2. It may coordinate the activities of the specialized agencies through consultation with and recommendations to such agencies and through recommendations to the General Assembly and to the members of the United Nations.

Article 64—1. The Economic and Social Council is authorized to take appropriate steps to obtain regular reports from the specialized agencies. It may make arrangements with the members of the United Nations and with the specialized agencies to obtain reports on the steps taken to give effect to its own recommendations and falling within its competence which are made by the General Assembly.

2. It may communicate its observance on these reports to the General Assembly.

Article 65—The Economic and Social Council may furnish information to the Security Council and shall assist the Security Council upon its request.

Article 66—1. The Economic and Social Council shall perform such functions as fall within its competence in connection with the carrying out of the recommendations of the General Assembly.

2. It may with the approval of the General Assembly perform services at the request of the members of the United Nations and at the request of the specialized agencies.

3. It may perform such other functions as are specified elsewhere in the present Charter and such functions as may be assigned to it by the General Assembly.

VOTING

Article 67—1. Each member of the Economic and Social Council shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the Economic and Social Council shall be taken by a majority of the members present and voting.

PROCEDURE

Article 68—The Economic and Social Council shall set up commissions in economic and social fields and for the promotion of human rights, and such other commissions as may be required for the performance of its functions.

Article 69—The Economic and Social Council shall invite any member of the United Nations to participate, without vote, in its deliberations on any matter of particular concern to that member.

Article 70—The Economic and Social Council may make arrangements for representatives of the specialized agencies to participate, without vote, in its deliberations and in those of the commissions established by it, and for its representatives to participate in the deliberations of the specialized agencies.

Article 71—The Economic and Social Council may make suitable arrangements for consultation with non-governmental organizations which are concerned with matters within its competence. Such arrangements may be made with international organizations, and, where appropriate, with national organizations after consultation with the member of the United Nations concerned.

Article 72—1. The Economic and Social Council shall adopt its own rules of procedure, including the method of selecting its president.

2. The Economic and Social Council shall meet as required in accordance with its rules, which shall include provision for the convening of meetings on request of a majority of its members.

CHAPTER XI

DECLARATION REGARDING

NON-SELF-GOVERNING TERRITORIES

Article 73—Members of the United Nations which have or assume responsibilities for the administration of territories whose peoples have not yet attained a full measure of self-government recognize the principle that the interests of the inhabitants of these territories are paramount, and accept as a sacred trust the obligation to promote to the utmost, within the system of international peace and security established by the present charter, the well-being of the inhabitants of these territories, and, to this end:

(a) To insure, with due respect for the culture of the peoples concerned, their political, economic, social, and educational advancement, their just treatment, and their protection against abuses;

(b) To develop self-government, to take due account of the political aspirations of the peoples, and to assist them in the progressive development of their free political institutions, according to the particular circumstances of each territory and its peoples and their varying stages of advancement;

(c) To promote international peace and security; to encourage research, and to cooperate with one another and with appropriate international bodies with a view to the practical achievement of the social, economic, and scientific purposes set forth in this paragraph; and

(e) To transmit regularly to the secretary general for information purposes, subject to such limitation as security and constitutional considerations may require, statistical and other information of a technical nature relating to economic, social, and educational conditions in the territories for which they are respectively responsible other than those territories to which Chapters XII and XIII apply.

Article 74—Members of the United Nations agree that their policy in respect to the territories, to which this chapter applies, no less than in respect of their metropolitan areas, must be based on the general principle of good-neighborliness, due account being taken of the interests and well-being of the rest of the world, in social, economic and commercial matters.

CHAPTER XII INTERNATIONAL TRUSTEESHIP SYSTEM

Article 75—The United Nations shall establish under its authority an international trusteeship system for the administration and supervision of such territories as may be placed thereunder by subsequent individual agreements. These territories are hereafter referred to as trust territories.

Article 76—The basic objectives of the trusteeship system in accordance with the purposes of the United Nations laid down in Article 1 of the present Charter, shall be:

(a) To further international peace and security;
(b) To promote the political, economic, social and educational advancement of the inhabitants of the trust territories, and their progressive development toward self-government or independence as may be appropriate to the particular circumstances of each territory and its peoples and the freely expressed wishes of the peoples concerned, and as may be provided by the terms of each trusteeship agreement;

(c) To encourage respect for human rights and for fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion, and to encourage recognition of the interdependence of the peoples of the world; and

(d) To insure equal treatment in social, economic and commercial matters for all members of the United Nations and their nationals, and also equal treatment for the latter in the administration of justice, without prejudice to the attainment of the foregoing objectives, and subject to the provisions of Article 80.

Article 77—1. The trusteeship system shall apply to such territories in the following categories as may be placed thereunder by means of trusteeship agreements:

(a) Territories now held under mandate;
(b) Territories which may be detached from enemy states as a result of the second World War; and

(c) Territories voluntarily placed under the system by states responsible for their administration.

2. It will be a matter for subsequent agreement as to which territories in the foregoing categories will be brought under the trusteeship system and upon what terms.

Article 78—The trusteeship system shall not apply to territories which have become members of the United Nations, relationship among which should be based on respect for the principle of sovereign equality.

Article 79—The terms of trusteeship for each territory to be placed under the trusteeship system, including any alteration or amendment, shall be agreed upon by the states directly concerned including the mandatory power in the case of territories held under mandate by a member of the United Nations, and shall be approved as provided for in Articles 83 and 85.

Article 80—1. Except as may be agreed upon in individual trusteeship agreements made in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, placing each territory under the trusteeship system, and until such agreements have been concluded, nothing in this chapter shall be construed in or of itself to alter in any manner the rights whatsoever of any states or any peoples or the terms of existing international instruments to which members of the United Nations may respectively be parties.

2. Paragraph 1 of this article shall not be interpreted as giving grounds for delay or postponement of the negotiation and conclusion of such agreements for placing mandated and other territories under the trusteeship system as provided for in Article 77.

Article 81—The trusteeship agreement shall in each case include the terms under which the trust territory will be administered and designate the authority which shall exercise the administration of the trust territory. Such authority, hereafter called the administering authority, may be one or more states of the United Nations itself.

Article 82—There may be designated, in any trusteeship agreement, a strategic area or areas which may include part or all of the trust territory to which the agreement applies, without prejudice to any special agreement or agreements made under Article 43.

Article 83—1. All functions of the United Nations relating to strategic areas, including the approval of the terms of the trusteeship agreements and of their alteration or amendment, shall be exercised by the Security Council.

2. The basic objectives set forth in Article 76 shall be applicable to the people of each strategic area.

3. The Security Council shall, subject to the provisions of the trusteeship agreements and without prejudice to security considerations, avail itself of the assistance of the Trusteeship Council to perform those functions of the United Nations under the trusteeship system relating to political, economic, social and educational matters in the strategic areas.

Article 84—It shall be the duty of the administering authority to insure that the trust territory shall play its part in the maintenance of international peace and security. To this end the administering authority may make use of volunteer forces, facilities, and assistance from the trust territory in carrying out the obligations toward the Security Council undertaken in this regard by the administering authority, as well as for local defense and the maintenance of law and order within the trust territory.

Article 85—1. The functions of the United Nations with regard to trusteeship agreements for all areas not designated as strategic, including the approval of the terms of the trusteeship agreements and of their alteration or amendment, shall be exercised by the General Assembly.

2. The Trusteeship Council, operating under the authority of the General Assembly, shall assist the General Assembly in carrying out these functions.

CHAPTER XIII

THE TRUSTEESHIP COUNCIL COMPOSITION

Article 86—1. The Trusteeship Council shall consist of the following members of the United Nations:

(a) Those members administering trust territories;

(b) Such of those members mentioned by name in Article 23 as are not administering trust territories; and

(c) As many other members elected for three-year terms by the General Assembly as may be necessary to insure that the total number of members of the Trusteeship Council is equally divided between those members of the United Nations which administer trust territories and those which do not.

2. Each member of the Trusteeship Council shall designate one specially qualified person to represent it therein.

FUNCTIONS AND POWERS

Article 87—The General Assembly and, under its authority, the Trusteeship Council, in carrying out their functions may:

(a) Consider reports submitted by the administering authority;

(b) Accept petitions and examine them in consultation with the administering authority;

(c) Provide for periodic visits to the respective trust territories at times agreed upon within the administering authority; and

(d) Take these and other actions in conformity with the terms of the trusteeship agreements.

Article 88—The Trusteeship Council shall formulate a questionnaire on the political, economic, social and educational advancement of the inhabitants of each trust territory, and the administering authority for each trust territory within the competence of the General Assembly shall make an annual report to the General Assembly upon the basis of such questionnaire.

VOTING

Article 89—1. Each member of the Trusteeship Council shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the Trusteeship Council shall be taken by a majority of the members present and voting.

PROCEDURE

Article 90—1. The Trusteeship Council shall adopt its own rules of procedure, including the method of selecting its president.

2. The Trusteeship Council shall meet as required in accordance with its rules, which shall include provisions for the convening of meetings on the request of a majority of its members.

Article 91—The Trusteeship Council shall, when appropriate, avail itself of the assistance of the Economic and Social Council and of the specialized agencies in regard to matters with which they are respectively concerned.

CHAPTER XIV

THE INTERNATIONAL COURT OF JUSTICE

Article 92—The International Court of Justice shall be the principal judicial organ of the United Nations. It shall function in accordance with the annexed statute, which is based upon the statute of the Permanent Court of International Justice and forms an integral part of the present chapter.

Article 93—1. All members of the United Nations are ipso facto parties to the statute of the International Court of Justice.

2. A State which is not a member of the United Nations may become a party to the statute of the International Court of Justice on conditions to be determined in each case by the General Assembly upon recommendation of the Security Council.

Article 94—1. Each member of the United Nations undertakes to comply with the decision of the International Court of Justice in any case to which it is a party.

2. If any party to a case fails to perform the obligations incumbent upon it under a judgment rendered by the court, the other party may have recourse to the Security Council, which may, if it deems necessary, make recommendations or decide upon measures to be taken to give effect to the judgment.

Article 95—Nothing in the present Charter shall prevent members of the United Nations from entrusting the solution of their differences to other tribunals by virtue of agreements already in existence or which may be concluded in the future.

Article 96—1. The General Assembly or the Security Council may request the International Court of Justice to give an advisory opinion on any legal question.

2. Other organs of the United Nations and specialized agencies which may at any time be so authorized by the General Assembly, may also request advisory opinions of the court on legal questions arising within the scope of their activities.

CHAPTER XV THE SECRETARIAT

Article 97—There shall be a secretariat comprising a secretary general and such staff as the organization may require. The secretary general shall be appointed by the General Assembly on the recommendation of the Security Council. He shall be the chief administrative officer of the organization.

Article 98—The secretary general shall act in that capacity in all meetings of the General Assembly, of the Security Council, of the Economic and Social Council and of the Trusteeship Council, and shall perform such other functions as are entrusted to him by these organs. The secretary general shall make an annual report to the General Assembly on the work of the organization.

Article 99—The secretary general may bring to the attention of the Security Council any matter which in his opinion may threaten the maintenance of international peace and security.

Article 100—1. In the performance of their duties the secretary general and the staff shall not seek or receive instructions from any Government or from any other authority external to the organization. They shall refrain from any action which might reflect on their position as international officials responsible only to the organization.

2. Each member of the United Nations undertakes to respect the exclusively international character of the responsibilities of the secretary general and the staff, and not to seek to influence them in the discharge of their responsibilities.

Article 101—1. The staff shall be appointed by the secretary general under regulations established by the General Assembly.

2. Appropriate staff shall be permanently assigned to the Economic and Social Council, the Trusteeship Council, and as required, to other organs of the United Nations. These staffs shall form a part of the Secretariat.

3. The paramount consideration in the employment of the staff and in the determination of the conditions of service shall be the necessity of securing the highest standards of efficiency, competence and integrity. Due regard shall be paid to the importance of recruiting the staff on as wide a geographical basis as possible.

CHAPTER XVI MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

Article 102—1. Every treaty and every international agreement entered into by any member of the United Nations after the present charter comes into force shall as soon as possible be registered with the Secretariat and published by it.

2. No party to any such treaty or international agreement which has not been registered in accordance with the provisions of Paragraph 1 of this article may invoke that treaty or agreement before any organ of the United Nations.

Article 103—In the event of a conflict between the obligations of the members of the United Nations under the present charter and any other international obligations to which they are subject, their obligations under the present charter shall prevail.

Article 104—The organization shall enjoy in the territory of each of its members such legal capacity as may be necessary for the exercise of its functions and the fulfillment of its purposes.

Article 105—1. The organization shall enjoy in the territory of each of its members such privileges and immunities as are necessary for the fulfillment of its purposes.

2. Representatives of the members of the United Nations and officials of the organization shall similarly enjoy such privileges and immunities as are necessary for the independent exercise of their functions in connection with the organization.

3. The General Assembly may make recommendations with a view to determining the details of the application of Paragraphs 1 and 2 of this article or may propose conventions to the members of the United Nations for this purpose.

CHAPTER XVII TRANSITIONAL SECURITY ARRANGEMENTS

Article 106—Pending the coming into force of such special agreements referred to in Article 43, as in the opinion of the Security Council enable it to begin the exercise of its responsibilities under Article 42, the parties to the four-nation declaration signed at Moscow, Oct. 30, 1943, and France, shall, in accordance with the provisions of Paragraph 5 of that declaration, consult with one another and, as occasion requires, with other members of the organization with a view to such joint action on behalf of the organization as may be necessary for the purpose of maintaining international peace and security.

Article 107—Nothing in the present charter shall invalidate or preclude action in relation to any state which during the second World War has been an enemy of any signatory to the present charter, taken or authorized as a result of that war by the governments having responsibility for such action.

CHAPTER XVIII AMENDMENTS

Article 108—Amendments to the present charter shall come into force for all members of the organization when they have been adopted by a vote of two-thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two-thirds of the members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council.

Article 109—1. A general conference of the members of the United Nations for the purpose of reviewing the present charter may be held at a date and place to be fixed by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly and by a vote of any seven members of the Security Council. Each member of the United Nations shall have one vote in the conference.

2. Any alteration of the present charter recommended by a two-thirds vote of the conference shall take effect when ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two-thirds of the members of the United Nations including all the permanent members of the Security Council.

3. If such a conference has not been held before the tenth annual session of the General Assembly following the coming into force of the present charter the proposal to call such a conference shall be placed on the agenda of that session of the General Assembly, and the conference shall be held if so decided by a majority vote of the members of the General Assembly and by a vote of any seven members of the Security Council.

CHAPTER XIX RATIFICATION AND SIGNATURE

Article 110—1. The present charter shall be ratified by the signatory states in accordance with their respective constitutional processes.

2. The ratifications shall be deposited with the Government of the United States of America, which shall notify all the signatory states of each deposit as well as the secretary general of the organization when he has been elected.

3. The present charter shall come into force upon the deposit of ratifications by the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and the United States of America, and by a majority of the other signatory states.

4. The states signatory to the present charter which ratify it after it has come into force will become original members of the United Nations on the date of the deposit of their respective ratifications.

Article 111—The present charter, of which the Chinese, English, French, Russian and Spanish texts are equally authentic, shall remain deposited in the archives of the Government of the United States of America. Duly certified copies thereof shall be transmitted by that Government to the Governments of the other signatory states.

In faith whereof the representatives of the United Nations have signed the present charter.

Done in the city of San Francisco the twenty-sixth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and forty-five.

The United States Immigration Law

Sources: The Federal Statutes and Proclamations

Aliens seeking to enter the United States for permanent residence must apply for immigrant visas to consular officers of the United States at offices outside this country. They must present valid unexpired passports, or other suitable travel documents or documents of identity and nationality, if required.

Aliens desiring to sojourn in the United States (nonimmigrants) must apply for nonimmigrant visas to consular officers abroad (or, if residents of foreign contiguous territory, for border crossing identification cards to consular officers or immigration officers) and must present valid passports unless either or both those requirements have been waived.

All arriving aliens must be inspected at U. S. ports by officers of the Immigration and Naturalization Service of the Dept. of Justice. No alien, to whom a visa or other document has been issued, is entitled to enter if he is found to be inadmissible under the laws of the United States.

CLASSES OF ALIENS

Aliens entering the United States are divided into 3 classes: quota immigrants, nonquota immigrants, and nonimmigrants.

Quota immigrants. A quota immigrant is anyone who is not a nonquota immigrant. Aliens totaling 154,657 are admissible under quotas from specific quota areas. See Table p. 633.

Nonquota immigrants include:

(A) An immigrant who is the unmarried child under 21 or the spouse of a U. S. citizen.

(B) An immigrant, lawfully admitted for permanent residence, who is returning from a temporary visit abroad.

(C) An immigrant who was born in Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Haiti, the Dominican Republic, the Canal Zone, or an independent country of Central or South America, and his spouse or his unmarried children under 21, accompanying or following to join him.

When an immigrant is attributable by as much as one-half of his ancestry to a people or peoples indigenous to the Asia-Pacific triangle he is not within this nonquota status, but his unmarried children under 21 are, if accompanying or following to join him.

(D) An immigrant who was a U. S. citizen and may apply for reacquisition of citizenship under provisions relating to those who lost citizenship through marriage or service in foreign armies.

(E) An immigrant who for 2 years immediately preceding his application for admission has been a minister of a religious denomination, who wants to carry on his vocation, and whose services are needed by a bona fide organization in the U. S.; and his spouse or unmarried children under 21, accompanying or following to join him.

(F) An immigrant who is an active or honorably retired employe of the U. S. Government abroad, with 15 years of service, and his accompanying spouse and unmarried children under 21, if approved.

Nonimmigrants. A nonimmigrant is:

An ambassador or other diplomatic and consular officer accredited by a foreign government recognized de jure by the U. S. and accepted by the President or the Secretary of State, and his immediate family. Also other officials and employees, and their families, by reciprocity.

A principal resident representative of a foreign government recognized de jure by the U. S., which comes under the International Organizations Immunities Act, accredited resident members of his staff and their immediate families. Also other accredited representatives of foreign governments to international organizations, and their families, and officers, or employes of such organizations, personal attendants and their families.

An alien coming to perform temporary services requiring merit and ability, or other services if unemployed persons capable of performing such services cannot be found in this country, or one who is coming for industrial training.

By reciprocity, an alien who is a bona fide representative of foreign press, radio, film or other information media, who enters to engage in such vocation, and the spouse and unmarried children under 21 who either accompany or follow him.

An alien visiting the U. S. temporarily.

An alien in continuous transit through the U. S., or one entitled to travel between U. N. Hq. and foreign countries.

An alien student who enters to study at a recognized institution, approved by the Attorney General after consultation with the Office of Education.

An alien crewman on a vessel other than a fishing vessel based on the U. S., or on aircraft, who lands and departs via that vessel or aircraft.

EXCLUDED ALIENS

The following aliens are excluded:

Persons feeble-minded, insane, previously insane, psychopathic, epileptic, mentally defective; also those afflicted with tuberculosis, leprosy or other dangerous contagion, or having a physical defect impairing the ability to earn a living; also those who accompany them to protect them.

Also chronic alcoholics, narcotic drug addicts, persons convicted of narcotic violations or suspected of illicit traffic in prohibited drugs.

Also paupers, beggars, stowaways; those convicted of or admitting moral turpitude, other than a political offense, with certain exceptions for those under 18. Also those convicted of two or more offenses other than political and sentenced for a total of 5 years or more. Also prostitutes and those engaged in commercialized vice.

Persons seeking to enter the U. S. to perform skilled or unskilled labor, if U. S. workers are available for such labor and if the employment of aliens would adversely affect them, with the exception of aliens whose admission would benefit the nation.

The Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952 permits an alien to arrange for his employment before he comes to the U. S., and enables him to submit evidence that he is not likely to become a public charge. Only if the Secretary of Labor certifies that there exists an oversupply of a given skill in a given locality will the immigrant be barred.

Also excluded are those who try to enter the U. S. by fraud and misrepresentation, and those who abet such acts; those over 16 and physically capable of reading who cannot read and understand some language or dialect; those trying to enter the country from contiguous foreign territory or adjacent islands within two years after arrival there on a transport line that has not complied with the U. S. immigration laws.

Also those who left the U. S. to avoid military service in time of war or national emergency, unless they were nonimmigrants.

SUBVERSIVE ACTIVITIES

Excluded from the United States are persons who seek to enter to engage in activities against the public interest and likely to endanger the welfare, safety and security of the country. Any persons who probably would engage in espionage, sabotage, disorder or other activities inimical to the U. S., or who are members of organizations that must register under the Subversive Activities Control Act of 1950, are barred.

Also excluded are persons—except certain nonimmigrant officials of foreign governments—who are or have been anarchists, opposed to organized government, members of or affiliated with a communist or other totalitarian party; advocates of world communism or the establishment of a totalitarian dictatorship in the U. S.; those who teach or advocate the overthrow of the U. S. Government by force or violence or other unconstitutional means and advocate sabotage, destruction of property and killing of government officials, or who are members of or affiliated with organizations with these aims.

Involuntary membership or affiliation with such organizations is not considered a reason for exclusion, nor is membership or affiliation by anyone under 16, or by operation of law, or for obtaining employment, food rations and other essentials of living. The Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952 permits the issuance of a visa to a former voluntary member of a proscribed organization if the alien since the termination of his membership and for at least 5 years before the date of his application for a visa has been actively opposed to the principles of that organization.

REVISION OF 1954

An Act of Congress revising the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952 (McCarren-Walter Act) was signed by President Eisenhower Sept. 3, 1954. It was intended to overcome hardships on aliens worked by certain strict provisions of the original law. It provides that a petty offender who may have committed a misdemeanor involving moral turpitude only once and is otherwise admissible may receive a visa for entry into the United States.

Rep. Francis E. Walter (D.-Pa.) explained that previously persons who because of starvation in Germany and elsewhere had taken a loaf of bread or failed to return a ration card were barred from entering the United States along with the worst of criminals. These persons included wives of American soldiers, who had married abroad. It had become necessary to get special action by Congress on each individual case. Under the 1954 amendment consular offices abroad will have the right to grant visas despite such disabilities.

Immigration from the close of the Revolutionary War to 1820 is estimated at 250,000.

Special Immigration Quotas for Refugee Relief

The Refugee Relief Act was signed by President Eisenhower Aug. 7, 1953, authorizing 214,000 special-quota immigrant visas to permit entry of that number of refugee aliens above the normal quota within 3 years, ending Dec. 31, 1956. Many of these refugees are displaced persons and orphans, including some who escaped from Communist-dominated countries. The Act also authorized the issuance of 209,000 special nonquota immigrant visas and provided for the adjustment of status to that of permanent residents of 5,000 aliens in the United States in a temporary status.

On Aug. 31, 1954, President Eisenhower signed an amendment to the Refugee Act of 1953, effective Sept. 3, 1954. This revised the quotas for Italy, Greece and the Netherlands, so that previous allocations for refugees can be issued interchangeably for both refugees and close relatives of U. S. citizens and resident aliens.

No refugee may enter the U. S. without an assurance of housing, employment and against becoming a public charge. These conditions are met under the direction of the Governors' Advisory Committees for Refugee Relief. The governors acted at the request of President Eisenhower who personally sponsored the legislation. In addition a number of religious and welfare organizations had been certified by the Dept. of State and were procuring the requisite assurances.

Relatives applying under the quotas originally allocated for refugees will be required to have satisfactory assurances of housing and employment from their sponsors. Sponsors will send these directly to the U. S. consulates abroad where their relatives are applying for immigration.

Alien relatives can qualify only if they are members of the immediate family of the sponsor in the United States. Spouses or unmarried sons or daughters under 21 may be sponsored by spouses or parents lawfully admitted to residence in this country. Parents, brothers, sisters, sons or daughters may be sponsored by American citizens who are over 21.

The amendment exempts orphans from the requirement for a certificate of readmission under which they could be returned to the country where the visa was issued if it were proved that the visa had been obtained through fraud. Since a person must be under 10 years old to qualify under the world-wide quota of 4,000 orphans, this safeguard was thought unnecessary.

The administrator of the Refugee Relief Act is Scott McLeod. As of Sept. 2, 1955, the State Dept. reported that 33,523 persons had entered the U. S. under the Refugee Relief program. Nearly 20,000 more persons had received visas to enter but had not arrived by that time. The total number granted visas, 52,060, was a gain of 35,018 over the total on Jan. 1, 1955. Therefore one-fourth of the quota set by the law had been met.

Restitution of Property Seized by Nazi Government and Armies

The Federal Republic of Germany (West Germany), under provisions of the Settlement Convention, will honor claims of citizens of the United States and of other nations represented in the United Nations, for the return or restoration of property taken by the Nazi government. Claims must be filed before May 5, 1956, with the Bundesamt für die Prüfung ausländischer Rückgabe und Wiederherstellungsansprüche, Rosenberg, Bonn, Germany.

The Federal Republic of Germany also has established an agency for restitution of property removed by the Nazi armies during World War II. This agency has charge of searching for and returning jewelry, silverware, antique furniture and cultural property removed from territory occupied by Germany, and deciding on compensation if such property was used or destroyed. Address of the agency: Bundesamt für Äussere Restitutenen, 63 Luisenstrasse, Bad Homburg v. d. H., Germany.

Law Defining United States Nationals and Citizens

Source: United States Department of Justice

The Immigration and Nationality Act, enacted 1952 and amended 1954, distinguishes between citizens at birth and those whose citizenship was acquired after birth. The latter are designated naturalized citizens. It also distinguishes between citizens and noncitizen nationals who, though not citizens, owe permanent allegiance to this country.

Sec. 301. (a) The following shall be nationals and citizens of the United States at birth:

(1) A person born in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof.

(2) A person born in the United States to a member of an Indian, Eskimo, Aleutian, or other aboriginal tribe: Provided, that the granting of citizenship under this subsection shall not in any manner impair or otherwise affect the right of such person to tribal or other property.

(3) A person born outside the United States and its outlying possessions of parents both of whom are citizens and one of whom has had a residence in the United States, or one of its outlying possessions, prior to the birth.

(4) A person born outside the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is a citizen of the United States who has been physically present in the United States or one of its outlying possessions for a continuous period of one year prior to the birth, and the other of whom is a national, but not a citizen of the United States.

(5) A person born in an outlying possession of the United States of parents one of whom is a citizen of the United States who has been physically present in the United States, or one of its outlying possessions, for a continuous period of one year at any time prior to the birth.

(6) A person of unknown parentage found in the United States while under the age of 5 years, until shown, prior to his attaining the age of 21 years, not to have been born in the United States.

(7) A person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a total of not less than 10 years, at least 5 of them after the age of 14. The parent's period of service in the Armed Forces of the United States may be included in computing the total.

Citizenship Retention

(b) Any person who is a national and citizen of the United States at birth under paragraph (7), shall lose his nationality and citizenship unless he shall come to the United States prior to attaining the age of 23 years and remain at least 5 years: Provided, that such physical presence follows the age of 14 and precedes the age of 28.

(c) Subsection (b) shall apply to a person born abroad subsequent to May 24, 1934: Provided, however, that nothing contained in this subsection shall be construed to alter or affect the citizenship of any person born abroad subsequent to May 24, 1934, who, prior to the effective date of this act, has taken up a residence in the United States before attaining the age of 16 years, and thereafter, complies with the residence requirements for retention of citizenship.

Puerto Rico

Sec. 302. All persons born in Puerto Rico on or after April 11, 1899, and prior to Jan. 13, 1941, subject to U.S. jurisdiction, residing on Jan. 13, 1941, in Puerto Rico or other territory over which the United States exercises rights of sovereignty and not U.S. citizens under any other act, are declared to be citizens of the United States as of January 13, 1941. All persons born in Puerto Rico on or after January 13, 1941, and subject to U.S. jurisdiction, are citizens at birth.

Canal Zone and Republic of Panama

Sec. 303. (a) Any person born in the Canal Zone on or after Feb. 26, 1904, whose father or mother was a U.S. citizen when he was born, is a citizen of the United States.

(b) Any person born in the Republic of Panama on or after Feb. 26, 1904, whose father or mother when he was born was a U.S. citizen employed by the U.S. Government or by the Panama Railroad Co., or its successor, is a citizen of the U.S.

Alaska

Sec. 304. A person born in Alaska on or after March 30, 1867, except a noncitizen Indian, is a U.S. citizen at birth. A noncitizen Indian born in Alaska on or after March 30, 1867, and prior to June 2, 1924, is a U.S. citizen as of June 2, 1924. An Indian born later in Alaska is a citizen at birth.

Hawaii

Sec. 305. A person born in Hawaii on or after Aug. 12, 1898, and before April 30, 1900, is a U.S. citizen as of April 30, 1900. A person born in Hawaii on or after April 30, 1900, is a citizen at birth. A person who was a citizen of the Republic of Hawaii on Aug. 12, 1898, is a U.S. citizen as of April 30, 1900.

Virgin Islands

Sec. 306 specifies that all persons born in the Virgin Islands on or after Jan. 17, 1917, and prior to Feb. 25, 1927, subject to U.S. jurisdiction, are U.S. citizens as of the later date, and all persons born there on or after Feb. 25, 1927, under U.S. jurisdiction, are U.S. citizens at birth. The law also extends U.S. citizenship to natives of the Virgin Islands, under conditions, who on Jan. 17, 1917, resided in those islands or in the U.S. and were residing in those islands, the U.S., or Puerto Rico on Feb. 25, 1927, and were not citizens of any other foreign country.

Guam

Sec. 307 specifies that U.S. citizenship shall be given all inhabitants of Guam who on April 11, 1899, were Spanish subjects who continued to reside in Guam or other U.S. territory after that date, without having preserved or acquired foreign nationality; all persons born in Guam who resided there on April 11, 1899, who after that date continued to reside there or in other U.S. territory, without preserving or acquiring foreign nationality; all persons born in Guam on or after April 11, 1899, subject to the jurisdiction of the U.S., provided that no steps were taken to preserve or acquire a foreign nationality, if birth was before Aug. 1, 1950.

Nationals not Citizens

Sec. 308. Unless otherwise provided, the following are nationals, but not citizens, at birth:

(1) A person born in an outlying possession of the United States on or after the date of formal acquisition of such possession;

(2) A person born outside the United States and its outlying possessions of parents both of whom are nationals, but not citizens, of the United States, and have had a residence in the United States, or one of its outlying possessions prior to the birth of such persons;

(3) A person of unknown parentage found in an outlying possession of the U.S. while under the age of 5 years, until shown, prior to his attaining the age of 21, not to have been born there.

Children Born out of Wedlock

Sec. 309. (a) The provisions of paragraphs (3), (4), (5), and (7) of section 301 (a), and of paragraph (2) of section 308, apply as of the date of birth to a child born out of wedlock on or after the effective date of this Act, if the paternity of the child is established while the child is under the age of 21 by legitimation.

(b) Except as otherwise provided in section 405, the provisions of section 301 (a) (7) shall apply to a child born out of wedlock on or after January 13, 1941, and prior to the effective date of this Act, as of the date of birth, if the paternity of such child is established before or after the effective date of this Act and while such child is under the age of twenty-one years by legitimation.

(c) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (a) of this section, a person born, on or after the effective date of this Act, outside the United States and out of wedlock shall be held to have acquired at birth the nationality status of his mother, if the mother had the nationality of the United States at the time of such person's birth, and if the mother had previously been physically present in the United States or one of its outlying possessions for a continuous period of one year.

ON MARRYING A FOREIGNER

Under American law, an American woman, native-born, who marries a foreigner, does not lose her American citizenship by virtue of her marriage. However, there are countries that do not recognize this rule. France, for instance, assumes that any woman who marries a French citizen also becomes a citizen of France, unless she specifically gives notice otherwise.

An American woman, married to a foreigner, may lose her citizenship by other means. She can renounce it, or she can forfeit it by taking an official position with a foreign government. To clarify her position in these and other instances she should consult the Dept. of State.

FEDERAL INCOME TAX LAW

Internal Revenue Code for Individuals, Estates and Gifts

The Internal Revenue Code of 1954 was enacted by the 83rd Congress, 2nd Session, and approved by the President Aug. 16, 1954. It constitutes a major revision of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 and amendments. It is published as Vol. 68A of the U. S. Statutes at Large and is distributed by the Supt. of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C.

WHO FILES REPORTS AND HOW

Who Must File—Every citizen with a gross income of $600 or more must file an income tax report. Anyone who has attained the age of 65 before the close of the taxable year must make a return only if his or her gross income is $1,200 or more.

What Form to Use—Form 1040A is a card, for persons whose income is less than $5,000 and consists of wages reported on withholding slip, and not more than $100 from other sources. The Internal Revenue Service will figure the tax and send a bill or a refund.

Short Form 1040 may be used by persons whose income of less than $5,000 comes from diverse sources and who wish to enter certain deductions and credits, and find their own tax.

Long Form 1040 is used by those whose non-business deductions are more than 10% of income, and by all whose income is $5,000 or over. The taxpayer may take the standard deduction (10% of income but not more than $1,000) or itemize and claim the deductions.

DATES FOR FILING RETURNS

April 15 is the date for filing tax returns by individuals using the calendar year, and for payment of tax or of first quarterly installment of the estimated tax. Other installments to be paid June 15, Sept. 15 and Jan. 15.

April 15 is the date for filing declaration of estimated tax. Amended declarations may be filed June 15, Sept. 15 and Jan. 15.

A final return may be filed Jan. 31. Farmers may file a final return Feb. 15.

JOINT RETURN

A husband and wife may make a single return jointly, even if one has no income personally. Their tax will be twice the tax imposed if the income were cut in half.

A new provision stipulates that if one spouse dies, the survivor may compute his tax as though he filed a joint return for the first two taxable years following, provided he or she also was able to file a joint return the year of the death, and maintains in the household a home for a dependent child or stepchild. If the taxpayer remarries before the end of the taxable year these privileges are lost. An individual legally separated from spouse by divorce or separate maintenance is not considered married.

ESTIMATED TAX

Many who earn less than $5,000 need not file an estimate. Estimates are required from (1) Every single individual who expects to earn over $5,000 with not more than $100 not subject to withholding; (2) every head of a household or surviving spouse who expects to earn over $10,000; (3) every married couple who file a joint return and expect to have an aggregate of more than $10,000 income; (4) Anyone who expects to earn more than $100 from sources other than wages subject to withholding if income is expected to exceed $600, multiplied by the number of exemptions claimed, plus $400.

EXEMPTIONS FROM TAXATION

Personal exemption is $600.

Every individual has an exemption of $600, to be deducted from gross income. A husband and a wife are each entitled to a $600 exemption. A person 65 or over gets another exemption of $600. A blind person gets another exemption of $600.

Exemption for dependents, over one-half of whose support comes from the taxpayer, is $600, and now applies to child, stepchild or adopted child under 19; also to child, stepchild or adopted child who put in 5 mos. or more as full-time student at a recognized college or at farm training under educational supervision. This also applies to any non-relative if a member of the taxpayer's household and having his principal abode there.

The taxpayer gets the exemption for a dependent student even if the student earns part of his way, provided the taxpayer pays over half of the student's expenses. If the student gets a scholarship, this is not counted as earnings. This provision replaces the former regulation, which cancelled the exemption if the student earned $600.

WITHHOLDING TAXES

Every employer paying wages must deduct a tax equal to 18% of the amount by which the wages exceed the number of withholding exemptions, multiplied by the amount of one such exemption.

The employee must give his employer the number of his exemptions. If the employee has more than one exemption, he multiplies the number by the one exemption, which is designated as follows for the payroll period:

Weekly, $13; biweekly, $26; semimonthly, $28; monthly, $56; quarterly, $167; semiannually, $333; annually, $667; daily, $1.80.

SUPPORT OF DEPENDENT CHILD

A woman, a widower or a man legally separated or divorced, who cares for a child that is either under 12 or handicapped, may deduct not more than $600 for expenses for care of dependent if taxpayer has to work. No deduction is allowed for payments to another dependent as compensation.

If a wife is working, the deduction is allowed only if she and her husband file a joint return. If their adjusted gross income exceeds $4,500, the allowance will be reduced by the amount above $4,500. If the husband is incapable of self-support because handicapped, the limitations do not apply.

LIFE INSURANCE

Life insurance paid to survivors is not taxed. It becomes part of the gross estate if it is paid to the estate, or if the owner at his death possessed any of the "incidents of ownership," including a reversionary interest exceeding 5% of the value of the policy, or had reserved disposition.

Interest on life insurance left with the insurance company and paid to survivors at intervals is taxable as received. Formerly, if the life insurance was paid in fixed installments, the installment was tax-exempt. Under the 1954 law, if any interest is part of the installment payment, that interest is taxed, except that the surviving spouse (husband or wife) has an exemption of $1,000 in addition to the principal.

Under the former law, the proceeds of a policy were considered part of the insured's estate, if he had paid the premiums, even if ownership of the policy was elsewhere. Under the 1954 law this limitation is removed. The insured must, however, have no interest whatsoever in the policy.

DIVIDENDS

The first $50 in dividends need not be reported. If husband and wife both receive $50 their joint return need not report the first $100. For dividends received after July 31, 1954, a credit of 4% may be entered, provided it does not exceed 2% of the taxable income for 1954 and 4% of taxable income for years after 1954.

The credit does not apply to dividends from tax-exempt corporations, mutual savings banks, building and loan associations and several other categories specified in Sec. 116.

Dividends paid in stock or in stock rights with no change in proprietary interest are exempt from tax, except when paid in place of preferred stock dividends of the current or preceding year, and not part of recapitalization, or when the stockholder has an option to take stock or property.

DEDUCTIBLE MEDICAL EXPENSES

Expenses for medical care, not compensated for by insurance or other payment, are deductible by taxpayer, spouse or dependent if over 3% of adjusted gross income. If taxpayer or spouse are over 65 this limitation is not enforced, but applies only to dependent.

Medical care includes diagnosis, treatment and prevention of disease or affecting any structure or function of the body, and amounts paid for accident or health insurance.

Medicine and drugs may be included only if aggregate for them exceeds 1% of adjusted gross income.

In travel for medical purposes only transportation may be charged, not board and lodging.

Deductions for medical care must not exceed $2,500 multiplied by the number of exemptions allowed taxpayer (other than those related to age or blindness). Maximum deductible is $5,000 if taxpayer is single, not head of household, not surviving spouse, nor filing separate return though married, and $10,000 if taxpayer files joint return, or is head of household, or a surviving spouse.

Medical expenses for a decedent paid by his estate within one year after his death are treated as expenses of the taxpayer.

Medical and hospital benefits provided by the employer may be exempt from individual income tax. Wages paid in place of such benefits are exempt up to $100 a week.

DEDUCTIONS FOR CONTRIBUTIONS

The 1954 law has increased the amount that an individual may contribute. Any church or convention or association of churches, any educational organization supported by religious bodies or the public, and any organization providing medical or hospital care, medical research and education or agricultural research, may receive contributions up to 10% of the taxpayer's adjusted gross income; in addition the taxpayer may give 20% of his adjusted gross income to other charitable purposes. Thus the total allowable is 30%, if properly allocated.

The limitation does not apply to a taxpayer who in the taxable year and in 8 out of 10 preceding years paid contributions and income taxes that exceeded 90% of taxable income.

Added to organizations approved for contributions are non-profit cemeteries and burial companies.

No deduction for charity is allowed if the taxpayer makes a grant in trust by which he retains a reversionary interest in grant or income exceeding 5% of the value of the grant.

INTEREST

All interest paid or accrued on indebtedness is deductible.

If personal property is bought under a contract providing for payment by installments, and in which carrying charges are stated but interest is not ascertainable, then payments are held to include interest equal to 6% on unpaid balance.

PROVISIONS FOR SERVICE MEN

Members of the Armed Forces below rank of commissioned officer do not pay tax on pay for service while in a combat zone during an induction period or in hospital under such conditions.

They do pay tax on army pay if it was received for service outside a combat zone. If they serve part time in a combat zone and part time elsewhere, they pay tax for the latter service.

A commissioned officer has an exemption of $200 a month army pay while in a combat zone. By executive order the U. S. Armed Forces ceased to be in a combat zone after Jan. 31, 1955.

Mustering-out payments are exempt.

There will be no tax on payment received for a telephone or radiophone message originating from a member of the Armed Forces in a combat zone.

PRIZES AND AWARDS

All prizes and awards must be reported in gross income, except when received without action by the recipient, such as entering a contest or assuming obligations for future services. Such prizes may be given by religious, charitable, scientific, educational, artistic, literary or civic agencies. (Nobel and Pulitzer prizes hereafter are exempt.)

Also excluded from gross income is any amount received as a scholarship at an educational institution, or a fellowship grant with money for research and clerical expense. If the recipient of either is a candidate for a degree and is paid for part-time work outside, he must report the latter, but if such work is a condition for the degree he need not report it.

All prizes won in radio and television contests, such as give-away programs, must be reported.

DEDUCTIONS FOR SALESMEN

An employee may now take the standard deduction and deduct as well the following: transportation, except commuting; automobile expense, including gas, oil and depreciation; however, meals and lodging are deductible as traveling expense only if the employee is away overnight.

An outside salesman—a salesman who works full-time outside the office, using the latter only for incidentals—may deduct both the standard deduction and his business expenses.

Federal Estate Tax

An estate tax return must be filed for every citizen and resident of the United States whose gross estate, including life insurance, exceeds $60,000 in value at the time of his death. The tax must be paid within 15 mos. from the date of death. A non-resident, not a citizen, must file a return if his gross estate in the U.S. exceeds $2,000 in value.

The former law allowing an exemption of $100,000 under certain conditions has been revised to permit credit for state death taxes, according to a graduated table. An estate is also allowed deductions for funeral expenses, administration, claims, and bequests to religious, charitable and fraternal organizations or to government agencies for the public welfare.

Under the former code, life insurance proceeds were taxable in the insured's estate if he had paid the premiums, or had retained "incidents of ownership," such as the right to change beneficiaries, or borrow money on the policy. The new code says life insurance payable to named beneficiaries is not to be included in the gross estate if the insured retained no incidents of ownership

RETIREMENT CREDIT

A credit of 20% for retirement income up to $1,200 included in gross income is allowed to persons over 65. Persons under 65 and retired under a public retirement system (firemen, policemen, teachers, Federal employees) get a credit on up to $1,200 of pensions and annuities given by the system, but not on dividends, interest and rent. Not included in public systems are funds for members of the Armed Forces. Any pension or annuity received under the Social Security Act or the Railroad Retirement Act reduces the $1,200. Compensation in excess of $900 received by an individual under 75 will reduce the $1,200.

ANNUITIES

Deductions based on life expectancy will be taken into account hereafter in tax on annuities. Under the 1954 law deductions continue to apply even after the investment has been recovered.

in the policy. A reversionary interest which exceeds 5 per cent of the value of the policy is considered an incident of ownership in the policy.

The marital deduction allowed in the former law is extended in the new code. The value of the taxable estate "shall be determined by deducting from the value of the gross estate an amount equal to the value of any interest in property which passes or has passed from the decedent to his surviving spouse." Thus the deduction applies when the surviving spouse has a right to the income for life from all or only a part of the property, as well as power to appoint all, or the part in which the survivor has income rights, whether or not the property is held in trust. If the spouse has control only over part, the deduction is limited proportionately. The deduction is limited, however, to the value of one-half of the adjusted gross estate.

Estates of members of the Armed Forces who die during induction, or as the result of wounds and diseases incurred in the line of duty, or are killed in a combat zone, are entitled to a special exemption.

Corporation Taxes

Normal Tax: On normal tax net income the rate is 30%. After Mar. 31, 1956, the rate is set at 25%.

Surtax: Surtax net income tax rate is 22% on net income over $25,000.

Excess Profits Tax: The maximum excess profits tax rate is 18% of the excess profits net income only for years beginning prior to Jan. 1, 1954.

Pay-as-you-go Tax: Effective for calendar year 1955 and after, corporations which expect to pay over $100,000 tax must file an estimated tax report by September 15, while those on a fiscal-year basis must file a report on the 15th day of their 9th month. The tax liability will be the expected tax minus $100,000.

The estimated tax payments accelerate from 10% in 1955 to 50% in 1959 and in every case the balance of the tax may be paid on the following year by two installments on the 15th day of the 3rd and 6th months.

Net operating losses may be applied against profits for 7 years. The carry-back provision, applying losses against profits in previous years, is increased to 2 years from one.

Deduction for depreciation may be as much as two-thirds of the cost of the new plant and equipment in the first half of the plant's useful life.

Partnerships with no more than 50 members in trading, as distinguished from professional or brokerage activities, may pay taxes as do corporations at the maximum rate of 52%.

Federal Gift Tax

Any citizen or resident who within the year makes gifts in excess of $3,000 to any one individual, or any gift of a future interest regardless of value, must file a gift tax return before Apr. 15 of the following year. An exemption of $3,000 is allowable, and this may be taken all at one time or spread over a number of years.

The new code has revised the former restriction on future interest. A gift for the benefit of a minor who gets the unused portion when he becomes of age is exempt. If the minor dies before becoming of age, the gift must pass to his estate or to persons he designates, if the exemption is to apply.

When a husband or wife transfers by gift an interest in property to his or her spouse a deduction in computing gift tax will be allowed to the extent of one-half of the value of the gift. The deduction does not apply if the gift was held as community property.

²An identical exemption is allowed for a spouse.

³In addition, a tax credit of $5 is allowed for each dependent.

⁴Personal exemptions and credits for dependents are allowed in the form of tax credits which are deductible from the amount of tax. With respect to personal exemptions, the sum in parentheses is the exemption equivalent of the tax credit assuming that the exemption is deducted from the lowest brackets. With respect to the credits for dependents, the sum in parentheses is the amount by which the first dependent raises the level at which a married person or head of family becomes taxable.

⁶An additional credit of $600 is allowed for each dependent 65 years of age or over.

¹⁰An additional exemption of $1,000 is allowed a married woman with separate income.

¹¹A "hardship" exemption is allowed: for single persons, the amount by which $1,000 exceeds adjusted gross income, and for married persons, the amount by which $1,500 exceeds adjusted gross income.

¹²A tax credit of $6 is allowed taxpayers and their spouses if 65 years of age or over.

¹³The exemption is $4,500 if the spouse is a dependent. If both husband and wife file returns each is allowed a $4,000 exemption.

¹⁴A standard deduction is allowed.

¹⁵A standard deduction and an optional tax table are provided.

¹⁶Resident taxpayers have the option of using as a tax base Federal net income less Federal income tax and certain Federal credits.

Types of tax: (1) Retail sales: Applies to sales of tangible personal property at retail or to final consumer, and generally, to specified services such as amusements, restaurant meals, hotel rooms, and public utility services. (2) General sales: Applies to sales of tangible personal property at both wholesale and retail, and, in some cases, to specified services. (3) Gross receipts: Applies to sales by manufacturer, wholesaler, and retailer, receipts from miscellaneous services and businesses, and, in some cases to professional and personal services. (4) Gross income: Applies to all types of business and personal income.

²Applies to all public utilities, including transportation of oil and gas by pipeline. In Mississippi, the rate on sales of industrial gas and electricity is 1%.

⁴Applies to gas, electricity, telephone, and telegraph.

⁶Admissions under 40c are exempt. Electricity, gas, water, and communications are specifically exempt.

⁷Applies to all public utilities except water.

⁸The 2½% rate applies to the period July 1, 1955 to June 30, 1957. The permanent rate is 2%. Utilities are exempt from the sales tax, but are taxed at a 3% rate under a separate act.

⁹The 2½% rate applies to the period July 1, 1955 to June 30, 1957. The permanent rate is 2%. Sales of motor vehicles are specifically exempt from the sales tax but are subject to the use tax which is payable at the time of licensing the vehicle.

¹⁰Applies to electricity, gas, and water.

¹²The tax applies to sales of electricity and gas.

¹⁴Applies to billiard parlors and bowling alleys only. Admissions to theaters and other amusement places are subject to a special amusements tax.

¹⁶Sales of motor vehicles are specifically exempt, but a special excise tax of 2% is levied upon the transfer of ownership and the use of a vehicle registered in the State. Admissions to motion pictures are exempt. The tax applies to all public utilities except water, transportation of freight, and transportation of persons when the fare does not exceed 15c.

¹⁷Effective for the period Sept. 1, 1953 to Aug. 31, 1955.

¹⁹Specifically excluded are water, street railway fares, and freight and express.

²⁰A temporary surtax of 60% of the amount of tax is imposed for the period Nov. 1, 1951 to June 30, 1957. The rate on operators of mechanical devices is 20% in the case of games of skill, or a combination of skill and chance, and 40% on games of chance only. Wholesale sales of wheat, oats, corn and barley are taxed at 1/100%.

²¹A 5% credit is allowed against the tax.

²²Meals selling for 50c or less and transportation and communication services are exempt.

Interest Laws and Small Loan Interest Rates

Source: Revised by Roger S. Barrett of Hubachek & Kelly, Chicago

The regulation of interest rates is a form of police power which is generally exercised by state legislatures. Interest laws may be divided for convenience into four classes.

1. Statutes fixing the legal rate of interest. Every state has established a legal or conventional rate of interest which applies on judgments, on matured obligations, and in loan contracts in which no interest rate is stated. This rate is usually 6% a year, but in some states it is 5%, 7%, or 8% a year.

2. Laws fixing the maximum contract rate of interest. Five states—Arkansas, California, Oklahoma, Tennessee, and Texas—have constitutional provisions restricting the maximum contract rate of interest. All other states, except Colorado, Maine, Massachusetts, and New Hampshire, have statutory restrictions upon the maximum rate of interest which may be contracted for in the absence of specific statutory authorization. The most common maximum contract rates are 6% and 8% a year, but a few states permit rates as high as 12% a year. Penalties for infraction range from forfeiture of excess interest to loss of the entire principal and even to imprisonment. Corporations are usually exempt.

3. Regulatory consumer finance statutes. These statutes license and regulate the consumer finance or small loan business and permit licensees to charge maximum rates which are substantially higher than the rate permitted by the general usury statute. Originally, most of them were limited to loans not exceeding $300, but now more than 20 states apply to loans as large as $500 or $1,000 and sometimes larger. Forty-one statutes are listed below, most of which are modeled after the Uniform Small Loan Law drafted by the Russell Sage Foundation. Several differ substantially from the Uniform Law or are inoperative because the maximum rate is too low.

4. Specific enabling acts. Most states specifically exempt certain types of lending agencies from the regulations of the small loan and usury statutes, and authorize these agencies to make higher charges than those allowed by the usury statutes. Among these are pawnbrokers, whose rates are restricted in some states by statute and in other states by municipal ordinances to charges ranging generally from 2½% to 10% a month; industrial banks or discount companies, which are authorized to make charges ranging generally from 1½ to 2½% a month; credit unions, which are generally authorized to charge 1% a month and banks and building and loan associations.

The states with small loan laws and the rates of interest as of September 20, 1955, follow:

State Inheritance Tax Rates

Source: Tax Dept. of each state

In most of the states the inheritance tax law has been amended to correspond to the rates in the Federal Revenue Act, by providing that the minimum inheritance tax imposed shall in no case be less than 80% of the tax imposed by the act of Congress. Most states also have reciprocal inheritance tax agreements.

There is also a class exemption of $5,000 on the net value of an estate passing to any lineal ancestor, lineal descendant, husband, wife, stepchild or lineal descendant of a stepchild, adopted child or lineal descendant of an adopted child, adopted child of the lineal descendant, son-in-law or daughter-in-law of the decedent, plus an additional exemption of $5,000 for surviving spouse and $5,000 for each living child born prior to death of decedent, stepchild or adopted child, plus an additional exemption of $5,000 for the living descendants of any deceased child, stepchild or adopted child, per stirpes. Total minimum exemption in any estate, $10,000. Rate of tax from 1% to 10%.

Exemptions of $1,000 on estate passing to any brother or sister of decedent, with rate from 3% to 20%. All others without exemption, with rate from 10% to 25%. Estates passing to certain charitable and religious organizations are exempt.

West Virginia

Exemptions: Widow or widower, $15,000; a child, stepchild, father or mother, $5,000; a grandchild, $2,500. Exemptions are individual and no beneficiary may claim any benefit of the exemption of another.

The tax rates on amounts not exceeding $50,000 to each beneficiary, wife, husband, child, stepchild, descendants of child, father or mother of decedent, 3%; to brother or sister, 4%; to persons more distantly related, 7%; and to persons of no blood relation, including stranger, institutions, corporate or otherwise, 10% of net market value of property transferred. The tax rates range from 3% to 30%, according to the degree of relationship and the size of inheritance. Exemptions for usual charitable purposes.

Wisconsin

Exemptions: Widow, $15,000; husband, $5,000; daughter, wife or widow of son, lineal descendants or ancestors, $2,000; brothers and sisters and their descendants, $500; lesser amount to relatives down to $100 to strangers in blood.

Tax of 2% to husband, wife, lineal descendants; to uncles, aunts or their descendants, 6%. To all others, 8%. If estate is above $25,000 the above rates are multiplied as follows: $25,000 to $50,000, 2 times on excess; $50,000 to $100,000, 3 times on excess; $100,000 to $500,000, 4 times on excess; above $500,000, 5 times on excess. But no such tax, however, shall exceed 15% of the property transferred to any beneficiary. Moreover, the figures as to multiplication of tax refer to each separate beneficiary and not to the estate as a whole. Also an additional surtax equal to 30% of the tax computed at the normal tax rates.

Wyoming

Exemptions: Husband, wife, child, parent, adopted child or adopted parent, brother or sister, $10,000; balance taxable at 2%. Grandparents, grandchild, half-brother or half-sister, $5,000; balance taxable at 4%. All other, excepting charitable, etc., no exemption; tax 6%. Gifts for state, municipal, charitable, educational or religious purposes or to any institution for use in the preservation of wild fowls or game or proceeds of insurance policies payable to named beneficiaries other than insured's estate, entirely exempt.

Alaska

Exemptions: Husband or wife of decedent, each of the lineal issues and children adopted more than 10 years previously, $10,000. Lineal ancestors of the decedent, $3,000. Sister, brother of decedent or their lineal issue, $1,000. All others, $250. Primary rate, on first $15,000 in excess of exemptions: Wife or lineal issue, 1%; husband, lineal ancestor or adopted child, 1½%; brother, sister or their lineal issue, 3%; others related by blood, 4%; all others, including corporations, 5%. On amounts $15,000 to $30,000, two times primary rate; to $50,000, 2½ times; to $100,000, 3 times; over $100,000, 3½ times primary rate.

Hawaii

Exemptions: $5,000 to a father, mother, husband, wife, child, grandchild, or any child adopted in conformity with the laws of the Territory, except non-residents of the U. S. Then $5,000 to $20,000, 1½%; to $50,000, 2%; to $100,000, 2½%; to $250,000, 3%; over $250,000, 3½%. $500 to all others, except non-residents of the U. S. Then $500 to $5,000, 3%; to $20,000, 5%; to $50,000, 5½%; to $100,000, 6%; over $100,000, 6½%. For non-residents of the United States, the rate for each person, in excess of $500, is 10%.

Tax exempt are transfers for charitable or educational purposes; life insurance proceeds payable to a beneficiary and not to the estate; property taxed within 5 years, except for appreciation.

Puerto Rico

Exemptions: Husband or wife and children, grandchildren, parents, grandparents, brothers and sisters of deceased, $5,000 plus proportional share of life insurance bequeathed, not to exceed $10,000 for all heirs taken together; children, $200 for each year under 21 years of age at time of death, plus $20,000 if mentally or physically disabled for life; other heirs, $1,000. In excess of exemption, taxable to $2,000, 5%, thence, by steps, to $100,000, 30%, and on to all over $1,000,000, 70%. Not subject to tax: bequests to government units under the American flag—and to religious, charitable and public welfare agencies not engaged in propaganda or lobbying.

Virgin Islands

Exemptions: Husband or wife, ascendants to descendants, children to parents, $200; all over taxable at 2%; brothers and sisters and their issue, $100; all over taxable at 8%. No exemptions to more distant relatives or to strangers; entire inheritance taxable at 14%.

How to Make a Will

The head of every household and every person possessing property should make a will, in order to guard against confusion in the disposition of an estate, which might deprive those nearest of kin of future protection.

It is advisable to consult an attorney when making a will, in order to conform to revised laws. A will should be in writing, signed by the testator, or by some person in his presence and by his direction, and attested by two, and in some states three, witnesses, who must sign the will in the presence of the testator.

All persons are competent to make a will except idiots, persons of unsound mind and infants. In civil law a minor is an infant. In New York anyone 18 years old or over can will personal property, but really cannot be devised unless the person is 21 or over.

A codicil, or addition to the will, may be added at any time under circumstances similar to the making of a will. Wills should be revised periodically to take advantage of new inheritance laws and changes in a family. A woman of property who marries must provide for her changed relationship in her will.

A dower right is a widow's right to receive during her lifetime one-third of all the rents and revenues of her husband's lands. Dower and courtesy rights were abolished in New York State and husband and wife have equal inheritance rights there. Not over one-half of an estate can be given to charity if other heirs survive.

Executor—An executor is named by the testator to supervise the distribution of the legacies. He may be exempted from filing a bond. The executor may be the surviving spouse, or an unrelated person, or a trust company. He may call on legal advice. He files the will in the probate court. He may act for a year or longer.

Before an executor can turn an estate over to the heirs he must pay all debts and obligations, including funeral expenses, Federal, state and local taxes, and payments due others by contract. Wages are generally considered debts, when proved. Costs of administration must be paid before the estate is closed. The living expenses of the surviving family are a direct obligation and are authorized by the court. Claims must be submitted within a year and most states have a time limit on obligations.

An executor can be empowered in a will to sell or carry on a business and to exchange, consolidate or sell assets of the estate. If there is no ready cash available to pay the taxes, he must determine what assets to liquidate to the best advantage of the estate. Sometimes a testator makes a will in days of prosperity and bequeaths more than his estate holds when he dies. The executor, with the court, must then decide what proportion is to be paid. This is simplified if the testator has willed his possessions in terms of one-half, one-fourth or other fractions of his estate.

Income tax returns for three years prior to death are audited. During the year of administration the estate pays income tax.

Trustee—A will may provide for outright distribution of an estate, or it may designate that a part be set aside as a trust fund and invested, with interest and parts of the capital paid to the beneficiaries at certain intervals.

The same person may be both executor and trustee. This also holds when a bank or trust company is named as both. However, the usual procedure is to separate the two functions. A trustee may control the investment of funds for a specific number of years, but no testator may tie up his funds beyond the third generation.

Insurance is part of an estate, but many states allow large exemption. Insurance may be placed in a trust fund that is to begin operation on death and be administered by an insurance company. The amounts paid to beneficiaries are independent of the adjustment of the estate.

Administrator—An administrator is appointed by the court when a person dies intestate, meaning that he leaves no will. An administrator must be bonded.

SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

Commissioner—Charles I. Schottland

The Social Security Administration, part of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, carries the major Federal responsibility for the social security programs operating under the Social Security Act. Under the supervision and direction of the Commissioner of Social Security the bureaus of the Administration function in the program areas as follows:

The Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance administers the completely Federal program of benefit payments to elderly insured wage earners and self-employed persons who have retired, to certain of their dependents, and to the surviving dependents of deceased insured wage earners and self-employed persons.

The Bureau of Public Assistance carries responsibility for grants-in-aid to states for state programs of public assistance to the needy aged, the needy blind, needy children deprived of parental support, and permanently and totally disabled persons in need of assistance.

The Children's Bureau is charged with responsibility for grants to states for state programs of maternal and child health and child welfare services.

The Bureau of Employment Security, responsible for approving Federal grants to states for their unemployment insurance programs and employment services, was part of the Social Security Administration until August 20, 1949, when it was transferred to the Department of Labor. (For continuity in reporting on operations under the Social Security Act, data on unemployment insurance and employment services in 1955 are included in the sections below.)

The Bureau of Federal Credit Unions is responsible for operations under the Federal Credit Union Act.

To bring day-by-day administration of the programs close to the people they serve, the Social Security Administration has representatives attached to each of the 9 regional offices of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. In addition 534 district offices and 6 area offices, established throughout continental United States, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands by the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance, handle most of the work of receiving claims under that program and determining whether the claimant is eligible for benefits, and the amount of the benefits.

OLD-AGE AND SURVIVORS INSURANCE

Old-age and survivors insurance is a Federal program insuring "covered" workers and their families against earnings loss because of old age or death. It provides regular monthly payments to insured workers when they retire at age 65 or thereafter; supplementary payments to their young children, to young wives and dependent aged husbands, to young wives with children of the worker in their care; and survivor payments to the widows or dependent widowers, young children, and sometimes the aged dependent parents of insured workers who die. Wage and salary workers in commerce and industry came under the program in 1937. Amendments to the Social Security Act were adopted in 1950 and 1954 that extended coverage to almost all other gainfully employed groups. Self-employed farmers made up the largest group added by the 1954 amendments. Coverage is voluntary on a group basis for employees of nonprofit organizations and on an individual basis for ministers, Christian Science practitioners, and certain members of religious orders. Most employees of state and local governments may be covered by special agreement with the state; coverage of those under a retirement system is also subject to a favorable vote by members. Under the Railroad Retirement Act Amendments of 1951, railroad employment is jointly covered by the railroad retirement program and by old-age and survivors insurance, and provisions prescribing the interrelationship of the two programs have been set up.

The monthly benefits paid are directly related to the average amount of the insured worker's earnings under this program. The benefits are financed from contributions required under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act. The contributions paid by the worker and his employer are based on the worker's "taxable wages" (up to a maximum of $3,000 a year for years before 1951, $3,600 for 1951 through 1954, and $4,200 beginning in 1955). The self-employed person's contribution is based on his taxable income from earnings up to a maximum of $4,200 ($3,600 for 1951-54). The employer reports every three months to the Internal Revenue Service the amount of taxable wages he has paid each employee. At the same time, he also pays his own contributions and those of his employees which he deducts from the latter's wages. The contribution rate for 1955 was 2% each for employer and employee; it is scheduled to rise to 2½% in 1960, to 3% each in 1965, 3½% each in 1970, and will be 4% in 1975 and thereafter. The self-employed person reports his self-employment income and pays the contributions on such employment at the end of his taxable year when he files his income tax return. The rate of contributions for the self-employed is 1½ times the employee rate. It was 3% in 1955, will rise to 3¾% in 1960, to 4½% in 1965, to 5¼% in 1970, and it will be 6% in 1975 and thereafter.

The employer wage reports and reports of self-employment income are forwarded by the Internal Revenue Service to the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance, which keeps a continuous record of each person's wage credits and self-employment income under his individual social security account number. These credits determine the worker's insurance status and the amount of benefits for which he and his dependents may qualify.

The amount payable to persons entitled to monthly benefits is based on the worker's average covered earnings over whichever of several periods specified in the law yields the largest benefit amount. The period may begin with Jan. 1, 1937 (when the program was initiated), Jan. 1, 1951 (when the first major extension of coverage became effective), or Jan. 1 of the year in which age 22 was attained, if after 1950. (Years before attainment of age 22 are included only if this would increase the benefit amount.) The period may end with the last day of the year preceding death, attainment of age 65, or filing of an application for old-age insurance benefits.

Under the 1954 amendments, nearly all persons who come on the benefit rolls in the future may drop from the computation of their average earnings up to 4 of the years in which their earnings were lowest or in which they had no earnings. Persons having 20 quarters of coverage may drop up to 5 years. Persons already on the rolls who acquire 6 quarters of coverage after June 1953, or who meet other requirements may have their benefits recomputed to give effect to this "drop-out" of low years. The amendments also provide that individuals who meet specified conditions relating to regular attachment to covered employment may have periods of prolonged total disability occurring before age 65 eliminated from the computation of their average earnings. Individuals already on the benefit rolls who meet the specified conditions may have their benefits recomputed to eliminate periods of disability prior to age 65.

The 1954 amendments provided a benefit formula that applies to most benefit computations after August, 1954. The benefit amount under the formula is 55% of the first $110 of average monthly wage plus 20% of next $240. (Table 1.) Persons already on the rolls in August, 1954, had their benefits increased by a new conversion table; those coming on the rolls later who are not eligible for the new formula also have their benefits computed using the new conversion table with the 1939 or 1952 formula.

The 1954 amendments also provide for a minimum benefit of $30 for a retired worker or a sole survivor beneficiary. The maximum benefits payable to a family cannot exceed the lesser of $200 or 80% of the worker's average monthly wage. However, the 80% provision cannot reduce the family benefits to less than the greater of $50 or 1½ times the primary insurance amount on which the benefit is based.

The benefits payable to a worker's dependents and survivors are related to the amount his record would yield as his own primary insurance amount at the time the computation is made. If the worker has become entitled to old-age insurance benefit, supplementary benefits equal to half his benefit are payable to his wife at age 65, or at any age if she has an entitled child or children under 18 in her care; and a benefit of the same amount is payable to his unmarried dependent child under age 18. The dependent husband age 65 or over of a woman entitled to her own old-age insurance benefits may also receive benefits equal to one-half the amount of her benefits, if she was currently insured (as explained below) at the time she claimed her benefits. A widow who is age 65 or over may receive benefits equal to three-fourths of her husband's primary insurance amount if he was fully insured (as explained below) when he died. A widower's benefit equal to three-fourths of the woman worker's primary insurance amount is payable at age 65 to the dependent widower of a woman who was both fully and currently insured when she died.

Mother's benefits equal to three-fourths the worker's primary insurance amount are payable regardless of age to the widow or the dependent divorced wife of a fully or currently insured worker while she is caring for an unmarried dependent child under age 18 who is entitled to benefits on the man's record. The amount of the child's benefit for each child is one-half the primary insurance amount plus an additional one-fourth of that amount divided equally among all the surviving children entitled on the same record.

If there is no widow, widower, or child who might at some time after the death of a fully insured worker qualify for benefits on his record, benefits equal to three-fourths of his primary insurance amount may be payable to his dependent parent or parents.

In addition to these monthly benefits, a lump sum death payment equaling three times the worker's primary insurance amount or $255, whichever is smaller, goes to the surviving spouse, provided the latter was living with the worker at the time of death. In the absence of such survivor, a lump sum equal to the amount of the burial expenses, but not to exceed three times the primary insurance amount or $255, whichever is smaller, is payable to the person or persons who paid the burial expenses.

To qualify for an old-age insurance benefit, the worker must be "fully insured." He is fully insured if he received covered wages of as much as $50 or was credited with covered self-employment income of as much as $100 in at least 6 calendar quarters and in as many as half the number of calendar quarters which have elapsed between December 31, 1950 (or later attainment of age 21) and the quarter in which he reaches age 65 or dies. The 1954 amendments provide that under specified circumstances, periods of total disability can be omitted from the elapsed quarters. When a worker has as many as 40 "quarters of coverage" he is fully insured for life.

Quarters of coverage may be earned at any time after 1936. Under the amendments, an individual who does not meet these requirements will nevertheless be fully insured if all quarters after 1954 and up to July 1, 1956, or up to the quarter of death or attainment of age 65, if later, are quarters of coverage (a minimum of 6 quarters after 1954 is required). The amendments also provided that a worker who died uninsured after 1939 and before September 1, 1950, but who had at least 6 quarters of coverage is deemed to have died fully insured and his eligible survivors may qualify for benefits.

A worker is "currently insured" if he has 6 quarters of coverage in the period consisting of the quarter in which he died or became entitled to old-age benefits and the 12 quarters immediately preceding that quarter.

About 60,000,000 had earnings taxable under old-age and survivors insurance during 1954. Total taxable earnings they received approximated $134 billion. Average taxable earnings per worker in 1954 were about $2,230.

At the beginning of 1955 an estimated 70,500,000 persons were insured. In other words, approximately 74% of all living persons who had held a covered job at any time during the 18 years 1937-54 were insured on Jan. 1, 1955. About 29,600,000 had acquired sufficient quarters of coverage to remain permanently insured throughout their lifetime without further covered employment. The permanently insured included 5,200,000 workers aged 65 or over, of whom about 73%—3,200,000—had already retired and were receiving old-age benefits; the rest of this group were not receiving such benefits, for the most part because they were still working in covered jobs.

In the fiscal year 1954-55, about $4.2 billion was paid out for monthly benefits and $100,500,000 for lump sums on behalf of deceased insured workers. (The number and types of beneficiaries receiving benefits on June 30, 1955, and their benefits for June are shown in table 2.)

Each year an amount equal to the contributions collected is appropriated to the old-age and survivors insurance trust fund, from which benefits and administrative expenses of the system are paid. (On June 30, the trust fund had assets of $21,140,643,000 as shown in table 3.)

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE AND EMPLOYMENT SERVICES

Unlike old-age and survivors insurance, which is administered entirely by the Federal Government, unemployment insurance and the employment service constitute a State-Federal program. It is designed to protect wage earners and their families from wage loss through involuntary unemployment by referring unemployed workers to suitable jobs and, if no such jobs are available, by paying, for a period, weekly benefits related to their prior wages.

The Federal Unemployment Tax Act levies a tax upon employers in commerce and industry throughout the country and allows them credit (up to 90% of this tax) for the contributions they pay to their State unemployment funds and for the amounts they would have paid to such funds

³ Figures of 1943-44 and 1944-45 include adjustment for earlier years.

In the absence of experience-rating deductions allowed under the laws of all States. Unemployment benefits are financed by these contributions from employers subject to a State unemployment insurance law (except in Alabama and New Jersey where employees also contribute).

The Federal Unemployment Tax Act is limited to employers, who within a year had four or more workers in each of 20 weeks (before January 1, 1956, eight or more workers). Almost half of the State laws cover firms with fewer than four workers. Railroad workers are covered under a separate system administered by the Federal Railroad Retirement Board.

An estimated 48,000 different workers earned some wage credits toward unemployment benefits under State laws in calendar year 1954 and about 39,000,000 had enough credits to be insured.

Each State (and the District of Columbia, Alaska and Hawaii) has its own unemployment insurance law and operates its own program. The Federal Government grants to the States the costs of administering the program. As a condition of such grants, the Social Security Act requires prompt payment of benefits when due to unemployed workers under a State law and safeguards workers' rights to benefits if they do not take jobs that fail to meet certain labor standards.

Federal and State laws require that benefits must be paid through public employment offices, at which unemployed workers must first register for work and to which they must continue to report regularly for a possible job during the time that they are drawing weekly benefit payments. The U. S. Employment Service, a part of the Bureau of Employment Security in the Department of Labor, administers the Federal aspects of the employment service program. Another part of this Bureau, the Unemployment Insurance Service, carries the Federal responsibility for reviewing the State laws and their administration to determine whether the States qualify for grants for unemployment insurance administration and employers qualify for credit offset against the Federal tax.

During the fiscal year 1954-55, 8,467,000 new job applications were filed with local employment offices of the State employment services. The employment offices made 14,528,000 placements in jobs, of which 5,536,000 were in nonfarm activities. Some 5,405,000 unemployed persons received benefits under the 51 State unemployment insurance systems. These payments totaled $1,776,000,000, representing compensation for 73,000,000 weeks of unemployment. The average payment for total unemployment was $25.05 and the average beneficiary drew benefits for 13.6 weeks. In comparison, the rate and duration of benefits averaged $24.45 and 11.0 weeks, respectively, in the preceding fiscal year. (See Table 5 for data by States.)

surance, and veterans' unemployment compensation programs. For benefit purposes they collected $1,146 million in contributions under the State laws (which they deposited to their accounts in the Federal Treasury) and received interest on their accounts totaling $187 million. On June 30, 1955 the balance in the trust fund amounted to $7,983,000,000, compared with $8,409,000,000 on June 30, 1954. (See Table 4 for data by States.)

Under title IV of the Veterans' Readjustment Assistance Act of 1952, unemployment compensation is provided by the Federal Government to veterans who have served in the Armed Forces after June 26, 1950. Such payments are made by the State employment security agencies (and by the Employment Service in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands) in accordance with agreements with the Secretary of Labor. Benefits are at the rate of $26 per week of total unemployment up to $676. Aside from the amount and duration of benefits, the provisions of the State laws apply. If a veteran can qualify under any State law or the railroad unemployment insurance act for benefits of less than $26 per week, he may receive a supplementary veteran's benefit up to $26. If he qualifies for $26 or more under another law he cannot draw unemployment compensation for veterans until he has exhausted his other unemployment benefits.

Under this Act, benefit payments during fiscal year 1954-55 amounted to $106,920,000, compensating for 4,613,000 weeks of unemployment. The payments for 604,000 of these weeks supplemented benefits received under the State or railroad programs. As of June 30, 1955, there were an estimated 4 million veterans with service after June 26, 1950. Approximately 650,000 of these veterans had received one or more benefit payments during the period from October 15, 1952 (when benefits first became payable under this Act) to June 30, 1955.

Under a new title XV of the Social Security Act enacted in 1954 unemployment insurance protection was extended to 2.5 million Federal civilian employees for weeks of unemployment after January 1, 1955. Benefits are paid to Federal employees in the same amounts and subject to the same conditions as if their Federal employment and wages had been subject to a State law. Benefits are paid by the State employment security agencies under agreements with the Secretary of Labor. The States are reimbursed for the Federal benefits from a special fund appropriated to the Secretary of Labor.

During the first 6 months of 1955, over 59,000 former Federal employees were paid $16 million for 643,000 weeks of unemployment.

Four States—California, New Jersey, New York, and Rhode Island—paid about $200,000,000 in benefits to workers whose employment was due to temporary disability, under a separate disability law during calendar year 1954.

PUBLIC ASSISTANCE

Even with more complete social insurance protection against the risks of wage loss from unemployment, old age, and death of the breadwinner, there will always be some persons in the population who cannot meet their needs through their own efforts. Some of them are not covered by or entitled to social insurance benefits; others may be entitled to or receiving benefits but their total income does not meet their minimum needs. Under the State-Federal public assistance provisions of the Social Security Act, the Federal Government makes grants to the states to aid them in giving financial assistance to four groups of needy persons—the aged, the blind, the permanently and totally disabled, and children who have been deprived of parental support or care for certain specified reasons. Assistance to other needy persons in the population who cannot qualify for one of the special types of assistance is available through general assistance, which is financed by state and/or local government units without Federal financial participation.

As in the State-Federal unemployment insurance system, states adopt and administer their own plans for the special types of public assistance under the Social Security Act, and the state plan must be approved as meeting certain requirements set forth in that act if the state is to be eligible for Federal grants. The amount of the grant is based on the amount the state itself expends, within certain maximums, for assistance payments. The Federal Government also shares half the expense of administering the programs. The requirements specified for Federal approval of the state plan are designed to assure efficient and proper administration and to set certain limits to the eligibility requirements that an approved state plan may impose. Administration of the Federal aspects of the four programs is carried on by the Bureau of Public Assistance.

The 1954 amendments extend through Sept. 30, 1956, the provisions in the 1952 amendments with respect to Federal participation in public assistance payments. Under these provisions, the Federal share in old-age assistance, aid to the blind, and aid to the permanently and totally disabled is four-fifths of the first $25 of a state's average monthly payment per recipient, plus one-half the remainder, within individual maximums of $55; for aid to dependent children, the Federal share is four-fifths of the first $15 of a state's average monthly payment, plus one-half the balance, within individual maximums of $30 for the adult, $30 for the first child, and $21 for each additional child. A different formula governs Federal financial participation in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands: For old-age assistance, aid to the blind, and aid to the permanently and totally disabled, the Federal maximum is $30; for aid to dependent children, it is $18 for 1 child and $12 for each additional child; within these limits, the Federal ¹Claimants whose base-period earnings or employment in employment covered by unemployment insurance programs were determined to be sufficient to make them eligible for unemployment insurance benefits as provided in the various State laws.

²Based on number of first payments.

³Based on date of final payments. Some of the claimants shown, therefore, actually experienced their final week of compensable unemployment towards the end of the previous fiscal year, but received their final payment in the current fiscal year. Similarly, some claimants who served their last week of compensable unemployment towards the end of the current fiscal year did not receive their final payment in this fiscal year and hence are not shown. A final week of compensable unemployment in a benefit year results in the exhaustion of benefit rights for the benefit year. Claimants who exhaust their benefit rights in one benefit year may be entitled to further benefits in the following benefit year.

⁹Data are on a "per employer" basis and therefore are not strictly comparable.

share of expenditures for payments is 50 percent.

In June, 1955, 2,548,593 were receiving old-age assistance, 2,239,477 persons (needy children and adult relatives) in 620,349 families were getting aid to dependent children, 103,906 persons were receiving aid to the blind, and 236,840 persons were receiving aid to the permanently and totally disabled under the Social Security Act. (Table 6. Data in the table and in the text include payments to recipients and payments made directly to suppliers of medical service in behalf of recipients.) Nationwide average payments in June, 1955, were $52.30 per recipient of old-age assistance, $86.78 per family receiving aid to dependent children, $57.41 per recipient of aid to the blind, and $54.93 per recipient of aid to the permanently and totally disabled.

These averages obscure wide differences among the states that are due to the relative capacity and willingness of state and local governments to finance the payments and the provisions of state laws governing payments, as well as differences in the needs of recipients in the various states.

State and local general assistance programs were helping 310,000 cases in June 1955. Since a case may include more than one person in a family, the total number of persons represented in the cases assisted in June was about 720,000. For the country as a whole the average payment per general assistance case was $53.78.

¹Includes payments made directly to suppliers of medical care in behalf of assistance recipients and cases receiving only such payments.

²Includes as recipients the children and 1 parent or other adult relative in families in which the requirements of at least 1 such adult were considered in determining the amount of assistance.

³Average payment not computed on base of less than 50 recipients.

MATERNAL AND CHILD HEALTH AND CHILD WELFARE

Unlike the other programs in operation under the Social Security Act, which are fundamentally income-maintenance programs, the maternal and child health and child welfare provisions deal with services. The Social Security Act makes Federal grants available to States to extend and improve their health and welfare services for mothers and children, especially in rural areas. As in the other State-Federal programs, the State plan must meet certain requirements set forth in the Federal act. Responsibility for the approval of State plans and other Federal aspects of these health and welfare programs is lodged in the Children's Bureau, which also has responsibility under the act of 1912 creating the Bureau, for investigating and reporting "upon all matters pertaining to the welfare of children and child life." All programs are in effect in the 48 States, the District of Columbia, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands.

For Maternal and Child Health Services, Federal payments totaling $11,919,292 were made to State health agencies during the fiscal year ended June 1955 to aid the States in extending and improving these services. Each State's share in the Federal funds authorized is affected by the number of live births in the State in relation to the total number of live births in the country, by the State's need for help in providing services, and by its rural child population. Half of the amount must be matched by the States. Part of the remaining half is used for special projects and to meet emergencies. Most of the services provided by State and local health departments for mothers and children are preventive health services, designed to help well mothers and children keep well. In limited ways, almost all the States also provide treatment for some expectant mothers and sick children. Typical preventive services offered by State and local health agencies in 1955 were prenatal clinics, public health nursing services, well-child clinics, immunization, and examinations of children of school age by physicians and dentists.

For Services for Crippled Children, States shared in the $10,613,701 in Federal payments made in the fiscal year 1954-55 for this purpose according to the number of children in the State under age 21. The division of funds also reflects the financial need of each State for assistance in carrying out its program and the relative number of rural children in its population. States must match half of the total amount. A portion of the unmatched half is reserved for special projects.

All States in 1955 provided a range of services that included locating all crippled children; diagnosing their crippling condition; providing or locating skilled care for them in hospitals, convalescent and foster homes, and in their own homes; and working with public and private agencies and professional groups concerned with the care and training of crippled children. Because no State has funds sufficient to do this comprehensive job for all handicapped children, all States must necessarily restrict some services to certain areas or groups of children. The children most commonly served are those with handicapping conditions that require orthopedic or plastic treatment.

For Child Welfare Services, grants are made by the Children's Bureau to State public welfare agencies to help in establishing, extending, and strengthening public welfare services for the protection and care of homeless, dependent, and neglected children, and children in danger of becoming delinquent. Each State's share of the $6,725,553 in Federal payments made for child welfare services in fiscal year 1954-55 is, in general, related to the proportion its rural population under the age of 18 is of the total rural population in the United States. Federal funds may be used for payment of part of the cost of district, county, or other local child welfare services in areas predominantly rural and for developing State services for the encouragement and assistance of adequate methods of community child welfare organization in areas predominantly rural and other areas of special need, and for paying the cost of returning any runaway child under the age of 16 to his home in another State when such return is to his interest. Each State or community must assume some of the cost of the services in rural areas, though no fixed amount of Federal funds must be matched by State or local funds.

The child welfare services which Federal funds financed in part in 1955 included strengthening family life, arranging for foster-home care or care in institutions for children who need care away from their own homes; protecting children who are neglected or abused; finding and securing the necessary attention for children who have physical, mental and emotional handicaps and who are not receiving the care they need; safeguarding unmarried mothers and children born out of wedlock; cooperating with courts and schools in handling children's cases and with State institutions caring for children; working with mental hygiene clinics. Child welfare workers also help in the organization of community services for children, including services needed for the prevention of juvenile delinquency.

FEDERAL CREDIT UNIONS

In addition to the program bureaus with responsibilities under the Social Security Act, the Administration's Bureau of Federal Credit Unions is responsible for credit unions organized under the Federal Credit Union Act. These credit unions are chartering and supervising voluntary co-operative associations organized to promote thrift among their members and to create a source of loans for provident and productive purposes. Membership is limited to groups of persons having a common bond of association, occupation, or residence. Groups with large numbers of credit unions are found among employees of Federal, State, and public utilities. On June 30, 1955, about 7,653 chartered Federal credit unions were in operation with a total membership of 3,700,000.

The Confederate States of America

South Carolina began the movement which led to the organization of the Southern Confederacy by the adoption at Charleston, Dec. 20, 1860, by a convention of the people of the following ordinance of secession:

"We, the people of the State of South Carolina, in convention assembled, do declare and ordain, and it is hereby declared and ordained, that the ordinance adopted by us in convention on the 23rd day of May, in the year of our Lord 1788, whereby the Constitution of the United States was ratified and also all acts and parts of the General Assembly of this State ratifying amendments of the said Constitution are hereby repealed; and that the Union now subsisting between South Carolina and other States under the name of the United States of America is hereby dissolved."

December 24 the convention adopted a declaration setting forth the cause of the secession of the state, and the governor issued a proclamation announcing the action of the state.

Acts of secession were adopted by the legislatures of the other seceding states, as follows:

Mississippi, Jan. 9, 1861, by 84 to 15
Florida, Jan. 10, 1861, by 62 to 7
Alabama, Jan. 11, 1861, by 61 to 39
Georgia, Jan. 19, 1861, by 208 to 89
Louisiana, Jan. 26, 1861, by 113 to 17
Texas, Feb. 1, 1861, by 166 to 7
Virginia, April 17, 1861, by 88 to 55
Arkansas, May 6, 1861, by 69 to 1
Tennessee, June 8, 1861, unanimous.

The states of Delaware, Maryland, Kentucky and Missouri, which were afterward represented in the Confederate Congress, did not pass ordinances of secession. In two states a popular vote was taken. The vote of Virginia for secession was 128,884; opposed, 32,134. Of Tennessee, for secession, 104,019; opposed, 47,238.

Forty-two delegates from South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Florida met in convention at Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 4, 1861. Howell Cobb of Georgia was chosen president of the convention, which adopted the name of congress. On Feb. 6 delegates from North Carolina arrived to plead in vain for conciliation. The first delegate from Texas came Feb. 13. The congress adopted a provisional constitution Feb. 8, 1861, and on the next day elected Jefferson Davis (Miss.), provisional president, and Alexander H. Stephens (Ga.), provisional vice president. Davis was inducted into office at Montgomery, Feb. 18, 1861.

The congress adopted a flag, consisting of a red field with a white stripe in the middle third, and a blue jack with a circle of white stars, going two-thirds of the way down the flag. This flag was unfurled in Montgomery Mar. 4, 1861. Later the more popular flag was the red field with blue diagonal cross bars that held white stars.

A permanent constitution was adopted Mar. 11, 1861. It provided that the president should be elected for a single term of 6 years and abolished the African slave trade. The congress moved to Richmond, Va., July 20, 1861.

Davis was elected president Oct. 16, 1861. Eleven states cast their 109 electoral votes for him. He was inaugurated in Richmond Feb. 22, 1862. The Confederate government functioned there until April 2, 1865, when, warned by Gen. Lee that his lines were broken, the cabinet abandoned Richmond and fled southward. Davis was taken prisoner near Irwinsville, Ga., May 11, 1865, and at first confined in Fortress Monroe, Va. He was twice indicted for treason but never brought to trial. He was released on bond May 4, 1867 and allowed to leave for Canada. He was pardoned by the general amnesty proclamation, Dec. 25, 1868. Davis died in New Orleans Dec. 6, 1889. In 1893 his body was transferred to Hollywood cemetery, Richmond, Va.

How to Obtain U. S. Government Publications

The United States Government issues many publications of cultural, historical and practical interest, especially dealing with farming, fruit raising, soil treatment, water conservation and many other useful topics. A free semi-monthly list of publications for sale at low prices is available. Information may be obtained by addressing the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C.

All available public documents are listed in the Monthly Catalogue of U. S. Public Documents, which costs $3 a year in the United States and $3.75 for foreign delivery. The Government has available about 2,000,000 publications. Remittances must be made in advance by check, money order or postal note (postage stamps are not acceptable), or by coupons sold in sets of 20 for $1; deposits of $10.00 or more may be made against future orders.

The Bureau of the Census issues a quarterly Catalogue of United States Census Publications and a Monthly Supplement. Its publications include business reports, trade studies, foreign commerce studies, imports and exports, and reports on finance, population, housing and manufacturing. These, too, may be purchased from the Supt. of Documents.

Patents and How to Apply for Them

A patent for an invention is granted by the United States Patent Office to the inventor of any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvements in these categories. The grant to the patentee is of "the right to exclude others from making, using or selling the invention throughout the United States" for the term of 17 years.

A patent is also granted for certain distinct and new varieties of plants. Patents for new, original and ornamental designs for articles of manufacture may be obtained for 3½, 7 and 14 years, as requested by the inventor.

Except in special circumstances, an application must be made by the inventor; if two are associated in the invention both must apply; if the inventor is mentally ill or dead, application may be made by the guardian or administrator of the estate. The specification must include a written description of the invention and of the manner and process of making and using it, and is required to be in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which the invention pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same. The claims are brief descriptions of the subject matter of the invention reciting all essential features necessary to distinguish the invention from what is old. A drawing is required by the statute in all cases which admit of drawings. The filing fee is $30, with $1 additional for each claim in excess of 20. Fees for design patents vary depending upon the term elected by the applicant, $10 for 3½ years, $15 for 7 years, and $30 for 14 years. The inventor must also subscribe to an oath that his allegations are true.

The Patent Office examines the application to determine whether the invention is new and useful and whether the application otherwise complies with the law. If the application is allowed, a notice is sent the applicant and the final fee of $30, plus $1 for each claim in excess of 20 is payable before the patent may issue. There is no final fee for design patents. The patent is in force on the date it is granted. The terms "patent applied for" and "patent pending" have no legal significance and merely serve notice that a patent is being sought.

If the Patent Office rejects an application, the applicant may ask for reconsideration, giving reason; if rejected again he may appeal to the Board of Appeals of the Patent Office, and if rejected there may go to the Court of Customs and Patent Appeals or file a civil action in the U. S. District Court for the District of Columbia.

A patent will not be granted for a mere idea or suggestion, or a machine that will not operate, or an invention that lacks utility, or printed matter, or methods of doing business, or medicines that are merely mixtures of known ingredients, like physicians' prescriptions. So-called patent medicines are not protected by patents. So-called perpetual motion machines cannot be patented.

A patent cannot be obtained if the invention has been described in a printed publication or has been in public use or on sale before the date the invention was made or more than one year prior to the filing of the application. When two or more applications for patenting identical inventions are received, or when the applicant claims the invention for which a patent has been issued, the Patent Office begins "interference proceedings" to determine prior rights. The decision of the Patent Office may be reviewed by the courts.

Under certain conditions a license must be obtained before an application for a patent can be filed in a foreign country. The Commissioner of Patents may order an invention kept secret if publication would hurt the national safety or defense. Pamphlet copies of the Patent Laws (25c), the Rules of Practice of the U. S. Patent Office in Patent Cases (50c), can be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., and the General Information Concerning Patents can be obtained from the Patent Office, Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C.

Trade Marks: How to Obtain and Protect Them

A trade mark, as defined by Act of Congress, "includes any word, name, symbol, or device, or any combination thereof, adopted and used by a manufacturer or merchant to identify his goods and distinguish them from those manufactured or sold by others." Rights in trade marks are acquired only by use, which must continue if those rights are to be preserved. In order to be eligible for registration a mark must be in use in commerce which may be lawfully regulated by Congress.

Trade marks are registered on the Principal Register and the Supplemental Register of the U. S. Patent Office. "Coined, arbitrary, fanciful or suggestive marks, usually called technical marks, if otherwise qualified," may be registered on the Principal Register. A trade mark that is merely descriptive of goods, or their regional origin, or is primarily a surname, is placed on the Supplemental Register. The U. S. Patent Office says: "For the purpose of registration on the Supplemental Register, a mark may consist of any trade mark, symbol, label, package, configuration of goods, name, word, slogan, phrase surname, geographical name, numeral or device."

A trade mark cannot be registered if it comprises immoral, deceptive or scandalous matter, or matter that may disparage or falsely suggest a connection with persons living or dead, institutions, beliefs, or national symbols. It cannot use the flag or coat of arms or other insignia of the United States, any state, municipality or foreign nation. It cannot use a portrait, signature or name of a living individual without his consent, or those of a deceased President of the United States without consent of his widow.

An application for registration must be filed in the name of the owner of the mark, who may submit his case or be represented by an attorney authorized to practice in trade mark matters. A complete application comprises a written application, a drawing of the mark, five specimens or facsimiles and the required filing fee.

The Patent Office publishes a pamphlet, General Information Concerning Trade Marks, which describes the way applications and drawings are to be prepared and gives sample forms for applications. The Patent Office does not supply such forms. If facilities permit, the Office will make drawings from the applicant's direction and at his expense. If the application is allowed, the trade mark will be published in the Official Gazette so that anyone who considers that he will be damaged by the new mark may file his opposition in 30 days.

The Trade Mark Act of 1946 also provides for the registration of service marks, certification marks and collective marks. A service mark is a title, symbol or name used in sale or advertising of services to identify them. A certification mark is used by others besides the owner to certify origin or quality, such as work by a union. A collective mark is used by members of a cooperative, an association or other group and indicates membership in a union or other organization.

A trade mark is registered for 20 years and may be renewed for periods of 20 years if still in use in commerce regulated by Congress, unless previously cancelled or surrendered. The fee for the original application is $25, and for the renewal is $25, with lesser fees for corrections, amendments, abstracts of title and other services.

The pamphlet, General Information Concerning Trade Marks, is a general guide. A book, Rules of Practice in Trade Mark Cases, also is published, as well as the Official Gazette, which describes new patents. The first pamphlet is available at the U. S. Patent Office, Washington, D. C. For the others inquiries may be addressed to the Supt. of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. A digest of registered trade marks may be inspected at the Patent Office.

Copyright Law of the United States

Source: Copyright Office, Library of Congress

An author or proprietor may obtain statutory copyright protection by complying with the provisions of Title 17 of the United States Code. Applications for registration of claims to copyright are filed with the Register of Copyrights, Library of Congress, Washington 25, D. C. The Register has power to register only those works which comply with the law.

The copyright law provides that the application for registration of any work "shall specify to which of the following classes the work in which copyright is claimed belongs":

(a) Books including composite and cyclopaedic works, directories, gazettes and other compilations; (b) periodicals, including newspapers; (c) lectures, sermons, addresses, prepared for oral delivery; (d) dramatic or dramatico-musical compositions; (e) musical compositions; (f) maps; (g) works of art, models or designs for works of art; (h) reproductions of a work of art; (i) drawings or plastic works of a scientific or technical character; (j) photographs; (k) prints and pictorial illustrations including prints or labels used for articles of merchandise; (l) motion-picture photoplays; (m) motion pictures other than photoplays.

Works reproduced in copies for sale or public distribution. 1. The notice of copyright shall consist either of the word "Copyright" or the abbreviation "Copr.," accompanied by the name of the copyright proprietor, and if the work be a printed literary, musical, or dramatic work, the notice shall include also the year in which the copyright was secured by publication. For example: "Copyright 19— by John Doe." In the case, however, of copies of works specified above—(f) to (k)—the notice may consist of the letter C inclosed in a circle © accompanied by the initials, monogram, mark or symbol of the proprietor—provided that his name shall appear on some accessible part of the copies. 2. Promptly after publication send to the Copyright Office, Library of Congress, Washington, D. C., two copies (or if the work is by a foreign citizen and is first published in a foreign country, one copy only) of the best edition of the work, with an application for registration and $4 fee.

Books by American authors, alien authors, or proprietors domiciled within the United States at the time of first publication of the works. The copies deposited must be accompanied by an affidavit, under the official seal of an officer authorized to administer oaths, stating that the typesetting, printing and binding of the book have been performed within the United States. Affidavit and application forms will be supplied on request.

Works published outside of the United States. Public Law 84, effective June 3, 1949: 1. It offers foreign authors an alternative to the requirements of the deposit of one copy of the work, an application for registration and a $4 fee. The alternative is the deposit of two copies of the book, musical composition or other work, an application and a catalog card, but no fee. The alternative can be availed of only if the required items reach the Copyright Office in acceptable form within 6 months after first publication. 2. It extends the period for ad interim registration of a book or periodical in the English language from 60 days to 6 months after first publication abroad. It extends the period for the manufacture of such a book or periodical in the United States from 4 months after registration to 5 years after first publication abroad. 3. It permits the importation into the United States of 1500 copies, in one or more shipments, of a book or periodical of foreign origin in the English language during the 5 years after first publication abroad. This privilege applies only to works that have already been registered under the new law for ad interim copyright within six months of publication and is in addition to the copies allowed to be imported by other provisions of the copyright law. Books or periodicals so imported must bear a U. S. copyright notice.

Works not reproduced in copies for sale. Copyright may also be had of certain classes of works of which copies are not reproduced for sale, by filing in the Copyright Office an application for registration, with the statutory fee of $4, sending therewith: (1) In the case of lectures or other oral addresses or of dramatic or musical compositions, one complete copy of the work; (2) In the case of photographs, one photographic print; (3) In the case of works of art (paintings, drawings, sculptures), or of drawings or plastic works of a scientific or technical character, one photograph or other identifying reproduction of the work; (4) In the case of motion-picture photoplays, a title and description, with one print taken from each scene or act; (5) In the case of motion pictures other than photoplays, a title and description, with not less than two prints taken from different sections of a complete motion picture.

Fees

For the registration of a claim to copyright in any work, except a print or label used for articles of merchandise, $4; for the registration of a claim to copyright in a print or label used for articles of merchandise, $6; which fees shall include a certificate of registration.

For recording the renewal of copyright and issuance of certificate therefor, $2.

For every additional certificate of registration, $1.

For certifying a copy of an application for registration of copyright, and for all other certifications, $2.

For recording every assignment, agreement, power of attorney, or other paper not exceeding six pages, $3; for each additional page or less, 50 cents; for each title over one in the paper recorded, 50 cents additional.

For recording a notice of use, $2, for each notice of not more than five titles; and 50 cents for each additional title.

For any requested search of Copyright Office records, or works deposited, or services rendered in connection therewith, $3 for each hour of time consumed.

Copyright Notices

The notice of copyright shall be applied in the case of a book or other printed publication, upon its title page or the page immediately following, or if a periodical, either upon the title page, or upon the first page of text of each separate number or under the title heading, or if a musical work either upon its title page or the first page of music.

Terms of Copyright

The original term of copyright under existing U. S. law runs for 28 years. Within one year prior to the expiration of the original term, the author or his widow or children, executor or the next of kin, may secure a renewal for a further term of 28 years. In case of composite works, posthumous works or works made for hire, the proprietor may secure the renewal.

Universal Copyright Protection

The United States became a party to the Universal Copyright Convention when President Eisenhower on Aug. 31, 1954, signed legislation amending U. S. copyright law to make possible American participation. The Senate had ratified the convention June 25, 1954. The 12th signatory, Monaco, ratified the convention in June, 1955, and the law became effective September, 1955.

Under terms of the convention each state will provide for protection of the rights of authors and other copyright owners in literary, scientific and artistic works, including writings, music, drama, cinematographic works, paintings, engravings and sculpture. Works first published in any member nation will generally get the same protection in other member nations. The letter "c" in a circle accompanied by name of copyright owner and date of publication in a reasonable location on a work at first publication will obtain protection in any member country. It will be the international symbol of copyright. A translation will have copyright for the term of the original work.

One of the amendments to U. S. law was elimination of the clause requiring books in English by foreign authors to be manufactured here in order to get copyright protection. Foreign works need not be subject to the U. S. requirement of deposit and registration.

The American's Creed

Written by William Tyler Page, clerk of the U. S. House of Representatives, in 1917, and accepted by the House Apr. 3, 1918.

I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic a sovereign nation of many sovereign states, a perfect union, one and inseparable, established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes. I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its Constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag, and to defend it against all enemies.

¹Prior to 1924, this column shows the total acreage of crops for which figures are available, except for 1919, when 14,502,932 acres of corn cut for forage were excluded (most of this was probably duplicated in the acreage of corn harvested as grain). Beginning with 1924, the figures represent the actual land harvested. ²Based on reports for only a sample of farms.

American Purebred Livestock Organizations

Source: Breeder's Gazette, Stockyards, Louisville, Ky., Samuel R. Guard, Editor

Registration of pedigreed purebred livestock by 89 American associations reached a total of 1,830,937 pedigrees in 1954 according to a tally made by Breeder's Gazette in 1955. This is an increase of 156,516 over 1953. Notable was the rise in Angus cattle from 160,754 registrations in 1953 to 213,410 in 1954, and of Holstein heifers from 189,562 to 195,963. Dairy cattle were down by about 30,000 head, with Holsteins leading Guernseys and Jerseys. Durocs led the pedigreed swine, but the meat type, Yorkshires and Tamworths, nearly doubled. Purebred horse registrations declined 10%. The roster includes the name of the secretary, followed by the number of registrations.

Where the Tall Corn Grows

Source: Breeder's Gazette

Iowa not only holds first place among the 48 states for corn production, but also claims first place for quality of its crops and height of its corn stalks. While the average stalk is taller than a man's reach, Don Radda, Washington, Iowa, farmer, produced the world's tallest corn stalk, 31 ft. 3 in.

Hornless Dorset Sheep—A New Classification

Purebred Dorset sheep without horns, bred that way, are to be seen at North Carolina School of Agriculture farm near Raleigh. They give every indication of retaining early breeding, prolificacy and heavy milk production. The Continental Dorset Club granted temporary registration. Up to this time horns on both males (heavy, triangular, curving backwards and around in corkscrew, 1st turn not touching face) and females (more delicate in one turn, not too widespread) have been distinctive of the Dorset breed.

*Data subject to further revision.

¹In addition to regular commercial exports, the data for war and postwar years include aid and relief shipments largely made under the following programs: Lend-lease in the war years; UNRRA in immediate postwar years; civilian supplies sent to occupied areas through United States armed forces beginning 1947; ECA program beginning April 1948; and Mutual Security Program beginning July 1950. Supplies shipped to United States armed forces abroad for their own use are excluded.

Largest Shipload of Imported Iron Ore Arrives

The largest single shipload of iron ore ever brought into the U. S., 29,874 tons, reached Baltimore from Puerto Ordaz, Venezuela, August, 1955. It came from Cerro Bolivar, the iron mountain of Venezuela, and was owned by the U. S. Steel Corp. The vessel was unloaded in 22 hr., 45 min. by the Canton Railroad.

Navigable Distances from New York City

Distances from New York to foreign ports, and distances between foreign ports, are by the U. S. Navy Hydrographic Office.

Distances between United States ports are from the publication, "Distances Between United States Ports," issued by the Coast and Geodetic Survey, Department of Commerce.

One nautical mile: U. S. 6,076.10 feet. International Nautical Mile, 1,852 meters or 6,076.10 feet, was adopted for official use by agencies of the U. S. Government on July 1, 1954. Britain uses 6,079.98 feet; France and Germany, 6,076.10 feet, and Iceland 6,085.95 feet.

One statute mile=5,280 ft.

Small Increase in U. S. Merchant Fleet

Source: Department of Commerce

There were 1,162 vessels of 1,000 gross tons and over in the active oceangoing U. S. merchant fleet on Aug. 1, 1955, according to the Maritime Administration, U. S. Dept. of Commerce. This figure does not include privately owned vessels temporarily inactive, or Government-owned vessels loading grain for storage or undergoing repairs.

There were 123 Government-owned and 1,039 privately owned ships in active service. A net increase of 2 vessels was shown in the privately owned fleet with the purchase of 2 Government-owned Mariner vessels by Oceanic Steamship Co. The active Government merchant fleet increased by 2 freighters placed in operation for the Military Sea Transportation Service.

Delivery of a private tanker and placing of a contract for conversion work on the 2 Oceanic ships brought to 24 the total of vessels being built or under conversion.

Small Increase in U. S. Merchant Fleet

Source: Department of Commerce

There were 1,162 vessels of 1,000 gross tons and over in the active oceangoing U. S. merchant fleet on Aug. 1, 1955, according to the Maritime Administration, U. S. Dept. of Commerce.

This figure does not include privately owned vessels temporarily inactive, or Government-owned vessels loading grain for storage or undergoing repairs.

There were 123 Government-owned and 1,039 privately owned ships in active service. A net increase of 2 vessels was shown in the privately owned fleet with the purchase of 2 Government-owned Mariner vessels by Oceanic Steamship Co. The active Government fleet increased by 2 freighters placed in operation for the Military Sea Transportation Service.

Delivery of a private tanker and placing of a contract for conversion work on the 2 Oceanic ships brought to 24 the total of vessels being built or under conversion.

PANAMA CANAL

Cargo traffic for the calendar year, 1954, from the Atlantic to the Pacific totaled 17,752,501 long tons; Pacific to Atlantic, 21,275,314 tons.

These figures are for ocean-going, tolls paying traffic only.

Commercial traffic through the Panama Canal in 1954 was the highest in Canal history, totaling 7,861 ocean-going vessels of 300 net tons or more. Tolls amounted to $33,145,193, excluding a credit of $1,739,747 for U.S. Government vessels which were admitted free before establishment of the Panama Canal Company on July 1, 1951.

SAULT STE. MARIE

The Corps of Engineers of the Department of the Army states that lake commerce passing through the American and Canadian canals at Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan and Ontario for the season was: total freight traffic in short tons. (1945) 112,982,630; (1946) 91,586,995; (1947) 110,731,572; (1948) 115,414,277; (1949) 95,831,997; (1950) 106,140,406; (1951) 119,906,259; (1952) 106,275,645; (1953) 128,510,232; (1954 Prel.) 85,417,658.

A direct freight service from Europe to ports on the Great Lakes and return was begun by the French Line in April, 1955. The line placed 5 cargo ships in service, to call at Chicago, Milwaukee, Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland and Buffalo in the U. S., and Hamilton and Toronto in Canada. The ships alternate with 5 of the Swedish American Line, which began sailings on this route in 1948. All go via the canals.

THE SUEZ CANAL

About 103 miles long, the Suez Canal connects the Mediterranean with the Red Sea. It was begun April, 1859 and opened Nov. 17, 1869. The minimum width of the canal is 196 feet 10 inches, the maximum draught of water allowed for vessels passing through, 35 feet.

The Suez is operated by the Compagnie Universelle du Canal Maritime de Suez with its administrative seat in Paris. Benjamin Disraeli, British prime minister, Nov. 24, 1875, bought 176,752 of its 400,000 shares for $3,976,582 from the Khedive Ismail of Egypt. Shares were numerically doubled in 1924 and Britain now holds 188,144 Capital Shares and 165,360 shares out of a total of 418,530 and 381,470 respectively. The governing board is composed of 16 French, 9 British, 5 Egyptian, one American and one Netherlands directors.

The Suez Canal Co. reported to shareholders at Paris, June 7, 1955, that continued growth of traffic materialized in 1954 with 13,215 passages, an increase of 3.8% over 1953. More than half the vessels were tankers, accounting for 65,012,000 tons. Total net tonnage for the year was 102,494,000, an increase of 10.3% over 1953. An average of 36.2 ships per day passed through in 1954, against 34.9 in 1953, and against a daily average of 16.2 for the five years prior to World War II. In 1954, transit tolls were lowered for the 27th time.

Goods through the Canal totaled 96,881,000 tons — up 7.2%. Northbound shipments, representing 74,511,000 tons increased 9.8%, while southbound shipments, with 22,370,000 tons fell slightly. Oil and oil products made up 65% of all commodities.

The most authoritative forecasts indicate that traffic will grow heavier in the coming years. Hence the company has planned a new program of improvements, the first phase of which, costing more than $17,000,000 already has been launched. The aim is to raise the Canal's capacity from the present average of 40 ships per day to 48 ships, rising to 60 on peak days and to permit passage of ships drawing 36 feet. Widening and deepening of the channel is under way and two additional bypasses are to be dug—one at Port Said, the other at the southern end of the Great Bitter Lakes.

Shipbuilding Flourishes in Scottish Shipyards

In the first 6 mos. of 1955 the Scottish shipbuilding industry exceeded production for the same period, 1954, despite recurring labor troubles. Clyde firms launched 49 ships, just under 230,000 tons, compared with 43 ships of 241,000 tons in the first 6 mos., 1954. East of Scotland shipbuilders launched 20 ships of 52,500 tons, against 14 ships of 33,000 in first half, 1954. In June, 1955, Scottish firms launched 17 ships of 96,500 gross tonnage. One was the Empress of Britain, Canadian Pacific line, 26,000 tons.

Scottish ship builders have orders for 1,600,000 tons of work in hand. Clyde firms account for slightly less than 500,000 tons. John Brown & Co. is supplying four ships for the Montreal passenger liner trade to the Cunard Steamship Co., Ltd. This firm completed the first ship, the Saxonia, in August, 1954; the Invernia in June, 1955 and scheduled the third, the Carinthia, for December, 1955, launching with Princess Margaret officiating. The fourth will follow a year later.

Steamship and Motorships Over 18,600 Gross Tonnage

Source: Lloyd's Register of Shipping (Data as of June 1, 1955)

Gross tonnage is a measurement of cubic space, not weight. Length as listed below is distance between structural perpendiculars (stem to forepart of rudder post). Including additions due to funnels and protruding bows, overall lengths of the world's three largest commercial ships are: Queen Elizabeth 1,031 ft.; Queen Mary 1,020 ft.; United States 990 ft. The U.S. Navy carriers Forrestal and Saratoga, world's largest naval vessels, are approx. 1,036 feet overall.

United States Exhibits Atom Projects in International Trade Fairs

The U. S. Government, supported by Congress and with the cooperation of about 1,000 American industries, is taking part in 18 international trade fairs throughout the world during the fiscal year 1955-56. The largest number took place in the fall of 1955, August to December, when American products were displayed in Djakarta, Indonesia; Stockholm, Sweden; Salonika, Greece; Bari, Italy; Karachi, Pakistan; Vienna, Austria; Berlin, Germany; New Delhi, India; Phnom Penh, Cambodia; Addis Ababa, Ethiopia; Bogota, Colombia and Ciudad Trujillo, Dominican Republic. The first half of 1956 had fairs scheduled at Colombo, Ceylon; Osaka, Japan; Milan, Italy; Lyon, France; Hanover, Germany, and Paris. Besides many typically American products the Government stresses Atoms-for-Peace exhibits, including a complete radioactive hot laboratory, a 30-ft. graphite reactor mockup, a pair of magic hands to handle radioactive materials. Television exhibits using native performers in Asiatic countries also are featured.

French and American Train Speeds Compared

Source: Donald M. Steffie

Electrification of the Paris-Lyons main line, busiest rail route in Continental Europe has enabled France to claim not only the fastest trains in Europe but, also, seriously to threaten American world supremacy in train speed, particularly at distances ranging from 150 to 600 miles. Led by the Mistral, no less than 13 trains cover the 317.4 miles between the two cities at better than 60 miles per hour, intermediate stops included. Another French train, the Sud Express, for over half a century one of the fastest long-distance trains in the world, now covers the 359.8 miles from Paris to Bordeaux in 299 minutes. This is now the world's longest nonstop rail schedule. Below is a table of comparative performance of these French flyers with leading American trains for similar distances.

Railroad	Train	From	To	Miles	Time	Speed	Stops
Union Pacific	City of Denver	North Platte	Columbus	199.5	155	77.2	2
French National	Mistral	Paris	Dijon	195.3	152	77.1	0
French National	Mistral	Paris	Lyons	317.4	250	76.2	1
Union Pacific	City of Denver	Sterling	Columbus	338.2	275	73.7	4
Union Pacific	City Los Angeles	Cheyenne	Grand Island	362.6	295	73.7	2
French National	Sud Express	Paris	Bordeaux	359.8	299	72.2	0
Union Pacific	City of Denver	Denver	Columbus	478.0	402	71.3	6
French National	Sud Express	Paris	Bayonne	482.5	412	70.3	1

Union Pacific	City of Denver	Denver	Omaha	559.7	480	69.9	7
French National	Mistral	Paris	Marseilles	535.4	480	66.9	4

In 1939 the German streamliner "Fliegende Kölner" ran from Berlin to Hamm, 267.1 miles in 196 minutes—81.8 mph. This was the fastest regular train schedule ever operated over 250 miles.

FRENCH ELECTRIC RAILROAD LOCOMOTIVES BREAK ALL SPEED RECORDS

Source: French National Railroads

All speed records for railroads were broken in France in March, 1955, in two separate tests by electric locomotives, each pulling the same three passenger coaches. On Mar. 28 CC 7107 reached 198 miles per hour, and on Mar. 29 BB 9004 hit 207 mph. Tests were made on a 40-mile straight section of track between Bordeaux and Dax, which has a direct electric current of 1,500 volts.

CC 7107, built by the Societe Alsthom, as 2 6-wheel trucks, weighs 107 metric tons and is of the type that makes the regular Paris-Lyon run at 76 mph. The older theory that non-driving axles were essential to take curves at high speed was discarded and all axles of the engine were made to carry driving wheels, contributing both to speed and to adherence to rails. The same device was used in building BB 9004, the result of cooperation by Creusot, Schneider-Westinghouse and Jeumont. BB 9004 had 2 4-wheel trucks, weighs 83 metric tons and has 300 hp less than CC 7107. It costs 25% less than the CC 7000 series, and 40 examples were being built in 1955.

The locomotives were expected to develop 10,000 hp at 185 mph, and a pantograph was designed capable of absorbing 4,000 amperes at high speed. Although special tests had been made of all moving parts, no special brakes were designed. Windows were lowered at the proper time to create a drag and helped slow down the engines to a safe braking speed.

The previous world speed record was 151.6 mph, made by CC 7121, between Dijon and Beaune on Feb. 21, 1954, also with 3 coaches attached.

Express Service by Rail and Plane

Source: Railway Express Agency, Inc.

Express service in the United States began operating on March 4, 1839, and is carried on trains and planes coordinated through the Railway Express Agency into a nationwide system, with 14,529 offices serving 23,000 communities, and employing 42,232 men and women. Traffic carried:

Year	Rail Shipments
1945	207,034,730
1946	231,480,741
1947	189,337,699

1952	92,034,796
1953	85,835,819
1954	75,761,012

As of April, 1955, 13,924 motor vehicles, including 984 depot and terminal trucks, were used to maintain collection and delivery of express shipments. These trucks cover 75,448,130 miles per year. The Express Agency operates on a total mileage of 327,408, which includes 177,787 on railroad lines.

Air Express service was started on a commercial basis Sept. 1, 1927, when the express company contracted with the existing airlines to carry express on regularly scheduled flights. Traffic totals:

Report of the National Assn. of Hosiery Manufacturers, issued May, 1955

There were 1,329 hosiery plants in the United States on Jan. 1, 1955, a net decrease of 46 from 1953. There were 730 full-fashioned plants, a decrease of 32 from 1953. Plants in the North decreased by 50, while plants in the South increased by 18. The number of seamless plants was 599, a decrease of 14 during the year. Plants in the North decreased by 10 to 137 and plants in the South decreased by 4 to 462.

Production of all types of hosiery in 1954 was 151,818,601 dozen pairs, 4.4% fewer than 1953. Women's hosiery (including anklets) decreased 2.8%, men's hose decreased 3.7%, and children's and infants' hosiery 10.7%.

The average number of workers employed in full-fashioned mills during the first half of 1954 was 55,651. For the last half of the year the average number was 53,622. The average monthly number of employees in 1954 of 54,637 was a decrease of 4,356 from the 1953 figure of 58,993, or 7.4%. Monthly average of seamless employees in 1954 was 62,408. The 1953 average was 65,436.

Women's Hosiery—Production of all types of women's full-length hosiery in 1954 was 58,574,748 doz. prs., a decline of 635,197 doz. prs. from the 1953 figure or 1.1%.

Nylon full-fashioned hosiery production was 48,536,463 doz. prs., or 99.4% of total full-fashioned production. Nylon seamless of 7,845,059 doz. prs. in 1954 represented 80.5% of women's seamless hosiery, a 10% increase over the 1953 figure of 73.3%. Women's seamless nylon stockings represented 80.5% of the total seamless production.

Surveys of both the above types are made in March and October of each year. Production is overwhelmingly in the sheerer deniers. In October, 1954, full-fashioned stockings of 12 and 15 deniers represented 81.5% of the total. Seamless stockings of 12 and 15 deniers were 97.8% of the total. In gauge construction, 60 and 66 gauges made up 43.6% of the total and 51 gauge 49.3% of the total.

Men's Hosiery—Men's half-hose production in 1944 was 36,203,803 doz. prs. In 1954 it fell to a low of 9,980,489 doz. prs.

Men's sock socks, 12,607,750 doz. prs. in 1944, reached 31,906,192 doz. prs. in 1954.

Bundle goods and athletic socks were practically identical with 1953. Crew sock production, 2,365,526 doz. prs., was a decline of 20.2%.

Children's and Infants' Hosiery—Production for 1954 was 8,118,404 doz. prs., a decline of 16.9% from the 1953 production.

Anklets—Production of anklets of all types in 1954 was 33,380,991 doz. prs., a decrease of 6.7% from 1953.

Women's and misses' anklets declined by 1,470,946 doz. prs. and infants' anklets declined by 1,196,466 doz. prs. Children's and men's and boys' anklets showed slight increases.

Exports—All types, 5,609,647 doz. prs., a decline of 4% from 1953. Cotton hosiery exports amounted to 2,024,176 doz. prs., an increase of 11.5%. Men's hose were 66.8% and children's hose 28.1% of the total.

Women's full-fashioned nylon stocking exports declined by 553,644 doz. prs. or 17.9%. Women's seamless nylon stocking exports, at 466,273 doz. prs. were practically identical with 1953.

Exports of synthetic hosiery, 3,580,801 doz. prs., showed a decrease of 11.1% from 1953. Women's nylon hosiery composed 82.4% of the total. Switzerland was our principal customer, taking 765,489 doz. prs. Next followed the Union of South Africa with 438,080 doz. prs., and Canada with 415,940 doz. prs. Exports to Canada changed markedly from those of 1953. Whereas in 1953 Canada took 128,126 doz. prs. of seamless hosiery and 415,906 doz. prs. of full-fashioned, in 1954 the figures were 208,460 doz. prs. of seamless and 207,489 doz. prs. of full-fashioned.

Exports of men's synthetic hose were 585,341 doz. prs., an increase of 20.3%. Major customers were the Republic of the Philippines with 120,350 doz. prs., and the Union of South Africa with 53,894 doz. prs. Shipments to Canada were 164,713 doz. prs., practically the same as in 1953. Shipments to Central American countries at 232,549 doz. prs. declined 21.1%. Shipments to the West Indies at 118,180 doz. prs. were a drop of 29.5% from the 1953 total.

Shipments to Asia at 617,047 doz. prs. were an increase of 26.6% over 1953. The entire increase was in our shipments to the Republic of the Philippines, which increased from 370,462 doz. prs. to 559,713 doz. prs. or 51.1%.

Imports—All types, 382,913 doz. prs., a decrease of 25.9%.

Imports of cotton hosiery, 32,783 doz. prs., showed a decline of 19.6%. Imports of woollen hosiery, 345,747 doz. prs., showed a decline of 27%. Imports from the United Kingdom declined 26%, Austria 39% and West Germany 10%.

Footwear Production—U. S. and Foreign

WORLD PRODUCTION

World use of footwear (shoes, slippers and sandals made entirely or partly of leather) continues to increase. The per capita output in 1930 was 0.47 pairs; in 1954, 0.60 pr. Total output, 1954, estimated by U. S. Dept. of Commerce, 1,317,910,000 pr.

Asia has the lowest production of leather footwear. Leading countries in 1952: India and Pakistan, 38,710,000 pr.; Australia, 23,105,000 pr.; Japan, 8,267,000 pr.; New Zealand, 5,241,000 pr.

Africa, 1952: Egypt, 12,637,000 pr.; Union of South Africa, 16,108,000 pr.

South America, 1952: total, 71,447,000 pr., of which Brazil produced 35,683,000 pr., Argentina, 18,967,000 pr.

Europe, 1952: total, 498,181,000 pr., of which United Kingdom produced 142,010,000 pr.; USSR, prewar boundaries, 89,115,000 pr.; Germany, prewar boundaries, 70,121,000 pr.; France, 45,012,000 pr.; Italy, 24,811,000 pr.; Czechoslovakia, 17,375,000 pr.; Netherlands, 16,036,000 pr.; Spain, 11,010,000 pr.

NORTH AMERICAN PRODUCTION

The United States is the only country with an annual consumption of shoes in excess of three pairs per capita. It accounted for almost 40% of shoe output in 1954. Of 572,814,000 pr. produced in 1952 the United States accounted for 508,534,000 pr., Canada for 37,460,000 pr., Mexico for 13,843,000 pr. and Cuba 7,380,000 pr.

In 1954 women's and misses shoes outnumbered men's and youth's shoes by nearly three times.

The competitive character of the American shoe industry is indicated by output. Of approximately 900 shoe producers, the largest 4 produced less than 25% and the largest 50 less than half the shoes. The largest 500 produced about 94% of the shoes. Massachusetts produced 20.5% of all shoes in 1954; New York, 13.9%; Pennsylvania, 10.9%; Missouri, 10.7%; Maine, 8.1%. In 1953 the U. S. exported 5,159,267 pr., all kinds, value $16,157,601; imported 3,217,349 pr., value $9,850,722.

Average number of shoeworkers employed in 1954 (est.) 243,400. Average weekly wage (est.) $48.01.

Athletic Shoe production in 1954, 2,993,002 pr.; by types, ice skating, 906,982 pr.; regular baseball, 627,439 pr.; roller skating, 389,698 pr.; football, 379,568 pr.; bowling, 367,896; little league baseball, 135,402 pr.; track, 120,298. The figures show an increase over 1953 in regular baseball, football, track, ice skating, and a falling off in bowling and roller skating.

FOOT HYGIENE

The National Shoe Manufacturers Assn. advises: bathe feet daily, dry thoroughly. Massage dry feet with foot cream, moist feet with alcohol or lotion, then dust powder. Rub corns and callouses with a dry towel, never with scissors or sharp instruments. Change shoes and stockings twice a day and wear foot-shaped hosiery that extend one-half inch beyond longest toe. Exercise feet; wiggle toes, walk at least two miles a day and keep feet straight, toes forward when sitting or walking. Avoid wet feet, wear rubbers on damp or wet days. Shoe soles should be flexible where the foot bends to prevent fatigue. Heels should never run over; keep them straight to avoid large ankles, knee and back aches.

WORLD SUGAR PRODUCTION ESTIMATES

Revision of estimates of sugar production, made in May, 1955, by the Dept. of Agriculture, placed world production of centrifugal cane and beet sugar for 1954-55 at 40,300,000 short tons, raw value, thus revising upward earlier estimates by nearly 1,200,000 tons. This means a sizable addition to world surplus.

World production of non-centrifugal sugar was estimated at 6,200,000 short tons during 1954-55, or slightly larger than the crop of 1953-54. Estimated world production of centrifugal cane sugar for 1954-55 was revised upward to 24,700,000 short tons, raw value, a new record and an increase of 3.3% over the previous season. Increased production is noted for every continent except North America. Decreased output in North America reflects almost entirely the restrictions on production in Cuba. With the limitation of the U. S. Sugar Act, total offshore and continental United States production remained at the level of 2,900,000 tons. The Republic of the Philippines filled its marketing quota in the United States in 1954 for the first time since before the war and is maintaining its output at slightly more than its quota plus domestic requirements.

The 1954-55 estimate of world beet sugar production was revised upward to 15,600,000 short tons, raw value, from the preliminary estimate of 15,200,000 tons in November. The crop is 4.4% less than the record 16,300,000 tons of 1953-54. In Western Europe, upward revisions in the 1954-55 estimate were noted for every country except Ireland, Italy, Sweden, and Yugoslavia. An upward revision for Eastern Europe outside of the U.S.S.R. offsets a downward revision for that country. The estimate for United States beet sugar production remains at about 2,000,000 tons and continues with a 1,800,000 tons marketing quota under the Sugar Act.

The new International Sugar Agreement ended its first year of operation with the free market price at 3.17 cents per pound, f.a.s., Cuban ports. The International Sugar Council had reduced the quotas of participating exporting countries by the maximum 20% permissible.

According to the United States Bureau of Mines & Minerals Yearbook of 1950 more salt is used in the manufacture of chemicals than for any other purpose. The average American uses about six pounds a year to season food.

Michigan ranks first in domestic production of sodium chloride (NaCl), the chemical nomenclature for common salt. New York is second. There is commercial production of evaporated salt in 14 states, of rock salt in 8 states, and of brine in 8 states.

Price Support By U. S. Government

Source: Commodity Credit Corporation, U. S. Department of Agriculture

The Commodity Credit Corporation was created Oct. 17, 1933, and became a part of the Department of Agriculture, 1939. It is authorized to engage in buying, selling, lending and related activities in agricultural commodities, with the object of supporting farm prices. The 82nd Congress provided that price support should be at 90% of parity for basic agricultural commodities and 75% to 90% for all other agricultural commodities for the 1953 and 1954 crops. The Agricultural Act of 1954 provided for flexible price supports on the basic commodities, beginning with the 1955 crop, at a level ranging from a minimum of 82.5% of parity to a maximum of 90% for 1955 and from a minimum of 75% to a maximum of 90% in following years.

The Commodity Credit Corporation is authorized by statute to borrow money as needed. This authorization was increased from $8,500,000,000 to $10,000,000,000 maximum amount to be outstanding at any one time, and $10,000,000,000 was the authorized maximum June 30, 1955. The authorization for total borrowing was increased from $10,000,000,000 to $12,000,000,000 by Public Law 344, 84th Congress, approved Aug. 11, 1955.

Effective Nov. 2, 1953, CCC has been a part of the Commodity Stabilization Service of the Department of Agriculture, the administrator of the latter also being executive vice president of CCC.

During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1955, the total dollar volume of price support extended on 1954 crops totaled $2,943,000,000. This compared with $4,306,000,000 on 1953 crops which represented the all-time high extended on any one crop.

*Maiden voyage. (a) First steamship to cross Atlantic. (b) First American ship to use steam on ocean crossing (sailing vessel with steam auxiliary). (c) First Cunard liner. (d) Carried Charles A. Lindbergh back to the United States after his flight from New York to Paris. (e) Carried Hiroshima atomic bomb; arrived at Saipan July 26, 1945. (f) Set world speed record; average speed eastbound on maiden voyage, 35.59 knots (about 41 m.p.h.); westbound, 34.51 knots.

The Savannah (b) was a fully rigged vessel of over 300 tons, 98.5 ft. long, beam 25.8 ft., depth 12.9 ft., launched in the East River in 1818. It was supplied with engines and detachable iron paddle wheels. On its famous voyage it used steam 80 hours on 18 different days. Later it was offered to the U. S. Navy which refused it. In 1882 it grounded on Long Island opposite Sandy Hook and broke up.

RELIGIOUS INFORMATION

Census of Religious Bodies in United States

Source: The World Almanac Questionnaire and Year Book of American Churches

The churches and church memberships in Continental United States, as reported by the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U. S. A. in its Yearbook of American Churches, 1956, Benson Y. Landis, editor, published September, 1955, were:

Religious bodies: 254.

Number of churches: 300,056, a gain of 1.9%.

Membership: 97,482,611, a gain of 2.8% over 1954. Protestants listed a gain of 2.3%; Roman Catholics reportedly increased 2.9%. Church membership is 69.3% of the population of the United States.

Sunday or Sabbath school enrollment: 37,623,530, in 262,826 schools, a gain of 6.3% in enrollment.

In the following table, the totals for churches and membership came from several sources and do not always coincide with the figures quoted above. Some were reported as of 1954, others as of mid-1955; some came direct from church officials, others from the Yearbook of American Churches, 1956. When the totals for a denomination are not the sum of figures reported by individual churches, it signifies that the most recent denominational figures have been used. The number of churches is given in parentheses.

The Methodist Church

The name Methodist was originally given to Charles and John Wesley and several other Oxford students, in 1729. It is thought that the term was selected due to the exact and "methodical" manner in which they performed various engagements which a sense of Christian duty induced them to undertake. The Methodist movement was carried to America in 1760 by Methodist emigrants from Ireland. The present organization of the Methodist Church began in May 1939, with the unification of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and the Methodist Protestant Church. Churches, 39,801; membership, 9,313,278, largest single Protestant body in the United States. The U. S. church is administered by 37 bishops. Methodist bodies throughout the United States have a membership of 11,803,645.

The supreme policy-making body is the quadrennial General Conference. Principal agencies at 150 Fifth Ave., New York 11, N. Chronological List of Popes

Source: Annuario Pontificio

The Pope's temporal title now is: Sovereign of the State of Vatican City. Formerly it was Sovereign of the Temporal Domains of the Holy Roman Church.

The Pope's spiritual titles are: Vicar of Christ, Successor of St. Peter, Bishop of Rome, Archbishop and Metropolitan of the Roman Province, Primate of Italy, Patriarch of the West, Supreme Pontiff of the Universal Church.

Anti-Popes are in bold face. Anti-Popes were illegitimate claimants of or pretenders to the papal throne.

The College of Cardinals

The College of Cardinals, when complete, is made up of 70 members, of whom ordinarily, 6 are Cardinal-Bishops, 50 are Cardinal-Priests, and 14 are Cardinal-Deacons. The College is the Senate of the Roman Church. The Cardinals advise the Pope and elect his successor. The Cardinal-Bishops take their titles from the Suburban Sees of Rome.

The National Catholic Welfare Conference

The National Catholic Welfare Conference was organized (1919) as a common agency acting under the bishops to promote the welfare of the Catholics of the United States. The Conference has for its incorporated purposes "unifying, coordinating and organizing the Catholic people of the United States in works of education, social welfare, immigrant aid and other activities." The Conference comprises the following departments and bureaus:

Executive—Bureaus maintained: Information, Fraternity of Christian Doctrine, Publications, Business and Auditing, United Nations and International Affairs.

Youth—Facilitates exchange of information regarding the philosophy, organization, and program-content of Catholic youth organizations; promotes the National Catholic Youth Council, the federating agency for all existing, approved Catholic youth groups; contacts and evaluates national governmental and non-governmental youth organizations and youth servicing organizations.

Education—Divisions: Statistics and Information, Education Liaison and Exchange of Persons.

Press—Serves the Catholic press in the United States and abroad with regular news, features, editorial, pictorial, biographical, and editorial cartoon services; special texts, supplements and syndications; and weekly Radio-Television news-script.

Social Action—Covers the fields of Industrial Relations, International Affairs, Family Life, Civic Education, Social Welfare, Health and Hospitals, and Race Relations.

Legal—Serves as a clearing house of information on Federal, State and local legislation, and when requested represents Catholic interests before federal executive offices.

Lay Organizations—Includes the National Council of Catholic Men and the National Council of Catholic Women, which maintain at N. C. W. C. headquarters permanent secretariats in the interests of the Catholic laity. These councils function through some 14,500 affiliated societies—national, state, diocesan, district, local and parish; also through units of the councils in many of the dioceses.

The N.C.C.M. sponsors the weekly nation-wide radio Catholic Hour over the NBC network. The Christian in Action over the ABC Network and the Catholic Hour over NBC-TV. It publishes "Catholic Men," a monthly news magazine as well as pamphlets and booklets on the work of NCCM.

The N.C.C.W. makes suggestions for programs and speakers through its "Monthly Message to Affiliated Organizations."

The National Council of Catholic Nurses is closely associated with NCCW and NCWC Bureau of Health and Hospitals. The program of the NCCN is the personal sanctification of the lives of its members and the inculcation of Christian principles in the field of health and nursing.

Immigration—Handles problems in immigration, emigration, deportation, naturalization and citizenship, especially where the Church and its institutions are involved.

Catholic Relief Services, N.C.W.C.—Administers a program of relief and assistance to refugees, prisoners of war, displaced persons, victims of war, and merchant seamen in the U. S., and in more than 60 foreign countries. Distributes funds from annual Bishops' collection; cooperates with major foreign relief organizations. Headquarters, 350 Fifth Ave., New York 1, N. Y.

Mission Secretariat—Provides assistance to all U. S. religious societies sending missionaries to foreign lands and to help various mission aid groups; provides contacts among missionary communities with each other and with governmental and non-governmental agencies which touch on mission work; provides an inquiry center for the various community headquarters and missionaries in the field; assists Catholic agencies in the U. S. to contact Catholic missionaries.

Administrative Board, National Catholic Welfare Conference—Ex Officio Members: Edward Cardinal Mooney, Samuel Cardinal Stritch, Francis Cardinal Spellman, and James Francis Cardinal McIntyre. Most Rev. Karl J. Alter, Archbishop of Cincinnati, Chairman; Most Rev. Francis P. Keough, Archbishop of Baltimore, Vice-Chairman; Most Rev. Joseph E. Ritter, Archbishop of St. Louis, Secretary; Most Rev. John F. O'Hara, Archbishop of Philadelphia, Treasurer; Most Rev. Matthew F. Brady, Bishop of Manchester, Chairman Education Department; Most Rev. Emmet M. Walsh, Bishop of Youngstown, Chairman Legal Department; Most Rev. Richard J. Cushing, Archbishop of Boston, Chairman Lay Organizations; Most Rev. Thomas K. Gorman, Coadjutor Bishop of Dallas, Chairman Press Department; Most Rev. John J. Mitty, Archbishop of San Francisco, Chairman Youth Department; Most Rev. Michael J. Ready, Bishop of Columbus, Chairman Immigration Department; Most Rev. Francis P. Keough, Archbishop of Baltimore, Chairman of Social Action Department.

Officers at National Headquarters, 1312 Massachusetts Ave., N.W., Washington 5, D. C.—Rt. Rev. Msgr. Howard J. Carroll, general secretary, and Rt. Rev. Msgr. Paul F. Tanner, assistant general secretary.

In addition to the above named departments, the general body of the bishops maintains the following Special Committees: American Board of Catholic Missions, Propagation of the Faith, Fraternity of Christian Doctrine, Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, Polish Relief, Spanish Speaking, Welfare Emergency and Relief Committee, Committee for Montezuma Seminary, Committee on Motion Pictures, National Organization for Decent Literature, North American College at Rome, Pope's Peace Plan and Catholic Migrants.

American Leaders Named to Hall of Fame

Three American leaders were voted places in the Hall of Fame for Great Americans Oct. 31, 1955. They are Wilbur Wright (1867-1912), inventor, with his brother Orville, of the first successful heavier-than-air airplane; Thomas Jonathan Jackson (1824-1863), Confederate military leader known as Stonewall Jackson, and George Westinghouse (1846-1914), inventor of the air brake and numerous devices for the use of electricity in manufacture.

A candidate must have been dead 25 years to achieve a place in the Hall. Wilbur Wright's brother, Orville, died in 1948 and hence was not eligible. The men honored are commemorated with busts and plaques placed in a colonnade on the campus of New York Univ. above the Harlem river. Additions are made every 5 years and are voted on by a college of electors of 128 members. Nominations are made by the public. The men chosen in 1955 won over William James, Henry D. Thoreau, Edward A. MacDowell, Andrew Carnegie, Luther Burbank, Charles W. Eliot and Winslow Homer. Since each of these received more than 20 votes they will be represented on the next ballot in 1960. Bible Society Book Distribution alone Bibles were distributed in 85 languages.

According to the report of the American Bible Society, 450 Park Ave., New York, N. Y., made public in 1955, the organization distributed in 1954 a total of 15,391,171 books in 176 languages and 31 additional characters in the following categories: Bibles, 1,011,263; Testaments, 1,677,831; Gospels and Portions, 12,702,022. The society distributes books in over 40 countries and prints them in the United States, Mexico, Latin America, the Near East and the Far East. In the United States

Of the society's total distribution, 9,000,071 volumes were distributed in the United States. In foreign distribution, Japan led with 978,700 volumes, Brazil second with 868,520 volumes, and Argentina third with 555,371.

The society's work for the blind exceeded that of any former year with a distribution of 55,076 embossed volumes in braille and other systems, and talking book records.

The American National Red Cross

Honorary President—The President of the United States. Chairman—E. Roland Harriman, New York, N. Y. President—Ellsworth Bunker, Washington, D. C. Area Managers—Eastern, Harold B. Nearman, Alexandria, Va.; Southeastern, W. W. Jefferson, Atlanta, Ga.; Midwestern, Walker L. Millner, St. Louis, Mo.; Pacific, Sam B. Montgomery, San Francisco, Calif.

The American National Red Cross is one of 70 similar societies throughout the world. It was founded in 1881, with Clara Barton as its first president. It operates under a congressional charter granted in 1905. Its governing body is a 50-member Board of Governors, of whom 30 are elected by the chapters, 8 appointed by the President of the United States, and 12 elected by the Board itself as members-at-large. There are 3,700 local chapters and 4,000 branches. The society is supported by popular subscriptions to annual fund campaigns. In 1954 contributions totaled $82,000,000.

During the calendar year 1954 the Red Cross gave rehabilitation aid to 13,200 families in 315 disaster relief operations in 44 states, Alaska, and 2 insular chapters. The relief expenditures were $3,714,000.

Over 40% of the 1954 budget was spent in a variety of services for members of the United States armed forces around the world, for veterans, and their dependents. Red Cross field directors at military installations and hospitals helped 107,500 servicemen monthly and chapters across the country served 112,000 families monthly.

Red Cross field directors serve at military installations and military hospitals; 2,700 Red Cross representatives now serve the armed forces in the United States and overseas. At 74 Veterans' Administration offices they give a wide variety of services to veterans. Red Cross volunteer workers assist the staffs of 170 VA hospitals and centers in serving patients.

BLOOD COLLECTION PROGRAM

The Red Cross provides, without charge, blood and blood derivatives to people in communities served by the program. In May 1955, there were 46 regional centers and 110 mobile units collecting blood for the Red Cross. From January through December 1954, 2,467,000 donations were collected and blood was being furnished to more than 3,500 hospitals in 44 states and the District of Columbia.

The home nursing courses instruct homemakers in basic nursing skills; the aim is to train one member of every family to meet emergencies and safeguard family health. The Nursing Services program also includes the instruction of volunteer nurse's aides and the enrollment of nurses for community and emergency service.

Safety Services emphasizes safety education to help lessen the large annual toll of accidental injuries and deaths. The objectives of Red Cross courses in first aid, swimming, lifesaving, and the handling of small craft are first to prevent accidents, and second to know what to do when they occur.

More than 75,000 schools are now enrolled in the Junior Red Cross. Service opportunities for the members are related to the interests and activities of the students and to the curriculum. In addition to serving the community, junior members promote friendship and understanding with young people in other lands by exchange of gift boxes, international correspondence, school art, and music.

Volunteers are the backbone of the American Red Cross. Numbering more than 1,500,000, they serve as chapter officers and board members; as instructors of Red Cross courses; in Services such as Arts and Skills, Canteen, Entertainment and Supply, Gray Lady, Motor, Production, Social Welfare Aide, Staff Aide, and Volunteer Nurse's Aide; and in many other capacities.

INTERNATIONAL RED CROSS

There are two international Red Cross organizations: the International Committee of the Red Cross, a committee of Swiss citizens, founded in 1863; and the League of Red Cross Societies, a federation of the national societies, founded in 1919.

Under the Geneva Conventions the International Committee of the Red Cross acts as a neutral intermediary between warring nations and gives aid to prisoners of war. Another function of the committee is to protect the principles of the Red Cross movement. The League of Red Cross Societies promotes cooperation, program development, and mutual help among the Red Cross societies of the world.

The National Jewish Welfare Board

The National Jewish Welfare Board (JWB) is the agency created by the American Jewish community in 1917 to serve the religious, welfare and morale needs of Jewish personnel in the U.S. Armed Forces and Veterans Administration Hospitals.

Through a merger with the National Council of Young Men's Hebrew and Kindred Associations, founded in 1913, JWB in 1921 also became the national association of Jewish Community Centers and YM-YWHA's. JWB is also a founder and the American member of the World Federation of YMHAs and Jewish Community Centers, which introduced the Center movement in Israel and encouraged its growth and development in other parts of the democratic world. Since the 1940s, JWB has been the sponsor of the Jewish Book Council of America and the National Jewish Music Council, coordinators of Jewish Book Month and Jewish Music Festival. JWB is also the sponsor of the National Jewish Youth Conference, which represents local and regional Jewish youth and young adult councils. Through its Jewish Center Lecture Bureau, JWB books hundreds of speakers and artists annually to further adult Jewish educational activities.

In serving Jews in the Armed Forces and veterans hospitals, JWB operates through three divisions. The Commission on Jewish Chaplaincy, representing the Conservative, Orthodox and Reform Rabbinate, is authorized to recruit, ecclesiastically endorse and serve all military Jewish chaplains. At the end of 1954 there were 96 full-time Jewish chaplains on duty at 50 overseas areas and in the United States, and 235 more serving part-time in the U. S.

The Armed Services Division, manned by a professional field staff and 9,850 volunteers organized into 249 community-wide Armed Services Committees, organizes recreational programs, cultural activities, home hospitality and holiday and Sabbath observances. This division also provides bath observances. This division also provides religious supplies and literature and kosher food to chaplains and GIs. The Women's Organizations Division, an alliance of 9 national Jewish women's organizations, provides gift packages to chaplains overseas and to hospitalized veterans in country. Service to remote camps and hospitals is provided on a non-sectarian basis. As a member agency of USO, JWB is responsible for a number of USO operations in the U.S. and overseas and also conducts servicemen's centers in the Panama Canal Zone, Tokyo and Germany.

As the national association of Jewish Community Centers, JWB provides field service, program materials and technical consultative services, trains and recruits professional personnel and maintains a building bureau and camping department for its 350 affiliated Jewish Community Centers and YM-YWHA's. These Centers serve not only their own 552,000 members, who range in age from 3 to 83, but hundreds of thousands of others through community-wide cultural, recreational, camping and youth programs. Combined Center operating expenditures in 1955 totaled $15,450,000; investments in buildings reached $65,000,000; annual aggregate attendance came to 12,230,000.

At the end of 1954 the Center movement and JWB completed the observance of the centennial of the establishment of the first YMHA in Baltimore in 1854. Simultaneously JWB and the Centers played a leading role in the nationwide celebration of the 300th anniversary of Jewish settlement in America, which was observed from the fall of 1954 through June 1955.

The National Catholic Welfare Conference

The National Catholic Welfare Conference was organized (1919) as a common agency acting under the bishops to promote the welfare of the Catholics of the United States. The Conference has for its incorporated purposes "unifying, coordinating and organizing the Catholic people of the United States in works of education, social welfare, immigrant aid and other activities." The Conference comprises the following departments and bureaus:

Executive—Bureaus maintained: Information, Fraternity of Christian Doctrine, Publications, Business and Auditing, United Nations and International Affairs.

Youth—Facilitates exchange of information regarding the philosophy, organization, and program of Catholic youth organizations; promotes the National Catholic Youth Council, the federating agency for all existing, approved Catholic youth groups; contacts and evaluates national governmental and non-governmental youth organizations and youth serving organizations.

Education—Divisions: Statistics and Information, Education Liaison and Exchange of Persons.

Press—Serves the Catholic press in the United States and abroad with regular news, features, editorial, pictorial, biographical, and editorial cartoon services; special texts, supplements and syndications; and weekly Radio-Television news-script.

Social Action—Covers the fields of Industrial Relations, International Affairs, Family Life, Civic Education, Social Welfare, Health and Hospitals, and Race Relations.

Legal—Serves as a clearing house of information on Federal, State and local legislation, and when requested represents Catholic interests before federal executive offices.

Lay Organizations—Includes the National Council of Catholic Men and the National Council of Catholic Women, which maintain at N. C. W. C. headquarters permanent secretariats in the interests of the Catholic laity. These councils function through some 14,500 affiliated societies—national, state, diocesan, district, local and parish; also through units of the councils in many of the dioceses.

The N.C.C.M. sponsors the weekly nation-wide radio Catholic Hour over the NBC network. The Christian in Action over the ABC Network and the Catholic Hour over NBC-TV. It publishes "Catholic Men," a monthly news magazine as well as pamphlets and booklets on the work of NCCM.

The N.C.C.W. makes suggestions for programs and speakers through its "Monthly Message to Affiliated Organizations."

The National Council of Catholic Nurses is closely associated with NCCW and NCWC Bureau of Health and Hospitals. The program of the NCCN is the personal sanctification of the lives of its members and the inculcation of Christian principles in the field of health and nursing.

Immigration—Handles problems in immigration, emigration, deportation, naturalization and citizenship, especially where the Church and its institutions are involved.

Catholic Relief Services, N.C.W.C.—Administers a program of relief and assistance to refugees, prisoners of war, displaced persons, victims of war, and merchant seamen in the U. S., and in more than 60 foreign countries. Distributes funds from annual Bishops' collection; cooperates with major foreign relief organizations. Headquarters, 350 Fifth Ave., New York 1, N. Y.

Mission Secretariat—Provides assistance to all U. S. religious societies sending missionaries to foreign lands and to help various mission aid groups; provides contacts among missionary communities with each other and with governmental and non-governmental agencies which touch on mission work; provides an inquiry center for the various community headquarters and missionaries in the field; assists Catholic agencies in the U. S. to contact Catholic missionaries.

Administrative Board, National Catholic Welfare Conference—Ex Officio Members: Edward Cardinal Mooney, Samuel Cardinal Stritch, Francis Cardinal Spellman, and James Francis Cardinal McIntyre. Most Rev. Karl J. Alter, Archbishop of Cincinnati, Chairman; Most Rev. Francis P. Keough, Archbishop of Baltimore, Vice-Chairman; Most Rev. Joseph E. Ritter, Archbishop of St. Louis, Secretary; Most Rev. John F. O'Hara, Archbishop of Philadelphia, Treasurer; Most Rev. Matthew F. Brady, Bishop of Manchester, Chairman Education Department; Most Rev. Emmet M. Walsh, Bishop of Youngstown, Chairman Legal Department; Most Rev. Richard J. Cushing, Archbishop of Boston, Chairman Lay Organizations; Most Rev. Thomas K. Gorman, Coadjutor Bishop of Dallas, Chairman Press Department; Most Rev. John J. Mitty, Archbishop of San Francisco, Chairman Youth Department; Most Rev. Michael J. Ready, Bishop of Columbus, Chairman Immigration Department; Most Rev. Francis P. Keough, Archbishop of Baltimore, Chairman of Social Action Department.

Officers at National Headquarters, 1312 Massachusetts Ave., N.W., Washington 5, D. C.—Rt. Rev. Msgr. Howard J. Carroll, general secretary, and Rt. Rev. Msgr. Paul F. Tanner, assistant general secretary.

In addition to the above named departments, the general body of the bishops maintains the following Special Committees: American Board of Catholic Missions, Propagation of the Faith, Fraternity of Christian Doctrine, Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, Polish Relief, Spanish Speaking, Welfare Emergency and Relief Committee, Committee for Montezuma Seminary, Committee on Motion Pictures, National Organization for Decent Literature, North American College at Rome, Pope's Peace Plan and Catholic Migrants.

American Leaders Named to Hall of Fame

Three American leaders were voted places in the Hall of Fame for Great Americans Oct. 31, 1955. They are Wilbur Wright (1867-1912), inventor, with his brother Orville, of the first successful heavier-than-air airplane; Thomas Jonathan Jackson (1824-1863), Confederate military leader known as Stonewall Jackson, and George Westinghouse (1846-1914), inventor of the air brake and numerous devices for the use of electricity in manufacture.

A candidate must have been dead 25 years to achieve a place in the Hall. Wilbur Wright's brother, Orville, died in 1948 and hence was not eligible. The men honored are commemorated with busts and plaques placed in a colonnade on the campus of New York Univ. above the Harlem river. Additions are made every 5 years and are voted on by a college of electors of 128 members. Nominations are made by the public. The men chosen in 1955 won over William James, Henry D. Thoreau, Edward A. MacDowell, Andrew Carnegie, Luther Burbank, Charles W. Eliot and Winslow Homer. Since each of these received more than 20 votes they will be represented on the next ballot in 1960. Bible Society Book Distribution alone Bibles were distributed in 35 languages.

According to the report of the American Bible Society, 450 Park Ave., New York, N. Y., made public in 1955, the organization distributed in 1954 a total of 15,391,171 books in 176 languages and 31 additional characters in the following categories: Bibles, 1,011,268; Testaments, 1,677,381; Gospels and Portions, 12,702,022. The society distributes books in over 40 countries and prints them in the United States, Mexico, Latin America, the Near East and the Far East. In the United States

Of the society's total distribution, 9,000,071 volumes were distributed in the United States. In foreign distribution, Japan led with 978,700 volumes, Brazil second with 868,520 volumes, and Argentina third with 555,371.

The society's work for the blind exceeded that of any former year with a distribution of 55,076 embossed volumes in braille and other systems, and talking book records.

The American National Red Cross

Honorary President—The President of the United States. Chairman—E. Roland Harriman, New York, N. Y. President—Ellsworth Bunker, Washington, D. C. Area Managers—Eastern, Harold B. Nearman, Alexandria, Va.; Southeastern, W. W. Jefferson, Atlanta, Ga.; Midwestern, Walker L. Millner, St. Louis, Mo.; Pacific, Sam B. Montgomery, San Francisco, Calif.

The American National Red Cross is one of 70 similar societies throughout the world. It was founded in 1881, with Clara Barton as its first president. It operates under a congressional charter granted in 1905. Its governing body is a 50-member Board of Governors, of whom 30 are elected by the chapters, 8 appointed by the President of the United States, and 12 elected by the Board itself as members-at-large. There are 3,700 local chapters and 4,000 branches. The society is supported by popular subscriptions to annual fund campaigns. In 1954 contributions totaled $82,000,000.

During the calendar year 1954 the Red Cross gave rehabilitation aid to 13,200 families in 315 disaster relief operations in 44 states, Alaska, and 2 insular chapters. The relief expenditures were $3,714,000.

Over 40% of the 1954 budget was spent in a variety of services for members of the United States armed forces around the world, for veterans, and their dependents. Red Cross field directors at military installations and hospitals helped 107,500 servicemen monthly and chapters across the country served 112,000 families monthly.

Red Cross field directors serve at military installations and military hospitals; 2,700 Red Cross representatives now serve the armed forces in the United States and overseas. At 74 Veterans' Administration offices they give a wide variety of services to veterans. Red Cross volunteer workers assist the staffs of 170 VA hospitals and centers in serving patients.

BLOOD COLLECTION PROGRAM

The Red Cross provides, without charge, blood and blood derivatives to people in communities served by the program. In May 1955, there were 46 regional centers and 110 mobile units collecting blood for the Red Cross. From January through December 1954, 2,467,000 donations were collected and blood was being furnished to more than 3,500 hospitals in 44 states and the District of Columbia.

The home nursing courses instruct homemakers in simple nursing skills; the aim is to train one member of every family to meet emergencies and safeguard family health. The Nursing Services program also includes the instruction of volunteer nurse's aides and the enrollment of nurse for community and emergency service.

Safety Services emphasizes safety education to help lessen the large annual toll of accidental injuries and deaths. The objectives of Red Cross courses in first aid, swimming, lifesaving, and the handling of small craft are first to prevent accidents, and second to know what to do when they occur.

More than 75,000 schools are now enrolled in the Junior Red Cross. Service opportunities for the members are related to the interests and activities of the students and to the curriculum. In addition to serving the community, junior members promote friendship and understanding with young people in other lands by exchange of gift boxes, international correspondence, school art, and music.

Volunteers are the backbone of the American Red Cross. Numbering more than 1,500,000, they serve as chapter officers and board members; as instructors of Red Cross courses; in Services such as Arts and Skills, Canteen, Entertainment and Supply, Gray Lady, Motor, Production, Social Welfare Aide, Staff Aide, and Volunteer Nurse's Aide; and in many other capacities.

INTERNATIONAL RED CROSS

There are two international Red Cross organizations: the International Committee of the Red Cross, a committee of Swiss citizens, founded in 1863; and the League of Red Cross Societies, a federation of the national societies, founded in 1919.

Under the Geneva Conventions the International Committee of the Red Cross acts as a neutral intermediary between warring nations and gives aid to prisoners of war. Another function of the committee is to protect the principles of the Red Cross movement. The League of Red Cross Societies promotes cooperation, program development, and mutual help among the Red Cross societies of the world.

The National Jewish Welfare Board (JWB) is the agency created by the American Jewish community in 1917 to serve the religious, welfare and morale needs of Jewish personnel in the U.S. Armed Forces and Veterans Administration Hospitals.

Through a merger with the National Council of Young Men's Hebrew and Kindred Associations, founded in 1913, JWB in 1921 also became the national association of Jewish Community Centers and YM-YWHA's. JWB is also a founder and the American member of the World Federation of YMHAs and Jewish Community Centers, which introduced the Center movement in Israel and encouraged its growth and development in other parts of the democratic world. Since the 1940s, JWB has been the sponsor of the Jewish Book Council of America and the National Jewish Music Council, coordinators of Jewish Book Month and Jewish Music Festival. JWB is also the sponsor of the National Jewish Youth Conference, which represents local and regional Jewish youth and young adult councils. Through its Jewish Center Lecture Bureau, JWB books hundreds of speakers and artists annually to further adult Jewish educational activities.

In serving Jews in the Armed Forces and veterans hospitals, JWB operates through three divisions. The Commission on Jewish Chaplaincy, representing the Conservative, Orthodox and Reform Rabbinate, is authorized to recruit, ecclesiastically endorse and serve all military Jewish chaplains. At the end of 1954 there were 96 full-time Jewish chaplains on duty at 50 overseas areas and in the United States, and 235 more serving part-time in the U. S.

The Armed Services Division, manned by a professional field staff and 9,850 volunteers organized into 249 community-wide Armed Services Committees, organizes recreational programs, cultural activities, home hospitality and holiday and Sabbath observances. This division also provides religious supplies and literature and kosher food to chaplains and GIs. The Women's Organizations Division, an alliance of 9 national Jewish women's organizations, provides gift packages to chaplains overseas and to hospitalized veterans in this country. Service to remote camps and hospitals is provided on a non-sectarian basis. As a member agency of USO, JWB is responsible for a number of USO operations in the U.S. and overseas and also conducts servicemen's centers in the Panama Canal Zone, Tokyo and Germany.

As the national association of Jewish Community Centers, JWB provides field service, program materials and technical consultative services, trains and recruits professional personnel and maintains a building bureau and camping department for its 350 affiliated Jewish Community Centers and YM-YWHA's. These Centers serve not only their own 552,000 members, who range in age from 3 to 83, but hundreds of thousands of others through community-wide cultural, recreational, camping and youth programs. Combined Center operating expenditures in 1955 totaled $15,450,000; investments in buildings reached $65,000,000; annual aggregate attendance came to 12,230,000.

At the end of 1954 the Center movement and JWB completed the observance of the centennial of the establishment of the first YMHA in Baltimore in 1854. Simultaneously JWB and the Centers played a leading role in the nationwide celebration of the 300th anniversary of Jewish settlement in America, which was observed from the fall of 1954 through June 1955.

The Young Women's Christian Association

The Young Women's Christian Assn. was founded in London in 1855 by a group of Christian women who met as a prayer circle and determined to improve the conditions of working girls by providing decent housing and good food for those living away from home. In 1858 the first American YWCA was started in Boston; it adopted the English program and added classes in adult education, recreation and job training. Today the YWCA functions in 65 countries and has world headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland.

The YWCA of the United States has 3,250,000 members. Its National Board has offices at 600 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. There are community associations in 438 towns and cities, student chapters in 641 colleges and universities and units in 244 rural districts. Its foreign division has 17 American secretaries in 14 foreign countries, who help develop associations abroad. In the United States it has three main groups: Y Teens, girls and boys (boys are associates, not full members) aged 13 to 18; Young Adults, employed girls, 18 to 30 and YW Wives, young married women and mothers of pre-school age children, who engage in educational and recreational activities and projects themselves. Membership is open to any female from 13 to 70 years old who subscribes to the Christian purpose of the organization.

The emblem of the YWCA is an inverted triangle, signifies mind, body and spirit. The organization tries to develop the potentialities of the individual through promoting physical and mental health and training for useful citizenship. It urges cooperation among all, regardless of race or creed.

The YWCA's policies are determined by the National Board, elected at national conventions, which are held every three years and attended by delegates from all local Associations. The YWCA is the parent organization of the National Travelers Aid Association, Women's Exchanges, Day Nurseries, the International Migration Service, the American Federation of International Institutes and the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. It observes three special weeks: National YWCA Week, the last week in April each year; Y-Teen Roll Call Week, the second week in October, and World Fellowship Week, the second week in November.

The Young Men's Christian Association

The National Council of the Young Men's Christian Association, James C. Donnell, II, president, Jay A. Urice, general secretary; corporate body: National Board of YMCAs, 291 Broadway, New York 7, N. Y.

The Young Men's Christian Association originated in London in 1844. In 1955 there were 9,000 Associations in 70 countries and territories with a membership of more than 4,500,000.

The first Associations in North America were formed in Montreal and Boston in 1851. Today the United States has over 1,800 Associations while Canada has 98. About two-thirds of the members are under 30. More than 15,000 Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y Clubs extend the movement into the high schools of the United States and Canada.

In 1955 about 8,000 representatives from every section of the globe met in Paris to celebrate the centennial of the World's Alliance of YMCAs. The following declaration was adopted: "That the supreme purpose of the YMCA by which all its policies and practices must be determined is to bear witness, in language which youth can understand, to the saving power of Jesus Christ in the lives in every human relationship."

To this end the numerous organizations in the United States have continued to extend their programs to reach all levels of youth, young adults and older people, developing self-governing clubs among school and non-school groups, reaching high school and college students, employees in industrial and transportation centers, and meeting the need of young people for training in leadership, vocational guidance, sports supervision, physical training and conservation of health. Increasingly, emphasis is being put upon the growth of sound citizenship and character building through the development of leadership, democratic procedures, interracial and intercultural understanding and the study of social and political questions in the light of Christian faith and principles.

The organization now has 171,062 regularly enrolled groups. Its educational program includes 24 curricular schools and 4,500 unit courses for adult education. Its international activities include the sending of trained leaders to Latin America, the Middle East and the Far East.

In 1954 the organization in the United States expended $120,941,500 for all purposes. The Canadian YMCA expended $5,735,900.

The Salvation Army

The Salvation Army in the United States is part of an international organization with places of worship and social rehabilitation centers in 89 countries. It was established here in 1880 and has 1,887 centers of operation (1953), and more than 5,000 officers. National headquarters are at 120-130 W. 14th St., New York, N. Y.

The major part of the Army's activity is evangelical work. Founded originally for the religious enlightenment of the masses, its primary aim is to proclaim the message of the Scriptures. As a religious organization it has a distinct ecclesiastical identity, with its cardinal principles of doctrinal belief; its officers are empowered to perform all the functions of the clergy, and a number of officers are chaplains in the Armed Forces.

The Salvation Army's social service work comprises family welfare services, missing persons and inquiry bureaus, shelters for transients, homes and hospitals for unmarried mothers, settlements, children's homes and nurseries. "Harbor Light" centers to aid the recovery of alcoholics, men's rehabilitation centers, employment and vocational guidance bureaus, clinics and dispensaries, disaster emergency service, rural service welfare committees, overseas relief bureaus and shipping and collection centers, USO and Red Shield Clubs for servicemen and women, and summer camps for mothers and children.

By vote of the high council of the Salvation Army in London, Eng., Wilfred Kitching, British Commissioner, was elected General to succeed Gen. Albert Orsborn in June, 1954. Gen. Kitching is 61 has had 41 years' service as an S. A. officer, and his wife has served 40 years. The new British Commissioner is Joshua James, former S. A. commander in East Australia.

The Volunteers of America

The Volunteers of America, a religious and philanthropic organization incorporated Nov. 6, 1896, under the laws of the State of New York, is democratic in constitution and semi-military in administration. It has a commissioned officer list of over 1,500 and a membership of more than 24,000, and operates 455 missions and service programs in the major cities of the United States. It was founded by Generals Ballington Booth and Maud Ballington Booth.

The religious work includes meetings for adults for worship embracing the rituals of the Lord's Supper, baptism and marriage. Missions of the organization are established where they can most effectively reach the unchurched. Sunday Schools for less privileged children are conducted in addition to a young people's society known as the Christian Companionship League.

The philanthropic work includes various institutional and social work programs, maintained in accordance with accepted standards and techniques of social service. There are departments of family welfare, health camps, day nurseries, hospices for working girls, maternity homes, homes for transient men and for mothers and children, clubs and homes for the aged, sheltered workshops and rehabilitation departments.

One of the principal departments, the Volunteer Prison League, deals with work among prisoners and their families, and persons discharged or paroled from federal and state penal institutions. The organization has been exceptionally successful in this latter branch of work. The League has been organized within the various prisons with an aggregate membership of more than 300,000 men and women. Membership involves the voluntary promise on the part of the prisoner to maintain discipline and otherwise live uprightly while under confinement. Aid has been extended and positions found for thousands of those released from penal institutions.

In A. D. 325 the Council of the Christian Churches at Nicea in Asia Minor (present-day Nice or Isnik, in Asiatic Turkey) drew up the Nicene Creed, and also decided that Easter shall be on the first Sunday following the Paschal Full Moon which happens upon or next after the 21st of March. The principal reason was that the pilgrims needed moonlight to travel on their way to the great yearly Easter festivities. The date of Easter thus may vary between March 22 and April 25, over a period of 35 days.

Because of this wide fluctuation the British Parliament in 1928 passed a permissive statute with the purpose of bringing Easter within the "orderly scope of a solar measurement of time," determining provisionally that it should be "the first Sunday after the second Saturday in April." This reduces the range of variation less than a week. But the change was to await international consent and that has so far not been obtained.

If Paschal Full Moon falls on a Sunday, then Easter Day is the next Sunday. The Paschal Full Moon is the Fourteenth day of a Lunar month reckoned according to an ancient ecclesiastical computation and not the astronomical full moon.

Church Fasts

The Roman Catholic days of obligation (not fast days) are Jan. 1 (Circumcision of Christ); Ascension Day (forty days after Easter Sunday); Aug. 15 (Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary); Nov. 1 (All Saints' Day); Dec. 8 (Immaculate Conception); Dec. 25 (Christmas), and all Sundays.

The Roman Catholic canon law prescribes abstinence for every Friday of the year. Abstinence and fast together are to be observed on Ash Wednesday, the Wednesdays and Fridays of Lent (in the United States), the Ember Days, the Vigils of Pentecost, the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary, the feast of All Saints, and the Nativity of Our Lord. The law of fast alone is prescribed for all the remaining days of Lent except Sundays.

In the American Episcopal Church the days of fasting or abstinence to be observed, according to the Book of Common Prayer, are the forty days of Lent, the Ember Days, and all the Fridays of the year except Christmas Day and the Epiphany.

Lent begins on Ash Wednesday, which comes 40 days previous to Easter Sunday, not counting Sundays. Originally it was a period of but 40 hours. Later it comprised 30 days of fasting, omitting all the Sundays and also all the Saturdays except one. Pope Gregory added Ash Wednesday to the fast, together with the remainder of that week.

The last seven days of Lent constitute Holy Week, beginning with Palm Sunday, Passion Week precedes Holy Week. The last Thursday—Maundy Thursday—commemorates the institution of the Eucharist.

The following day, Good Friday, commemorates the day of the crucifixion. Mohammedans celebrate Friday as the day of Adam's creation.

Easter is the chief festival of the Christian year, commemorating the resurrection of Christ. It occurs about the same time as the ancient heathen Roman celebration of the Vernal Equinox, the arrival of Spring. In the second century, A.D., Easter Day was, among Christians in Asia Minor, the 14th of Nisan, the seventh month of the Jewish calendar. The Christians in Europe observed the nearest Sunday.

The three Rogation Days are days of Solemn Supplication. In the Greek Church the four principal fasts are those in Lent, the week succeeding Whitsuntide, the fortnight before the Assumption, and forty days before Christmas.

Ember and Rogation Days are certain periods of the year devoted to prayer and fasting. Ember Days (twelve annually), about the beginning of the four seasons, are the Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday after the first Sunday in Lent, in Spring; after the feast of the Pentecost (Whitsunday), in Summer; after the festival of the Holy Cross, Sept. 14, Autumn; and after the festival of St. Lucia, Dec. 13, Winter. Ember Weeks are the weeks in which the Ember Days appear.

Ember Days in 1956 are February 22, 24, 25; May 23, 25, 26; September 19, 21, 22; December 19, 21, 22.

Rogation Days occur on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday immediately preceding Ascension Day and in 1956 fall on May 7, 8, 9.

Julian and Gregorian Calendars; Names for Months and Days

Calendars based on the movements of sun and moon have been used since ancient times, but none has been perfect. The Julian calendar, under which western nations measured time until 1582 A. D., was authorized by Julius Caesar in 46 B. C., the year 709 of Rome. His expert was a Greek, Sosigenes. The Julian year averaged 365 days and gave every fourth year 366 days. The Venerable Bede, an Anglo-Saxon monk, announced in 730 A. D. that every year was 11 min., 14 sec., too long, making a day every 128 years, but nothing was done about it for 800 years.

In 1582 Pope Gregory XIII decreed that the day following Oct. 4, 1582, should be called Oct. 15, thus dropping 10 days.

The Gregorian calendar now in use in the United States was imposed by the government of Great Britain on all its possessions, including the American colonies, in 1752. The British decreed that the day following Sept. 2, 1752, should be called Sept. 14, a loss of 11 days. All dates preceding were marked O. S., for Old Style. George Washington was born Feb. 11, 1732, O. S., and after 1752 his birthday anniversary fell on Feb. 22.

While the Catholic parts of Germany, Switzerland and the Netherlands adopted the calendar at once, the Protestant regions waited until 1700-1701. France accepted it at once; Poland in 1586; Hungary in 1587. Great Britain adopted it in 1752, Sweden in 1753, Japan in 1873; the Chinese Republic in 1912; the Turkish Parliament in 1917; the Soviet Government of Russia in 1918; Rumania in 1919. Finally, in May, 1923, prelates of the Greek Orthodox Church, meeting in Constantinople, decided to accept the Gregorian Calendar, and it was adopted by Greece and Greek Orthodox communities.

The only serious interference with the Gregorian calendar in any country in Europe occurred in September, 1793, when the Convention of the French Revolutionary Government decreed that the common era should be abolished in all civil affairs, and that the new French era should begin on Sept. 22, 1792, the day of the true Autumnal Equinox, and that each succeeding year should begin at the midnight of the day on which the true Autumnal Equinox falls. The French Revolutionary year was divided into 12 months of 30 days each. In ordinary years there were five extra days, from the 17th to the 21st of September, and at the end of every fourth year was a sixth complementary day. This new French Era reckoning began Nov. 22, 1793, and continued until Dec. 31, 1805, when it was abandoned by order of Napoleon, and the Gregorian calendar was reinstated in France.

Somewhat confusing was the method of observing the legal first day of the new year. Scotland made Jan. 1 the first day of the year in 1600, but England recognized Mar. 25 as New Year's Day until 1752, when it adopted Jan. 1. Thus the American colonies also had their legal year begin on Mar. 25 until 1752.

NAMES OF THE MONTHS

January was named for Janus, the Roman god who had two faces; one looking into the past and the other into the future.

February comes from the Latin word Februo, to purify. It was the time of the year for Roman ceremonies of purification.

March was named for Mars, Roman god of war, and in the time of Romulus it was the first month in the year. In this day there were only ten months in the calendar. These were of uneven lengths, some having less than twenty days and some containing as many as thirty-five days. When Numa became King, which was about 700 years before Christ, he decided that there should be 12 months and added two—January and February—and placed them at the beginning of the calendar; and in that way March became the third month. Among the old Saxons this month was known as Lenct, meaning spring, and this is the origin of our word Lent.

April is from the Latin word Aperio, to open; it is at this season that the flowers and leaves begin to bloom. The Saxons called the month Easter Month, in honor of Easter, the goddess of spring.

May was named for Maia, daughter of the Roman deity Atlas.

June was named for the goddess Juno.

July for a long time was known by its old name of Quintilis, from the Latin meaning five, as it was the fifth month in the ancient calendar of Romulus; but its name was changed to July in honor of Julius Caesar.

August, too, retained its old name of Sextilis (the sixth month) until the time of Augustus, who changed it to August.

September is from the Latin septem, seven; originally the 7th month, it has been the 9th for 2,000 years.

October, November, and December also retain the names by which they were known when there were but ten months in the year, being derived from the Latin words Octo, Novem, and Decem—eight, nine, and ten.

NAMES OF THE DAYS

English names for days of the week come from Norse mythology by way of Anglo-Saxon, and for that reason are often similar to the Roman names, which the Teutonic tribes adapted. The Romans named their days after the sun, moon and planets—Mars, Mercury, Jove (Jupiter), Venus and Saturn, which were named after their gods.

Sunday, the sun's day, is the same in German: Sonntag. But Italian, French and Spanish name it after the Lord's Day.

Monday, the moon's day, is Montag in German (Mond moon), but the Latin luna, for moon, survives in Italian, French, Spanish.

Tuesday is the day of Tyr, Norse god of war; the French Mardi and Italian Martedì come from Mars, also Roman god of war.

Wednesday comes from Woden, a Norse god, but the Romance languages derive their words from the Roman Mercury, while the Germans call it Mittwoch—midweek.

Thursday is the day of Thor, god of thunder. His Latin equivalent, Jove, accounts for Giovedì (Ital.), Jeudi (Fr.), Jueves (Span.)

Friday is the day of Freya, Norse goddess of marriage. Similarly the Romance languages get their names from Venus, Roman goddess of love.

Donations by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to Religious Causes

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., in 1955 made a grant of securities worth approximately $20,000,000 to Sealantic Fund, Inc. "to strengthen and develop Protestant theological education in this country." The Sealantic Fund is a corporation through which the donor frequently allocates some of his philanthropies. Its trustees will determine the appropriations from this fund.

In announcing the gift Mr. Rockefeller made public a letter sent a year before to Dr. Nathan M. Pusey, president of Harvard University, after his donation of $1,000,000 to the Divinity School of the University. He said Dr. Pusey's belief in the underlying importance of the spiritual life promised to have a far-reaching influence on education and added: "In the position which Harvard University and you as its president have taken, I see the dawn of a new day in the educational world."

Mr. Rockefeller also gave $509,950 to the Centennial Fund of the Young Women's Christian Assn., which had a goal of $5,000,000.

HOLIDAYS

Legal or Public Holidays in the United States in 1956

Christmas and New Year's Day are observed by Christians, the world over.

In Episcopal countries, the only other church days which are regular legal holidays are Good Friday, Easter Monday, and Whit Monday.

In Roman Catholic countries, the church days other than Christmas which are usually legal holidays are Epiphany, Ascension, Assumption, All Saints', and Immaculate Conception. In Latin-American countries it is usual to observe Good Friday and Corpus Christi.

In Lutheran countries, Epiphany, Annunciation, Ash Wednesday, Good Friday, Easter Monday, Ascension Day, Whit Monday, and Corpus Christi are holidays.

Federal "Legal Public Holidays" are New Year's, Washington's Birthday, Memorial or Decoration Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Veterans Day, Thanksgiving, and Christmas. The President and Congress designate only for the District of Columbia and Federal employees throughout the nation. Each State has jurisdiction over the holidays it will observe. They are designated either by legislative enactment or executive proclamation. There are no national holidays in the United States. The only instance where Congress has purported to declare a "National holiday throughout the United States," appears to be the act of March 2, 1889 which used the expression with reference to April 30, 1889, the centennial anniversary of the inauguration of the first President of the United States.

DAYS USUALLY OBSERVED

Not legal or public holidays:

Air Force Day (see Armed Forces Day).

American Indian Day is the fourth Friday in September.

Arbor Day. Tree-planting day. First observed April 10, 1872, in Nebraska. Over one million trees were set out. Now observed in every state in the Union, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico. A legal holiday in Florida (April 22nd). In Arkansas, a Memorial Day (first Saturday in December). In order to promote the day in a more effective, coordinated manner, several organizations are urging that the last Friday in April be selected as Arbor Day in all the Northern and Western States.

Armed Forces Day (May 19 in 1956). Always 3rd Saturday in that month, by Presidential proclamation. Replaced Army, Navy and Air Forces Days. (Air Force Day was the 2nd Saturday in September; Army Day April 6th; Navy Day October 27, the birthday of Theodore Roosevelt. October is also the month in which the American Navy was founded (1775) by the Continental Congress.)

Atlantic Charter Day, August 14.

Bird Day. Often observed with Arbor Day.

Child Health Day, May 1, by Presidential Proclamation.

Citizenship Day, Sept. 17. President Truman, Feb. 29, 1952, signed bill designating Sept. 17 as annual Citizenship Day. It replaced I Am An American Day, formerly 3rd Sunday in May and Constitution Day, formerly Sept. 17.

Constitution Day (see Citizenship Day).

Elizabeth Cady Stanton Day, Nov. 12. (See Susan B. Anthony day. Is observed for like reasons.)

Father's Day. The third Sunday in June (June 17 in 1956). Always 3rd Sunday in that month.

Flag Day, June 14th, by Presidential Proclamation. It is a legal holiday in Pennsylvania.

Forefathers' Day, Dec. 21. Landing on Plymouth Rock, in 1620. Is celebrated with dinners by New England societies, especially "Down East."

Four Chaplains Memorial Day, February 3.

Gen. Pulaski Memorial Day, Oct. 11. Native of Poland, and Revolutionary War hero; died (Oct. 11, 1779) from wounds received at the siege of Savannah, Ga.

Groundhog Day, Feb. 2. A popular belief is that if the groundhog sees his shadow this day he returns to his burrow and winter continues 6 weeks longer.

I Am An American Day (see Citizenship Day).

John Howard Payne Memorial Day, April 19, by Presidential Proclamation. Author of Home Sweet Home.

May Day. Popularly given to May 1st.

Mother's Day (May 13 in 1956). Always 2nd Sunday in that month.

National Aviation Day, Aug. 19, by Presidential Proclamation.

National Freedom Day, February 1. To commemorate the signing, by President Lincoln, of the document to abolish slavery, Feb. 1, 1865. By Presidential Proclamation.

National Maritime Day, May 22. First proclaimed 1935 in commemoration of the departure of the SS Savannah, from Savannah, Ga., on May 22, 1819, on the first successful transatlantic voyage under steam propulsion. By Presidential Proclamation.

Pan American Day, April 14. In 1890 the First International Conference of American States, meeting in Washington, was held on that date. A resolution was adopted which resulted in the creation of the organization known today as the Pan American Union. By Presidential Proclamation.

Poetry Day, Oct. 15.

Poppy Week. Last week in May.

Primary Election Day. A legal holiday in Ark., Calif., Ind., Mo., Ore., Penn., S. Dak., Tenn., W. Va. and Wis. A holiday in Nev., with optional closing of banks and offices.

Sadie Hawkins Day, first Saturday after November 11.

St. Patrick's Day, March 17. Observed by Irish Societies and with parades.

Susan B. Anthony Day, Feb. 15. In honor of the birthday of a pioneer crusader for equal rights for women (see Elizabeth Cady Stanton Day).

United Nations Day, Oct. 24, by Presidential Proclamation, to commemorate founding of United Nations.

WEEKS AND MONTHS

Among the Weeks observed each year are American Art Week, American Education Week, American Heart Week, American Red Cross Fund Drive, Cancer Control Month (sponsored by the American Cancer Society); Boy Scout Week; American Cancer Society; Boy Scout Week; Camp Fire Girls Birthday Week Christmas Seal Sale (sponsored by National Tuberculosis Association), Fire Prevention Week, Girl Scout Week, Jewish Youth Week, March of Dimes (sponsored by National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis), National Boys' Club Week (sponsored by Boys' Clubs of America), Boys and Girls Week (sponsored by Rotary International), National Crime Prevention Week, National Letter Writing Week, National Wildlife Restoration Week (sponsored by National Wildlife Federation); United Nations National States-Canada Good Will Week; United States-Canada Good Will Week (sponsored by Kiwanis International), and Youth Week, or Christian Endeavor Week (sponsored by United Christian Youth Movement).

Public Days in Canada, 1956

New Year's Day, Jan. 1; Good Friday, March 30; Easter Monday, April 2; Victoria Day, May 21 (always first Monday preceding May 25); Queen's Birthday (usually celebrated on same date as Victoria Day); Dominion Day, July 1; Labour Day, Sept. 3; Thanksgiving Day (the second Monday of October seems the customary day); Remembrance Day, Nov. 11; Christmas, Dec. 25. When the statutory holidays fall on Sunday, the following day is observed. Although the general observation of holidays on Mondays, in order to give people long weekends, has been a matter of discussion, no legislation has yet been passed in this regard, with the exception for Victoria Day.

Civic Holiday is not a statutory holiday, but any city, town or municipality may appoint any day as such by resolution of the Council or the statutory body. However, the first Monday in August is generally observed throughout Canada as Civic Holiday (August 6 in 1956).

Old English Holidays

Jan. 6. TWELFTH DAY, or Twelfth-tide, sometimes called Old Christmas Day, the same as Epiphany (Feast of the Three Kings). It is celebrated in Spain as Christmas and in Italy as Epiphany (Befana Day). The previous evening is Twelfth Night. Since 1900 the Russian Orthodox Church has observed Jan. 7 as Christmas, inasmuch as 13 days instead of 12 now mark the difference between the old and the new or Gregorian calendar.

Feb. 2. CANDLEMAS: Festival of the Purification of the Virgin. Consecration of the lighted candles to be used in the church during the year.

Feb. 14. OLD CANDLEMAS: St. Valentine's Day.

Mar. 25. LADY DAY: Annunciation of the Virgin.

April 6 is Old Lady Day.

June 24. MINSUMMER DAY: Feast of the Nativity of John the Baptist.

July 7 is Old Midsummer Day.

July 15. ST. SWITHIN'S DAY. An old superstition if rain fell it would continue forty days.

Aug. 1. LAMMAS DAY. Originally in England the festival of the wheat harvest. In the church the festival of St. Peter's miraculous deliverance from prison. Old Lammas Day is August 13.

Sept. 29. MICHAELMAS: Feast of St. Michael the Archangel. Old Michaelmas is Oct. 11.

Nov. 1. ALL-HALLOWMAS: All-hallows or All Saints' Day. Previous evening is All-hallowe'en.

Nov. 2. ALL SOULS' DAY. Day of prayer for the souls of the dead.

Nov. 11. MARTINMAS: Feast of St. Martin. Old Martinmas is Nov. 23.

Dec. 28. CHILDERMAS: Holy Innocents' Day.

Selective Service Act and Selective Service System

Source: Selective Service System, Washington, D. C.

Selective Service for military training was authorized by an act of Congress entitled the Selective Service Act of 1948. Basic provisions of this act have been twice extended—first in 1951, when its provisions were extended to July 1, 1955, and in 1955, when this was extended to July 1, 1959.

Under the 1951 amendments the act became known as the Universal Military Training and Service Act, as amended. Under authority granted by the act, the President authorized the use of Selective Service to bring the armed forces up to strength. By June, 1955, inductions since 1948 totaled 2,000,900, of which 81,430 went to the Marines during the Korean crisis, the remainder to the Army.

CHANGES OF 1955

Important changes in provisions of the act as a result of the 1955 Amendments (Public Law 118) included:

Provision for exemption from training and service, but not from registration, of certain aliens who subsequent to June 24, 1948, served on active duty for a period of not less than 18 months' in the armed forces of a nation with which the United States is associated in mutual defense activities, with the proviso that no such exemption be granted to any person who is a national of a country which does not grant reciprocal privileges to citizens of the United States.

Provision that (a) no person who has served honorably on active duty after Sept. 16, 1940, for a period of not less than one year in the Armed Forces, including the Coast Guard or (b) any person who subsequent to Sept. 16, 1940, was discharged for the convenience of the Government after having served honorably on active duty for a period of not less than six months, or (c) served for a period of not less than 24 months as a commissioned officer in the Public Health Service or as a commissioned officer in the Coast and Geodetic Survey, shall be liable for induction for training and service except after a declaration of war or national emergency by the Congress.

The act lowers to 28 years the age to which liability is extended for certain registrants who enlist in the National Guard prior to attaining the age of 18 years and 6 months. It formerly was 35 years of age.

DOCTORS AND DENTISTS

Also it continues the induction of doctors and dentists for 2 years to July 1, 1957; lowers the maximum age for the induction of doctors and dentists from the 50th birthday to the 46th birthday; and provides that no person in the medical, dental, and allied specialist categories shall be inducted after he has attained his 35th birthday if he applies or has applied for a commission in one of the Armed Forces in these categories and has been rejected for commission on the sole ground of physical disqualification.

Calls on Selective Service by the Department of Defense for the first 9 months of 1955 were: January, 23,000; February, 11,000; March, 11,000; April, 8,000; May, June, July, August and September, 10,000 each.

Immediately after receiving a call, the Director of Selective Service notifies State Directors of the numbers apportioned to their states on the basis of those classified 1-A; that is, those available for service. The State Director thereupon apportions the call among the local boards within his jurisdiction.

Selective Service has no means of predicting what future calls may be levied upon it. It is responsible for the process by which men between the ages of 18 years and 6 months and 26 years are called or deferred. The Armed Forces—not Selective Service—set physical and mental standards and conduct physical examinations and determine the size of the monthly calls.

TESTS FOR DEFERMENT

Approximately 565,000 college students took the Selective Service College Qualification Test offered on 16 different dates between May, 1951, and May, 1955. Registrants' test scores and class standings are used by local boards for guidance in determining the registrants' qualifications for occupational deferment as students.

In order to qualify for consideration for deferment as a student, the registrant, to advance through the stages of his college career, must meet the following criteria:

From freshman to sophomore, he must rank in the upper one-half of his class, and/or make a test score of 70.

Sophomore to junior, upper two thirds of class, and/or 70.

Junior to senior, upper three fourths of class, and/or 70.

Senior to graduate work, upper one fourth of and/or 80.

The student is judged to be making normal progress as a graduate provided he attains his master's degree in no more than two years following receipt of the bachelor's degree, and receives the doctor of philosophy degree in not more than 5 years following receipt of the bachelor's.

A special provision of regulations covers students in undergraduate courses which normally require more than 4 years for the bachelor's degree. This section, which provides for the deferment of the student through the 5th, 6th and 7th years, also covers the law student, since Selective Service considers the bachelor of law degree as a first degree regardless of degrees previously received.

EXEMPTIONS

The act provides for the exemption of most veterans of World War II; only surviving son of families who lost one or more sons or daughters in the war; ministers and ministerial students under specified conditions. Exemptions also are granted to certain elected public officials so long as they remain in office.

High school students may not be drafted before graduation or until they reach age 20, whichever is sooner, provided they maintain satisfactory records.

Volunteers for induction are given preference over those to be inducted involuntarily. The new Reserve bill is expected to impose additional responsibilities upon the Selective Service System.

In the conference report on the Reserve Forces Act of 1955 it was agreed by the Senate and the House that, in determining which persons enter the Reserve program the President would have available to him the advice and assistance of the Selective Service System and in determining which persons should be transferred from the Standby to the Ready Reserve, the Secretary of Defense would have available to him the advice and assistance of the Selective Service System.

The Selective Service System is composed of a national headquarters at 451 Indiana Ave., N.W., Washington 25, D. C.; State headquarters in each State; and headquarters similarly organized and with the similar functions in New York City, the District of Columbia, Alaska, Hawaii, the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico, Guam and Panama Canal Zone—a total of 56. Approximately 4,000 local draft boards are functioning, one in each county, except in sparsely populated areas and in populous urban areas. Each board is composed of three or more members, all civilians who are unpaid.

One or more boards of appeal are in operation in each Federal judicial district within each State and Territory, and in New York City, the District of Columbia, Alaska, Hawaii, the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico, Guam and Panama Canal Zone.

Questionnaires are sent to registrants soon after registration. The questionnaires ask facts which help the local boards in their classification work. The boards also take into consideration information from employers, dependents and other sources. The registrant does not appear personally before the board except when he reports for physical examination or induction unless he requests a personal appearance or is ordered to give, in person, additional information affecting his status.

CLASSIFICATIONS

The registrant is placed by the local board in one of five classes, each of which is divided into subclasses. The classes are as follows:

Class I-A: Available for military service. (Class A subclasses include members of the Armed Forces, the Coast Guard, the Coast and Geodetic Survey or the Public Health Service; members of reserve components meeting specified requirements and certain qualified students taking military training.) Also conscientious objectors available for or performing work in lieu of induction.

Class II: Deferred because of occupational status.

Class III: Deferred because of dependency.

Class IV: Deferred specifically by law or because unfit for military service.

Class V: Over the age of liability for military service.

The Army Air Forces were started Aug. 1, 1907, as the Aeronautical Division of the Signal Corps, U. S. Army. The division consisted of one officer and two enlisted men, and it was more than a year before it carried out its first mission in an airplane of its own. When the U. S. entered World War I (April 6, 1917), the Aviation Service, as it was called then, had 55 planes and 65 officers, only 35 of whom were fliers. On the day the Japanese struck at Pearl Harbor (Dec. 7, 1941), the Army Air Forces, as they had been renamed six months previously, had 10,329 planes, of which only 2,846 were suited for combat service. But when the Army's air arm reached its peak during World War II (in July, 1944), it had 79,909 all types of aircraft and (in May 1945) 43,248 combat aircraft and (in March, 1944) 2,411,294 officers and enlisted men. The Air Force was established under the Armed Services Unification Act of July 26, 1947.

United States Military Academy, West Point, N. Y.

The United States Military Academy is located on the Hudson River some fifty miles from New York City. The service rendered to the nation by the Academy was widely acclaimed during the celebration of its 150th year in 1952. Its graduates are loyal to its ideals of "Duty, Honor, Country."

The United States Military Academy opened July 4, 1802 with ten cadets. West Point has been a military post since Jan. 20, 1778.

Requirements for admission to the Military Academy differ somewhat from those for admission to a civilian college in that each prospective cadet must first be designated a candidate from one of the sources of nomination listed below. Usually the candidate obtains his nomination either from the Representative in Congress from his Congressional district or from one of his United States Senators.

Admission to the Military Academy may be gained only by appointment to one of the 2,496 cadetships authorized by law. Graduation of the senior class normally leaves about 750 vacant cadetships each year and candidates may be nominated for these vacancies only during the year preceding the admission date—the first Tuesday in July. The 2,496 cadetships authorized the Military Academy are allocated among the various sources of nomination as follows:

Noncompetitive
Representatives (4 each).....	1,740
Senators (4 each).....	384
Other:
Hawaii and Alaska, 4 each.....	8
District of Columbia.....	6

Reserve components.....	90
(National Guard; Air National Guard; Army Reserve; Air Force Reserve)
Presidential.....	89
Sons of deceased veterans.....	40
Honor military & honor naval schools.....	40
Total	2,496

For each vacancy from a State or Congressional District 4 candidates may be nominated: a principal, a first alternate, a second alternate, and a third alternate. The selection of these candidates is left to the Senator or Representative.

Candidates must be U. S. citizens, between 17 and 22 years of age, good moral character, and must never have been married. After being designated candidates, they take three types of examination: mental, medical, and physical aptitude. They must establish their mental qualification for admission by their performance on the Scholastic Aptitude Test of the College Entrance Examination Board and, unless exempted because of an acceptable college certificate, on the Intermediate Mathematics and English Composition achievement tests of the College Board.

Noncompetitive (Congressional) candidates may offer as qualification for admission their scores on the regular December, January, March or May College Board series of examinations; all competitive candidates, however, must take the March tests of the year of admission. All candidates must qualify in U. S. history, either by presenting evidence that they have satisfactorily completed a standard course in U. S. history or by passing the College Board examination in social studies. All candidates also must qualify in a thorough medical examination and a one-hour test of physical aptitude designed to measure strength and muscular coordination. These tests are given on the days immediately preceding the regular March College Board tests at military installations throughout the country; the March College Board series is therefore the series recommended for all candidates.

Prospective cadets who have their scores on the December, January, or March College Board tests reported to West Point and candidates who take the March medical and physical aptitude examinations will be notified about May 1 of the results and their eligibility for admission. Those found eligible report to West Point on the first Tuesday of July. Upon admission each cadet takes the oath of allegiance and agrees to serve as a commissioned officer for not less than 3 years immediately following graduation.

In effect, all cadets are granted full four-year scholarships since all expenses necessary to the education and training of cadets at the U. S. Military Academy are borne by the Government. Cadets, as members of the Regular Army, receive pay and allowances as provided by law (currently $111.15 per month, plus $1.35 per day for rations). From this pay, cadets are required to purchase uniforms, textbooks, meals and some incidental items. To defray the cost of the initial issues of uniforms and equipment a deposit of $300 is normally required.

Summer periods are primarily devoted to practical military instruction but approximately 4 weeks' leave is granted cadets each summer after completion of their first year. The academic year runs from September through May and aside from a choice of language the curriculum is prescribed. Upon successful completion of the 4-year course, the graduate receives the degree of Bachelor of Science and is commissioned a 2d Lieutenant in the Regular Army or Air Force.

In addition to the 2,496 designated cadets, the Secretary of the Army is authorized to permit not exceeding four Filipinos (one for each entering class), to be designated by the President of the Republic of the Philippines, to receive instruction at the United States Military Academy.

The act of June 26, 1946 (as amended) authorizes the President of the United States to permit not exceeding 20 persons at a time from the Latin American republics and Canada to receive instruction at the Academy, provided not more than three from any one country are there at the same time.

Citizens of other foreign countries have been permitted from time to time to attend the Military Academy upon specific authorization of the United States Congress in each case but are not entitled by reason of their graduation therefrom to appointment to any office or position in the United States.

The Superintendent of the Military Academy is Lt. Gen. Blackshear M. Bryan, U.S.A.; the Dean of the Academic Board is Brig. Gen. Harris Jones, U.S.A.; the Commandant of Cadets is Brig. Gen. Edwin J. Messinger, U.S.A.

Requests for information and for the Military Academy Catalogue should be addressed to the Registrar, U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y.

United States Naval Academy at Annapolis

The United States Naval Academy for the training of midshipmen was opened at Annapolis, Md., Oct. 10, 1845. Its main grounds cover over 180 acres and in other parts of Maryland it maintains a rifle range and a dairy farm of large acreage. Its stately buildings for instruction and residence were completed about 1910. They are topped by the Naval Academy Chapel, which is dominated by a dome. It was opened in 1908 and the enlarged nave was completed in 1940. In 1913 the body of John Paul Jones, America's first great naval fighter, was brought from Paris and placed in the crypt of the Chapel.

Midshipmen are appointed as follows: 5 for each senator, representative, delegate in Congress and the Vice President; 5 from the District of Columbia, 5 from Puerto Rico, nominated by the resident commissioner; 4 from the Republic of the Philippines, appointed by the President and 1 from the Canal Zone. Also annually 75 from the United States at large appointed by the President; 160 from the Navy and Marine Corps; 160 from the Naval Reserve and the Marine Corps Reserve; 20 from honor military schools and Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps.

The President may appoint not more than 40 midshipmen at large from among the sons of members of both sexes of the land and naval forces who were killed or acquired fatal wounds or diseases in the two world wars and during other periods; also one midshipman from Puerto Rico who was born there. The President also is authorized to appoint midshipmen at large from among the sons of persons awarded the Medal of Honor by Congress. In the event of vacancies and availability of accommodations the Secretary of the Navy may nominate candidates recommended by the Academic Board from among regular nominated and qualified candidates who were on the waiting list.

Also, not more than 20 may be appointed from other American republics and Canada, with not more than 3 from any one country.

Candidates must be not less than 17 nor more than 22 years old on July 1 of the year they enter, and all except a limited number authorized from foreign countries must be citizens of the United States. They may qualify for admission by (a) passing a regular entrance examination; (b) presenting an acceptable secondary school certificate and passing an examination in mathematics and English; (c) presenting acceptable secondary school and college certificates. The college certificate method of qualifying is limited to those who get Congressional appointments. All must take the Aptitude Test of the Naval Academy.

Each candidate must be not less than 5 ft. 4 in. tall, with a minimum weight of 112 lbs. He is required to deposit $100 after passing examinations and before appointment. This amount is supplemented by an entrance credit of $600 upon admission, making $700 available for uniforms, textbooks, etc. The $600 is repaid by deductions from the midshipman's pay, which is $1,333.80 a year. The candidate must make an engagement, with consent of parents or guardian if he is a minor, that he will complete the course of four years at the Naval Academy and to accept upon graduation, if tendered, an appointment as a commissioned officer in the U. S. Navy, U. S. Marine Corps or U. S. Air Force, and to serve on active duty for not less than 3 years; if not in the regular service, to accept an appointment in the Reserve and not to resign prior to the 6th anniversary of graduation. If he marries while a student he will be discharged.

United States Coast Guard

The United States Coast Guard is responsible for a wide range of duties which are concerned with maintaining safety and order upon the high seas and navigable waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States. The primary purpose of most of these duties is to prevent loss of life and property due to unsafe or illegal practices. The maintenance of safety and order is not limited to enforcement of laws. The Coast Guard also directs a program of education among ship operators and boatmen, and enlists their cooperation in the prevention of marine casualties. This role includes maintenance of more than 37,000 aids to navigation—lighthouses, buoys, bells, etc.—along 40,000 miles of waters; lifesaving activities; removal of derelicts and other menaces to navigation; marine inspection; ice-breaking; medical aid to seamen; law enforcement on the high seas and navigable waters of the United States and in Alaska; the prevention of smuggling; patrol of the North Pacific Ocean and Bering Sea to regulate the taking of fur-bearing sea mammals and fish; aid during flood and hurricanes; maintenance of the International Ice Patrol to report the amount of iceberg drift for the benefit of vessels crossing the North Atlantic; maintaining ocean weather stations; and supervising the engagement, records and discipline of officers and seamen serving in the Merchant Marine. To carry out its many functions, the Coast Guard has a fleet of 270 larger vessels of various types and 126 aircraft.

The Coast Guard is administered by the Commandant of the Coast Guard, at Headquarters in Washington, D. C., through a field organization of 12 District Coast Guard Offices in the continental United States, Hawaii and Alaska. A military service constituting a branch of the armed forces of the United States at all times the Coast Guard operates as a service of the Treasury except when operating as a service of the Navy.

Coast Guard beginnings date from Aug. 4, 1790 when an Act of Congress, written to enforce the Customs Laws, provided for the building of "ten boats" to protect the revenue. These came to be known as the Revenue-Marine, later known as the Revenue-Cutter Service. The present name of the organization dates from Jan. 28, 1915, when the Revenue-Cutter and Life-Saving Services were merged into one—the United States Coast Guard. The Service's duties were increased when the Coast Guard was consolidated (July 1, 1939) with the Lighthouse Service and again on Feb. 28, 1942 when functions of the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation were transferred to the Coast Guard by Executive order. This last addition means that the Service now furthers safety at sea through supervision of the construction and equipment of merchant ships and by exercising disciplinary controls over their personnel.

U. S. Coast Guard Academy

The United States Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn., was founded in 1876. The administration building is named Hamilton Hall in honor of Alexander Hamilton, first Secretary of the Treasury, who founded the Coast Guard (1790).

The Academy's four-year course embraces engineering, military science, cultural and other professional subjects. Cadets are paid $973 a year with rations and are credited with the sum of $600

Qualified graduates become ensigns in the U. S. Navy, and some may be commissioned 2nd lieutenants in the U. S. Marine Corps to fill vacancies. A limited number may be commissioned in the U. S. Air Force.

Entrance requirements may be obtained from the Bureau of Naval Personnel, Department of the Navy, Washington, D. C., or the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md. The Commandant of Midshipmen is Captain R. T. S. Keith, USN, and the Superintendent of the Naval Academy is Rear Admiral Walter F. Boone, USN.

U. S. NAVAL ACADEMY MUSEUM

The Museum is a department of the Academy under a director and is intended to inspire midshipmen with appreciation of American naval traditions and sacrifices. It contains many original documents, including contracts for building the original Navy; letters of John Paul Jones; memorials of the steamboat inventors John Fitch, James Rumsey and Robert Fulton; a ship model collection donated by Col. H. H. Rogers; historical paintings by Edward Moran; the Beverly R. Robinson collection of 1,044 naval prints and many objects associated with important naval events.

To meet wartime exigencies, various groups were formed to augment the regular Coast Guard personnel, but these had been reduced on June 30, 1954 to about 29,000 officers and men in the regular establishment. Detailed to the Coast Guard from the Public Health Service were 32 doctors, 47 dental officers, one scientist officer, one sanitary engineer and 8 nurses, besides 59 physicians serving part time. Authorized civilian employees were 4,953.

Chief among the groups organized for the war emergency was the Coast Guard Reserve, a military supplement similar to the United States Naval Reserve. By an amendment to the act establishing the Reserve, a Women's Reserve, known as the Spars, also was organized. Nearly 9,000 enlisted Spars and 1,000 Spar officers served during World War II. The Women's Reserve was reactivated during 1951, being limited to former members after being demobilized in 1945.

The Coast Guard Auxiliary is a nonmilitary organization administered by the Commandant, with 13,000 members in 421 communities. Its primary activity is to assist the Coast Guard in the promotion of safety and efficiency in the operation of small boats.

Training facilities include a recruit receiving center at Cape May, N. J., various service schools for enlisted men, and the Coast Guard Academy in New London, Conn., for officer candidates.

The Search and Rescue Agency (formerly Air-Sea) established at the request of the Joint Chiefs of Staff (Feb., 1944) has the Commandant of the Coast Guard as its head, assisted by a board of representatives from the Army and Navy.

The Coast Guard maintained over 37,000 aids to navigation (lightships, lighthouses, buoys, daymarks, fog signals and radio beacons). In July 1955 49 Loran stations were being operated by the Coast Guard and 197 radio and radar beacons were being operated on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and in Hawaii, Puerto Rico and Alaska. The scientific improvements of radio and radar being applied now to peacetime aids have names coined from their description, for example: ANRAC control station (Aids to Navigation Radio Controlled), which is a radio device to light and extinguish electric lights and operate fog signals; LORAN radio transmitting station (Long Range Aid Navigation), first used during the war to obtain longitude and latitude positions; RACON station (Radar beacons), which gives distance and bearing of an airplane or ship within 120 miles.

The Coast Guard operates nearly 16,000 miles of land telephone lines and submarine cables, connecting lifeboat stations, lighthouses and other units. The facilities include radio traffic stations and air radio stations.

To defray the cost of their initial clothing and equipment, this sum to be deducted subsequently from their pay. In addition each cadet upon appointment is required to deposit $100 with the Superintendent of the Academy to help defray additional clothing and equipment costs.

Upon graduation, a Cadet is commissioned by the President as an Ensign in the Coast Guard, receiving the same pay and allowances as an officer of similar rank in the Army, Navy or Marines.

United States Air Force Academy

The United States Air Force Academy, estab. 1954, is located at Lowry Air Force Base, Denver, Colo., and will move to a permanent site at the foot of the Rocky Mountains, 8 miles north of Colorado Springs, when sufficient buildings are completed there.

The Academy is the culmination of dreams of farsighted airmen like Generals Mitchell, Arnold, Spaatz and Vandenberg, who recognized the need for a separate academy to train future air commanders long before the Air Force became an autonomous service.

The first class of approximately 300 cadets began training on July 11, 1955. The second class of approx. 300 will be admitted July 9, 1956.

Requirements for admission to the Academy differ from civilian colleges in that each prospective cadet must first be nominated as a candidate under one or more of the categories listed below. Final selections are made by the Air Force. Approximately 85% of the cadets entering in July, 1956, will obtain their nominations through Congressional sources.

Each Senator and Representative is authorized to nominate 10 candidates. If nominated by a Senator, the candidate's residence may be anywhere in the state. If nominated by a Representative, the candidate must be a resident of his Congressional District.

The number of competitive vacancies: Congressional, 255; Vice Presidential, 1; Presidential, 13; Regular Components, 13; Reserve Components, 13; Sons of Deceased Veterans, 5. There will be a number of non-competitive vacancies for sons of Medal of Honor winners.

No vacancies for the class entering in 1956 exist for residents of the District of Columbia, Hawaii, Alaska, Puerto Rico or the Canal Zone.

A candidate must be at least 17 years of age and must not have reached his 22nd birthday by July 1 of the year in which he enters. He must be a male citizen of the United States, of good moral character, and must never have been married. He should be at least 5 ft. 4 in., but not more than 6 ft. 4 in. tall.

After nomination, the candidate must take the following examination and tests at Air Force installations: the Air Force medical examination for flying training and the Air Force pilot aptitude and observer aptitude test. The college entrance examination board test will also be administered in the applicant's community. In the competitive selection consideration is also given to the candidate's character, leadership potential, academic record and participation in extra-curricular activities. Entrance requirements and procedures for appointment are described in detail in the U. S. Air Force Academy Catalogue which may be obtained free from the U. S. Air Force Academy Appointments Branch, Washington 25, D. C.

To be considered for entrance, a letter of nomination must be submitted by the nominating authority to the Air Force Academy Appointment Branch, Headquarters, USAF, Washington 25, D. C. not later than January 31. Applicants for the Regular and Reserve Component vacancies must submit their applications to their organizational commanders on or before November 30, of any year preceding the class they wish to enter. Applicants for Vice Presidential vacancies mail complete information, to the Vice President, Washington, D. C., requesting nomination. Applicants for Presidential, Sons of Deceased Veterans, and Sons of Medal of Honor vacancies should mail complete information to the Appointment Branch in Washington, requesting nomination. Sons of Medal of Honor winners who meet requirements may be admitted without regard to vacancies. These candidates are required to qualify on entrance examinations.

Upon admission to the Academy, each cadet is required to sign an oath of allegiance and an obligation to serve as a commissioned officer in the Regular Air Force for not less than 3 consecutive years upon graduation. Summer periods at the Academy are primarily devoted to military training, flying training, and physical training but approximately 4 weeks' leave is granted cadets each summer after the first year. The academic year runs from September through May.

Upon admission the cadet deposits $300 to be credited to his account to cover part of the cost of equipment and uniforms. Cadets are paid $111.15 per month and an allowance for food. From this the Cadets pay for food, books, clothing, and all personal expenses. Quarters and medical attention are provided. Upon successful completion of the four-year course, the graduate receives a Bachelor of Science degree, an Observer's rating and a commission as a 2nd Lieutenant in the Regular Air Force.

The 296 cadets in the first class of the Academy chose the falcon as the symbol of the Academy.

The Superintendent of the Academy is Lt. Gen. H. R. Harmon, USAF. The Dean of Faculty is Brig. Gen. Don Z. Zimmerman, USAF. The Commandant of Cadets is Brig. Gen. Robert M. Stillman, USAF.

Women's Branches of the U. S. Military Service

WOMEN'S ARMY CORPS, REGULAR ARMY
Col. Irene O. Galloway, GS, Director, the Pentagon, Washington, D. C.

The Women's Army Corps in the Regular Army, estab. 1948, grew out of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps (WAAC), estab. 1942. The mission of the WAC is to make available to the Army the skills and knowledge of women and to constitute a nucleus for rapid expansion in case of a national emergency. Enlistment is open to all women between 18 and 34, inclusive, who are high school graduates or have successfully completed the General Educational Development Test, high school level, are citizens of U. S. or have first papers, are single and without dependents under 18. The training program consists of 8 weeks' basic training followed by 6 to 16 weeks of specialist training for new recruits. Graduates of accredited colleges and universities are eligible to apply for direct commissions contingent upon successful completion of the WAC Officer Basic Course of 20 weeks. Qualified enlisted women may be commissioned upon acceptance for and completion of the Officer Candidate Course of 17 weeks. Regular Army administrative and technical schools are open to WAC officers and enlisted women. With the exception of combat training, instruction for Wacs parallels that for men.

The first permanent home of WAC, Fort McClellan, Ala., was opened June 28, 1954.

ARMY NURSE CORPS REGULAR ARMY AND RESERVE

Col. Inez Haynes, Chief, Main Navy Bldg., Washington, D. C.

The Army Nurse Corps, oldest of all women's military services, was established 1901, as a component of the Army Medical Service. In World War II its membership reached 57,000.

The Army-Navy Nurses' Act, 1947, established a permanent Nurse Corps in the Army Medical Service, with permanent commissioned rank, second lieutenant to colonel; and with an authorized strength in the ratio of 6 nurses to every 1,000 of the Regular Army. This Act also provided for an Army Nurse Section in the Officers' Reserve Corps. Current strength is approximately 4,800.

To be eligible for a commission in the Army Nurse Corps one must be a registered professional nurse, a citizen of the United States, between 21 and 45, graduate of a school of nursing acceptable to the Surgeon General of the Army and without dependents under 18. A basic training program is conducted at the Medical Field Service School, Brooke Army Medical Center, Fort Sam Houston, Texas, for nurses without prior service.

ARMY WOMEN'S MEDICAL SPECIALIST CORPS
Colonel Harriet S. Lee, Chief, Main Navy Building, Washington, D. C.

WMSC, RA, was estab. as an Officer Corps of the Regular Army, including members of the U. S. Army Reserve. It is composed of dietitians, physical and occupational therapists.

Regular Army applicants must be citizens, unmarried and without dependents under 18, have a bachelor's degree from a college approved by the Dept. of the Army, and have completed a course in their medical specialty. Applicants with academic degrees may enroll in professional training courses of the Army Medical Service. In addition to 12-month dietetic and physical therapy courses conducted at Army Medical Service installations, a 9-month clinical affiliation program is available to students who have completed the didactic portion of an occupational therapy course in an approved college or university.

The Chief of the Corps holds the temporary rank of colonel and the chiefs of the three specialist sections are temporary lieutenant colonels. Other members serve in grades from second lieutenant to major.

WOMEN IN THE MEDICAL SERVICE

Qualified women may become commissioned officers in the Medical Services of the Army, Navy and Air Force comparable to male commissioned officers. They will have similar pay, allowances and opportunities for advancement.

WOMEN IN REGULAR NAVY AND NAVAL RESERVE

Capt. Louise Kathleen Wilde, Asst. Chief for Women, Bureau of Naval Personnel, Navy Dept., Washington, D. C.

The periods of enlistment of women in the Regular Navy and Naval Reserve are the same as for male enlisted members of the Navy. All provisions of the law relating to pay, leave, money allowances and other benefits and emoluments of male personnel of the Navy are applicable to women in the Navy. However, husbands of dependents unless they are in fact dependent on their wives for their chief support.

Women are not assigned to duty in aircraft engaged to combat missions not on vessels of the Navy except hospital ships and naval transports.

NURSE CORPS, U. S. N. and U. S. N. R.
Capt. W. Leona Jackson, NC, USN, Director, Bureau of Medicine & Surgery, Navy, Dept., Washington, D. C.

The Nurse Corps, U. S. Navy, was established 1908. In 1947 the Corps became a staff corps and its members commissioned officers. The law created the Nurse Corps Reserve to reinforce active service in emergencies. It authorizes 6 nurses for 1,000 of Navy and Marine Corps personnel. Peak strength of regular and reserve corps reached 11,086 on active duty in 1945.

Navy Nurses give professional nursing care and instruct hospital corpsmen. Nurses serve in hospitals and dispensaries at home and abroad, on hospital ships and transports, with the Military Sea Transport Service (MSTS) and the Military Air Transport Service (MATS).

Applicants for the regular and reserve corps must be registered professional nurses who can meet the physical, mental, moral and professional standards required. All initial appointments are made in the reserve corps and members are permitted to transfer to the regular corps later providing they meet the qualifications. Appointments in the Reserve are made in the rank of ensign, lieutenant (j.g.), and lieutenant, depending on experience and age. Applications must be received by the Bureau of Navy Personnel before the applicant reaches age 39½.

WOMEN IN THE U. S. AIR FORCE

Col. Phyllis D. S. Gray, Director, Headquarters, USAF, Washington, D. C.

A law passed in 1948 authorized enlistment and appointment of qualified women in the USAF. Currently, single women who are American citizens, high school graduates or the equivalent, between 18 and 34 inclusive and have no dependents under 18 are eligible for enlistment. Parental consent is required for those under 21. A woman of over 34 with prior service in the Armed Forces is eligible for enlistment if her age does not exceed 35 plus the years of prior service completed since 1943. Enlistment periods are for 3, 4 and 6 years. Duty assignments are spread over 32 different career fields.

Civilians and enlisted women between the ages of 20½ and 26½ may apply to attend Officer Candidate School at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas. Civilian applicants are required to have a baccalaureate degree but enlisted women who are high school graduates may be eligible, although some college education is preferable.

AIR FORCE NURSE CORPS

Colonel Verena M. Zeller, Chief, Office of the Surgeon General, USAF, Washington 25, D. C.

The Air Force Nurse Corps was established in 1949 as a division of the Air Force Medical Service and serves on a worldwide basis. The majority of Air Force Nurses are on duty in Air Force hospitals as general duty staff nurses, anesthetists, operating-room supervisors, administrators, teachers and psychiatric nurses. A limited number are enrolled in military or civilian institutions for advanced professional training, while others are assigned to Flight Nursing in air evacuation of patients. Two nurses have received the Distinguished Flying Cross, one posthumously. The 1453rd Medical Air Evacuation Squadron was awarded the Meritorious Unit Commendation for outstanding service from June 28 to Dec. 31, 1950, when it evacuated 16,604 casualties from the Far East to military hospitals in the United States. The 803rd Medical Air Evacuation Squadron received the Distinguished Unit Citation for heroism following the invasion at Inchon and the battle of Seoul.

An applicant must be a female citizen, between 21 and 40 years of age (with no dependents under 18); be physically and professionally qualified to perform nursing duties, be a graduate of a school of nursing acceptable to the Surgeon General, USAF, and actively registered in one state or territory or District of Columbia. The rank she receives at entrance depends on professional experience and educational background. All initial appointments are in the Air Force Reserve and appointments to the Regular Air Force are made from Reserve applicants who are single, between 21 to 30 years old and are currently serving on extended active duty. Air Force Nurses enjoy the full privileges, rank and pay of an officer in the USAF.

AIR FORCE WOMEN'S MEDICAL SPECIALIST CORPS

Col. Miriam E. Perry, Chief, Office of the Surgeon General, Hq USAF, Washington, D. C.
WMSC, USAF, was organized when the USAF Medical Service was established in 1949. It is an officers corps of dietitians, physical therapists and occupational therapists.

An applicant must first be commissioned in the United States Air Force Reserve. If qualified, she may apply after 6 months of extended active duty for a commission in the Regular Air Force.

To be appointed as a 2nd lieutenant in the Reserve, a dietitian must possess a bachelor's degree from an accredited college or university with a major either in foods and nutrition or in institution management. In addition, she must have completed an approved hospital dietetic internship or have had 3 years acceptable hospital experience. For a Reserve appointment, a physical therapist must have a minimum of 90 semester hours in an accredited college or university, and must also have completed an approved training course in physical therapy. For Reserve appointment, an occupational therapist must have a minimum of 60 semester hours in an accredited college or university and be a graduate of an approved School of Occupational Therapy. An applicant who meets certain requirements as to education and experience may be appointed in a higher grade.

Individuals who have the basic educational and general qualifications for appointment in the Regular Air Force may be commissioned as 2nd lieutenants in the Reserve for the purpose of completing a hospital dietetic internship, physical therapy training or occupational therapy training (not to exceed 12 months).

To be eligible for a Reserve commission, applicant must be a female citizen, physically and educationally qualified, between 21 and 40 years of age and have no dependents under 18. For a Regular commission, applicant must possess the appropriate bachelor's degree, have the required professional training, be single or divorced, have no dependents under 18, and be under 27 for appointment as a 2nd lieutenant and under 30 for 1st lieutenant. Queries may be directed to the Surgeon General, United States Air Force, Washington 25, D. C. Attention: Chief, Women's Medical Specialist Corps.

WOMEN MARINES

Col. Julia E. Hamblet, Director, Hq. U. S. Marine Corps, Washington, D. C.

Women Marines, recognized since 1918, were authorized as regulars by the Women's Armed Services Integration Act of 1948. Women must be 18 to 31 years of age for enlistment and 21 for commissioning; must be single upon entering the Marine Corps but may marry while on duty. Women who marry may be released from service after serving a prescribed tour of duty subsequent to recruit or officer training.

Recruits receive 8 weeks of training at Parris Island, S. C. Officer training is conducted at Quantico, S. Va., for meritorious enlisted women and college students or graduates who attend a 12 weeks' course in the Women Officers Training Class before commissioning.

At the end of 1955 approximately 2,200 Women Marines were serving on active duty at post and stations throughout the country, including Washington, D. C. and San Francisco, Calif., at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, and in Italy and France.

The United States Marine Corps

The U. S. Marine Corps, one of the nation's armed services, dating from Nov. 10, 1775, has emphasized its role as a force in readiness by continuing throughout 1955 its development of new tactics and techniques for amphibious warfare in an atomic age.

Lt. Gen. Randolph McC. Pate was appointed by President Eisenhower to succeed Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd, Jr., on Jan. 1, 1956, as Commandant of the Marine Corps. Gen. Pate's appointment is for 2 years.

One highlight of 1955 was redeployment of the First Marine Division to the United States in March after nearly 5 years in Korea, 3 of them in front-line combat. In World War II and the Korean fighting, the division earned 5 Presidential Unit Citations.

Average strength of the Marine Corps in 1955 approximated 207,000 officers and enlisted personnel, including about 2,200 Women Marines. The authorized strength remains at a minimum of 3 divisions and 3 aircraft wings. One division and one wing are in the Far East.

The Marine Corps took part in the May, 1955, atomic tests at Desert Rock, Nev. Helicopter-borne troops of a Marine ground-air experimental force carried out an assault exercise on an objective that had been hit by an actual atomic explosion. Major amphibious exercises were also conducted in the Far East in 1955, as well as in North Carolina and California.

The Marine Corps' functions as a professional fighting laboratory in peacetime were in evidence through the year. New weapons included Ontos, an anti-tank vehicle carrying 8 106mm recoilless rifles. A new inflatable reconnaissance boat of rubberized nylon built to carry 9 men, were made available to the operating forces while experiments continued with a larger type. Experiments were also continued with the lightweight geodesic domes, which except for the largest sizes are fully portable by helicopter. The domes are expected to solve many problems of military shelter in the field. Logistically, the Marine Corps pioneered the development of a bulk fuel supply system for amphibious assault, using non-rigid rubberized tanks.

A major development of 1955 in Marine Corps aviation was the unveiling of an all-weather air support system. Use of radar guidance enables planes flying blind, and releasing their bombs automatically, to hit their targets with excellent accuracy. Tested in Korean combat, this is described as the most practical all-weather method yet devised.

First Marine Corps trainees under the Reserve Forces Act of 1955 were enlisted in September. Such recruits will serve for 6 months, then be in the Marine Corps Reserve for an additional 7½ years. Basic training is given at Parris Island, S. C., and San Diego, Calif.

Marine air and ground units participated with other services and agencies in aiding flood-stricken areas in the northeastern United States and on the Gulf Coast of Mexico after the hurricanes in late summer of 1955. In September, Marines from Camp Pendleton fought Southern California forest fires for 4 days.

Major Marine bases in the United States are at Quantico, Va.; Cherry Point and Camp Lejeune, N. C.; Parris Island, S. C.; Miami, Fla.; El Toro, Camp Pendleton and San Diego, Calif. In Hawaii, Marines are stationed at Kaneohe Bay on the Island of Oahu. They also serve in Japan, on Okinawa, with the various fleets and naval bases, with U. S. embassies, at NATO and U. N. installations.

United States Merchant Marine Academy

The United States Merchant Marine Academy—the fourth permanent Federal Academy for officer training—has a complement of 800 Cadet-Midshipmen from every state in the Union, and the District of Columbia, Alaska, the Canal Zone, Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

On completion of courses, graduate Cadet-Midshipmen are examined for their original Merchant Marine license as deck or engineer officers in any ship in the United States Merchant Marine. Graduates also receive a bachelor of science degree and commissions as officers in the United States Naval Reserve and in the United States Maritime Service.

The course of the Cadet Corps is four years and consists of one year as Fourth Classman at the Academy; one year as Third Classman aboard a ship and two years as Second and First Classman at the Academy.

Appointment of candidates is governed by a state and territory quota system based on population. A candidate must possess a minimum of 15 units from accredited schools and pass a nation-wide competitive examination as well as a rigid U. S. Navy Officer physical examination. Examinations are made up and graded by competent college entrance authorities.

A candidate must be a male citizen of the United States, not less than 16 years and six months of age and not over 21 years of age on the date of application is received by the Supervisor. Discharged veterans, armed services and Merchant Marine are granted an age waiver to 22nd birthday and are also allowed five points additional on good moral character test. A candidate must be not less than 5 feet 6 inches or more than 6 feet 4 inches in height. Candidates must have a minimum vision of 20/20 in each eye without glasses.

Under Federal legislation the Academy is authorized to receive not more than 12 candidates each year from Latin American Republics, for the full four-year course.

Requests for further information and applications for appointment as Cadet-Midshipman should be addressed to the Maritime Training Officer, Maritime Admin., U. S. Dept. of Commerce, Washington 25, D. C.

The Academy at Kings Point, N. Y., formerly the estate of Walter P. Chrysler, is situated on the north shore of Long Island near the confluence of Long Island Sound and the East River and covers 65 acres.

The Superintendent of the Academy is Rear Admiral Gordon McLintock, U.S.M.S.

Veterans Administration

VA—Veterans Administration—Harvey V. Higley, Administrator. Address, Washington 25, D. C.

Veterans Administration is an independent Government agency charged with administering benefits provided by law for veterans and their families. The agency was created in July, 1930, by combining the Bureau of Pensions, Veterans Bureau and National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers.

America's veterans passed the 22,000,000 mark in September, 1955. Of these, 80%, or 15,400,000, served in World War II. Another 4,100,000 had seen service during the Korean conflict period, between June 27, 1950, and Jan. 31, 1955. The remainder served in other wars or during peace.

Following are the major benefits which VA administers for veterans, their families and beneficiaries:

MEDICAL AND HOSPITAL BENEFITS

As of Oct. 1, 1955, VA was operating 173 hospitals, and utilizing beds in civil, state and other Federal hospitals on a contract basis. The average daily patient load was in excess of 110,000, more than half of whom were being treated for mental illnesses.

Veterans of all wars, including Korea, may be entitled to VA hospital care under the following priority system: First, those suffering from injuries or diseases incurred in or made worse by wartime service. Second, those with non-service-connected disabilities. Veterans in this group must state under oath that they are unable to pay for private treatment; they must submit a financial statement of their assets and liabilities, and they must wait until beds are available.

KOREAN GI BILL

The Korean GI bill, enacted in July, 1952, contains a five-point program to help Korea veterans readjust to civilian life. Included are education and training, Government-guaranteed and insured loans for homes, farms and business, unemployment compensation, mustering-out pay and job-finding help.

Under the educational provisions a veteran may get one and one-half days of education or training for each day in service during the Korean conflict period, maximum 36 mos. While in training, he will receive a monthly Government allowance. Tuition, fees, books and living costs must come out of the allowance.

Rates for veterans in full-time training in schools and colleges are $110 a month if they have no dependents; $135 if they have one dependent, and $160 if they have more than one dependent. Those training less than full time, as well as those taking on-the-job or on-the-farm training, will receive lower monthly rates. The veteran may change his course only once. Since he must choose wisely, VA will provide vocational counsel.

Through Oct. 1, 1955, more than 1,000,000 veterans or one out of every 4 who served during the Korean period—had received GI training. More than half had gone to college.

A second major benefit of the law is a GI loan program that operates under the same conditions that apply for World War II veterans. Loans may be used to buy, build or improve a home, buy a farm, farm land or farm equipment, or to go into business.

As with World War II veterans, GI home loans may be guaranteed up to 60% of the loan, but the guaranteed portion may not exceed $7,500. Other real estate loans may be guaranteed up to 50%, with a $4,000 guaranty ceiling. Non-real-estate loans, such as business loans, may be guaranteed up to 50% with a $2,000 maximum guaranty. By Oct. 1, 1955, more than 220,000 Korea veterans had obtained GI loans amounting to more than $2.1 billion. More than 90% were GI home loans.

Both the education and training and the GI loan programs of the Korean GI bill are administered by the VA. The remaining benefits of the law are not.

Unemployment compensation of $26 a week for a maximum of 26 weeks is handled through the states by the U. S. Department of Labor. An unemployed veteran must meet the eligibility requirements of his state.

The mustering-out program, administered by the Armed Forces, provides payment at time of discharge of $300 for those with at least 60 days' service who were on active duty outside the U. S.; $200 for those with 60 days' or more service who were not outside the USA, and $100 for those who spent less than 60 days on active duty.

The law's job-finding assistance consists of job counseling and employment placement services, offered by the U. S. Employment Service.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING FOR DISABLED

Vocational rehabilitation is provided both for veterans disabled as a result of World War II service, and those disabled in service during the Korean conflict period. Eligible veterans with service-connected disabilities, in need of vocational training to overcome their handicaps, may train in schools, on-the-job or on-the-farm.

Before starting training, a disabled veteran will be interviewed by a VA counselor and may be given a series of tests to determine aptitudes, interests and abilities. While in training and for 2 months afterwards, disabled veterans may receive subsistence allowance in addition to disability compensation pay, and also in addition to training costs—tuition, books and the like—which VA pays directly to the school.

Maximum rates for those in the classroom are $75 a month, without dependents; $105 with one dependent, and $120 with more than one dependent. Additional allowances may be paid, depending on the veteran's degree of disability and his family status.

By Oct. 1, 1955, more than 609,000 disabled World War II veterans and 31,000 veterans disabled since Korea had received vocational rehabilitation training. Forty percent trained for top-level occupations in the professions and business management; 30% trained for skilled trade and industrial jobs; the remainder trained for occupations ranging from farmer to office worker.

WORLD WAR II GI BILL

Of the original GI bill for World War II veterans, the loan program is the only benefit still in full force. This is essentially the same as for Korea veterans. However, it will expire for most World War II veterans on July 25, 1957, whereas the Korean GI loan program will run until Jan. 31, 1965.

By Oct. 1, 1955, a total of 4,300,000 World War II veterans had obtained GI loans amounting to $31.1 billion. Of this amount, VA had guaranteed or insured nearly $17 billion. More than 90% of the loans, or 4,000,000, were for homes. Farm loans numbered 68,000, and business loans 222,000.

Veterans have made an excellent record in meeting their GI loan obligations. By Oct. 1, 1955, more than 900,000 loans had been repaid in full. By the same date, VA had paid claims on only 38,000 defaulted loans—less than 1% of all loans to veterans.

Turning to the education and training provisions of the World War II GI bill, a total of more than 7,800,000 veterans of that war have enrolled during the 12 years the program has been in effect. Of these, 2,300,000 attended college; 3,300,000 went to schools below the college level; 1,500,000 trained on-the-job, and 700,000 took farm training. On Oct. 1, 1955, less than 100,000 World War II veterans still were in training, a far cry from the peak of 2,500,000 reached at the end of 1947. The GI training program comes to an end for nearly all World War II veterans on July 25, 1956.

Under the third major World War GI bill benefit—readjustment allowances for unemployment—which ended for nearly all veterans in July, 1949, nearly 9,000,000 had received allowances, although most found jobs after being on the rolls only a few weeks.

COMPENSATION AND PENSIONS

Veterans with service-connected disabilities resulting from either wartime or peacetime service may qualify for monthly compensation payments from VA. Wartime rates—also paid to disabled Korea veterans—ranging from $17 to $181 a month, depending on the degree of disability.

Additional statutory awards also are payable to veterans with certain serious disabilities such as blindness and loss of limb. Peacetime rates of compensation are 80% of the wartime scale.

Pensions may be paid to veterans of either World War I or II or of Korea, if they are permanently and totally disabled for reasons not traceable to their military service. Also, their annual incomes may not exceed $1,400 if single or $2,700 if married or with a minor child. Rates are $66.15 a month, increased to $78.75 after 10 years or when the veteran reaches age 65. However, if the veteran needs regular aid and attendance, the rate of $135.45 a month.

On Oct. 1, 1955, nearly 2,700,000 veterans were on VA's compensation and pension rolls. Included were 158,000 disabled since Korea.

INSURANCE

VA administers three programs of insurance: U. S. Government Life for World War I veterans; National Service Life for World War II veterans; and the Indemnity and Insurance Acts of 1951 for Korea veterans.

The 1951 law also provides free automatic coverage against death for those on active duty.

for $10,000 less any other GI insurance they may have had in force. This free coverage lasts for 120 days after separation, for those ordered to active duty for more than 30 days. After discharge, a veteran may apply for certain types of low-premium, non-dividend-paying GI insurance.

On Oct. 1, 1955, a total of 370,000 Korea veterans were holding the new forms of insurance. At the same time, more than 5,600,000 World War II veterans were carrying NSLI, and 398,000 World War I veterans had USGLI policies in force.

WHEELCHAIR HOUSING

VA pays a grant of up to $10,000 toward the cost of a suitably-equipped house for a veteran of either war or peacetime service who lost, or lost the use of, his legs, so that he cannot get about without the aid of braces, crutches or a wheelchair. More than 4,000 such veterans through Oct. 1, 1955 had received wheelchair housing grants.

OTHER BENEFITS

In addition to these programs, the VA administers a number of other benefits for veterans and their dependents, including automobile grants for seriously disabled veterans, a guardianship service, a contact service to advise veterans and their families of their rights to benefits, and similar activities.

Lorraine, St. Avoird (Moselle), France (10,488).
Manila, near Fort McKinley, Manila, Republic of the Philippines (17,177). The memorial planned for this cemetery will be the largest in the Commission's construction program.
Luxembourg, near Hamm, Luxembourg (5,076).
Netherlands, Margraten, Holland (8,301).
Normandy, near St. Laurent (Calvados), France (9,385).
North Africa, Carthage, Tunisia (2,834).
Rhône, Draguignan (Var), France (861).
Sicily-Rome, Nettuno, Italy (7,862).

The Manila Cemetery and the National Memorial Cemetery of the Pacific at Punchbowl Crater, Honolulu, T.H., are the only overseas sites in the Pacific Ocean areas and the Far East containing the dead of World War II.

There are two other national cemeteries maintained by the Quartermaster General Department of the Army, Washington, D.C., in which World War II dead are buried. One, at Sitka, Alaska, contains the graves of those who gave their lives in Alaska and the Aleutian Islands campaign. The other at Hato Tehas, Puerto Rico, contains the remains of those who died in the Caribbean Area.

In the general interest, the decoration of graves only with natural cut flowers is permitted. The Commission is happy to assist interested persons to arrange with local florists in foreign countries for placing such decorations.

Where Hannibal Crossed the Alps Over 2,000 Years Ago

Source: National Geographic Society

Hannibal, the Carthaginian general, led his army across the Alps in 218 B. C. to challenge the might of Rome in Italy. This passage, regarded as one of the greatest of all military feats, has challenged many historians. The latest study by Sir Gavin de Beer, director, Natural History Museum, London, Eng., is considered most plausible. Studying clues to the land route given in descriptions by Livy and Polybius, Sir Gavin determined that Hannibal, who commanded an army of 50,000 foot soldiers, 9,000 horsemen and over 30 elephants, moved from Spain to the Rhone, crossed it near Arles, followed the Durance River and the Aygues tributary of the Isere to the hills near the present town of Gap, in the French Basses-Alpes, north of Mt. Viso, 12,602 ft. high. Passing by way of the Col de la Traversette, Hannibal reached the low plain of Piedmont. The passage took 5 mos. in the course of which Hannibal was often under attack in the mountains and reached Italy with 20,000 infantry and 6,000 horse.

To make elephants cross the Rhone on rafts, Hannibal's men covered rafts with earth. Some of the elephants became panicky and fell off, but waded out. Where wider roads had to be made for the elephants in the mountains, Hannibal's men would start a fire on a huge rock and then drench it with vinegar, an ancient method of attacking fortifications.

Sir Gavin explains that even today Hannibal's route is a wild, rugged country, frequented by smugglers, crossed by neither highway nor railroad. Mt. Viso in Hannibal's day was covered with pines and is so described by Virgil. Hannibal lost many men from ambush, falls from precipices, and stones rolled down on them. Descending across avalanche snowfields, "the soldiers knew not where to set foot with safety."

But, despite their losses, the Carthaginians gave the Romans two of their worst defeats at Lake Trasimene and Cannae.

Personal Salutes and Honors

The national salute is 21 guns. It is also the salute to a national flag. The salute to the Union, commemorative of the Declaration of Independence and consisting of one gun for each State, will be fired at noon on July 4 at every post provided with suitable artillery.

A 21-gun salute on arrival and departure, and four ruffles and flourishes, is rendered to the President of the United States, to an ex-president, chief magistrate or sovereign of a foreign country, or to members of a reigning royal family. The national anthem is played for the president, a march for an ex-president, and the national anthem of his or her country for others. The music is considered an inseparable part of the salute and will immediately follow the ruffles and flourishes without pause.

Other Salutes (on arrival only) are 15 guns for American envoys or ministers and foreign envoys or ministers accredited to the U. S., and a lieutenant general; 13 guns for a major general, American ministers resident and ministers resident accredited to the U. S.; 11 guns for American charges d'affaires and like officials accredited to the U. S., a brigadier general, and consuls general accredited to the U. S.; 7 guns to consuls accredited to the U. S.; and 5 guns to a vice consul or consular agent accredited to the U. S.

A vice consul when in charge of the office and acting as consul general or consul is entitled to such courtesies.

Federal Civil Defense Administration

The Federal Civil Defense Administration (FCDA) was established in the executive branch of the U. S. Government Jan. 12, 1951, "to provide a plan of civil defense for the protection of life and property" from attack. The principal responsibility is vested in the states, with the Federal Government providing coordination and guidance.

The Administrator and Deputy Administrator are appointed by the President of the U. S. A Civil Defense Advisory Council deals with policy and is composed of the Administrator and 12 members appointed by the President, 3 from state governments, 3 from political divisions of the states, and the rest citizens of broad experience other than employees of the Government.

The Administrator supervises programs of civil defense, including shelters, protective equipment, communications and treatment of effects of attack, and may conduct training programs and operate not more than one civil defense college and 3 civil defense technical schools. He may stockpile materials. The Federal Government will contribute to protective facilities if states match the Federal outlay, but will not pay for land or administrative expenses, or for elements of construction not directly associated with defense.

Upon proclamation of a state of civil defense emergency the President may cause personnel and facilities of Federal departments to be placed at the discretion of civil defense, including temporary replacement of hospital, utility and transport facilities, and the Administrator may during such emergency develop relief activities beyond the limitations of the law. The Federal Administrator, appointed by the President, is Val Peterson, former Governor of Nebraska.

NEW YORK STATE CIVIL DEFENSE

The Civil Defense Commission of New York State, set up under the State Defense Emergency Act, supervises civil defense plans, which executives of cities and counties are expected to carry out. In the event of an emergency its powers become broader and include direct operational control of all civil defense forces and the taking of real and personal property as required for its functions. In the event of attack it may control non-military vehicular traffic. Other states have similar arrangements and interstate compacts assuring cooperation between states for the welfare of the population. Under Chapter 10 of the Executive Law, the Commission was appointed to coordinate the aid and assistance of all state agencies in the event of a natural disaster. In New York 15 heads of various commissions are ex officio members of the Civil Defense Commission and 3 others are appointed by the Governor. The State Director, appointed by the Commission is C. R. Huebner, Lt. Gen., USA, ret.

Code of Conduct for Prisoners of War to Support Morale

By executive order, Aug. 17, 1955, President Eisenhower, as Commander in Chief of the Armed Forces, prescribed a Code of Conduct to encourage and stiffen the morale of American soldiers who become prisoners of war. The code was drawn up after an Advisory Committee on Prisoners of War, appointed by the Secy. of Defense, Chas. E. Wilson, had made a careful study of methods of indoctrination, browbeating and torture used against 4,428 Americans by the Chinese Communists. The Committee recognized the barbaric brutality of the enemy could be defeated only by staunch support of American principles and standards that are the hallmarks of a free education. The Code reads:

1. I am an American fighting man. I serve in the forces which guard my country and our way of life. I am prepared to give my life in their defense.

2. I will never surrender of my own free will. If in command I will never surrender my men while they still have the means to resist.

3. If I am captured I will continue to resist by all means available. I will make every effort to escape and aid others to escape. I will accept neither parole nor special favors from the enemy.

4. If I become a prisoner of war, I will keep faith with my fellow prisoners. I will give no information or take part in any action which might be harmful to my comrades. If I am senior, I will take command. If not I will obey the lawful orders of those appointed over me and will back them up in every way.

5. When questioned, should I become a prisoner of war, I am bound to give only name, rank, service number and date of birth. I will evade answering further questions to the utmost of my ability. I will make no oral or written statements disloyal to my country and its allies or harmful to their cause.

6. I will never forget that I am an American fighting man, responsible for my actions, and dedicated to the principles which made my country free. I will trust in my God and in the United States of America.

Members of the Advisory Committee were Carter L. Burgess, Asst. Secy. of Defense for Manpower & Personnel, ch., Gen. John E. Hull, ex-U. N. Commander in Chief in the Far East, vice ch., Dr. Frank Berry, Asst. Defense Secy. for Health & Manpower, Hugh M. Milton, 2nd, Asst. Secy. of the Army, Albert Pratt, Asst. Secy. of the Navy, David S. Smith, Asst. Secy. of the Air Force, Lt. Gen. Frank W. Milburn, U. S. A., rt., Vice Adm. Chas. A. Lockwood, U. S. N., rt., Lt. Gen. Idwal H. Edwards, U. S. A. F., and Gen. Merritt Edson, U. S. M. C. The committee interviewed many high officers, as well as former prisoners of war, including Maj. Gen. Wm. P. Dean, who was a prisoner of the North Koreans for 3 years.

The Committee, in a long report describing the brutality encountered by the prisoners and their reactions said 7,190 Americans were captured by the enemy during the Korean war. Of these 6,656 were Army, 263 Air Force, 231 Marines, 40 Navy. Of these 2,730 died in Communist hands, many on the "hunger marches," 11 were held beyond the armistice and later released, 21 refused repatriation. The U. S. has record of 470 additional servicemen in the hands of the enemy and not yet accounted for. A small number of prisoners wilted under the methods of the enemy, a few became informers willingly. The case of every P. O. W. is tried on its merits, and the effect of the viciousness of the Communist enemy is fully taken into account.

 We can master the air only if we destroy the enemy air forces. We shall never be able to do this unless we organize and control the air forces of the western alliance as one single mighty weapon of air power. We should establish a single political authority for the direction of war. I would put this authority in North America.—Field Marshal Lord Montgomery in 1955 address before Royal United Service Institution, London, England.

FOREIGN RELATIONS

Treaties Ratified, 1955

During the First Session, 84th Congress, the U. S. Senate ratified these treaties:

Treaty for collective mutual defense of southeast Asia signed by United States, Australia, New Zealand, Philippines, Thailand, Pakistan, Great Britain, and France. Ratified Feb. 1, 1955, 82 to 1.

Treaty for mutual defense signed by United States and Republic of China. Ratified Feb. 9, 1955, 84 to 8.

Treaty signed by United States, England, France, and West Germany terminating occupation of West Germany and recognizing sovereignty of Federal Republic. Ratified April 1, 1955, 76 to 2.

Dissenting votes on acts of April 1, 1955 were cast by Langer (R.-N. D.) and Malone (R.-Nev.)

Protocol to North Atlantic Treaty signed by 14 nation members of NATO admitting West Germany. Ratified April 1, 1955, 76 to 2.

Protocol of International Telecommunication Convention at Buenos Aires signed by United States and 82 other countries cooperating in regulation of radio frequencies. Ratified April 1, 1955, 63 to 3.

Treaty for the reestablishment of the independence of Austria signed by the United States, Great Britain, France, U. S. S. R., and Austria. Ratified June 17, 1955, 63 to 3.

Conventions governing treatment of prisoners of war and protection of civilians in time of war, signed at Geneva, August 12, 1949. Ratified July 6, 1955, 77 to 0.

Yalta Conference Reports

Proceedings of the Yalta Conference of Feb. 4-11, 1945, held secret for diplomatic reasons, were published by the U. S. State Dept. Mar. 17, 1955. Repeated assertions by leaders of the conservative wing of the Republican party that the proceedings contained evidence of too great concessions to the Soviet Union by President Franklin D. Roosevelt prompted a 1953 act of Congress ordering publication of all proceedings of World War II conferences, with Yalta first. The British government objected to publication, but withdrew its objection Mar. 16. Pressure from press and politicians caused the State Dept. to release the report entitled The Conference at Malta and Yalta, 1945. The Malta Conference, between Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt took place Feb. 2, 1945, in preparation for Yalta.

The report on Yalta disclosed the informal discussions by which Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin reached decisions. The concessions to the Soviet Union in payment for entering the war against Japan were supported by military reports that it would take 18 mos. after Germany's fall to defeat Japan. Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves informed Gen. Geo. C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff in December, 1944, that the first atom bomb should be ready about Aug. 1, 1945, and the second by the end of the year. The U. S. State Dept. opposed the forcible partition of Germany and was against recognizing the Polish Provisional Govt. of Lublin, a device of the Soviet Union. This recognition also was opposed by Churchill, but Stalin supported it. Stalin promised free elections in Poland but refused to consider international supervision, which he termed an affront to Polish sovereignty. Roosevelt and Churchill compromised.

The State Dept. had favored a Soviet trusteeship for north and central Kuriles under the prospective U. N. Japan to retain the southern Kuriles. Roosevelt did not object to the Kuriles and the southern half of Sakhalin going to the Soviet. He wanted to consult Chiang Kai-shek on disposition of Dairen and the Manchurian railroads, but Stalin objected strongly. The three leaders agreed that Germany should be dismembered after surrender. They declared no one else should dictate the peace, but Churchill argued, against Stalin's objections, for giving France a part in control and occupation, because Britain needed a strong France to help fight any future aggression by Germany.

ATTITUDE OF MacARTHUR

President Roosevelt's course was defended in the Senate by Sen. Herbert H. Lehman (D.-N. Y.), who asserted the Yalta concessions must be studied in the light of the recommendations of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower on the course of the war in Germany and of Gen. Douglas MacArthur on the war with Japan. He said Gen. MacArthur

"strongly favored and urgently recommended that Soviet Russia be involved in the war against Japan." Gen. MacArthur replied that he did not have the slightest connection with Yalta; his views were not solicited, and "I would most emphatically have recommended against bringing the Soviet into the Pacific war at that late date."

Sen. Lehman requested the Dept. of Defense to publish the military and other recommendations relating to efforts to get the Russians into the Pacific war. This report, 35,000 words long, was published Oct. 19, 1955. The report did not show that Gen. MacArthur had been consulted previously to the Yalta conference. The day after the Yalta meeting, Feb. 13, 1945, Gen. Geo. C. Marshall received a summary of Gen. MacArthur's views, in which Gen. MacArthur insisted that Russia pay her way by invading Manchuria at the earliest possible date after the defeat of Germany. Other despatches quoting Gen. MacArthur as desiring Russian participation were dated Feb. 25, Mar. 8 and June 18, 1945. Gen. MacArthur commented that the report confirmed that he had not been consulted prior to Yalta; his post-Yalta statements dealt with military needs after the decisions had been made. Sen. Lehman contended that the report clearly supported his contention that Gen. MacArthur favored bringing the Soviet Union into the war.

EXTRACTS FROM YALTA AGREEMENT

The secret clauses affecting the Far East were published in March, 1947. They were:

The leaders of the three great powers—the Soviet Union, the United States of America and Great Britain—have agreed that in two or three months after Germany has surrendered and the war in Europe has terminated the Soviet Union shall enter into the war against Japan on the side of the Allies on condition that:

(1) The status quo in Outer Mongolia (the Mongolian People's Republic) shall be preserved;

(2) The former rights of Russia violated by the treacherous attack of Japan in 1904 shall be restored, viz: (a) the southern part of Sakhalin as well as all the islands adjacent to it shall be returned to the Soviet Union. (b) The commercial port of Dairen shall be internationalized, the preeminent interests of the Soviet Union in this port being safeguarded and the lease of Port Arthur as a naval base of the U.S.S.R. restored. (c) The Chinese Eastern Railroad and the South Manchurian Railroad which provides an outlet to Dairen shall be jointly operated by the establishment of a joint Soviet-Chinese company, it being understood that the preeminent interests of the Soviet Union shall be safeguarded and that China shall retain full sovereignty in Manchuria;

(3) The Kurile Islands shall be handed over to the Soviet Union.

It is understood that the agreement concerning Outer Mongolia and the ports and railroads referred to above will require concurrence of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. The President will take measures in order to obtain this concurrence on advice from Marshal Stalin.

The heads of the three great powers have agreed that these claims of the Soviet Union shall be unquestionably fulfilled after Japan has been defeated.

For its part the Soviet Union expresses its readiness to conclude with the National Government of China a pact of friendship and alliance between the U.S.S.R. and China in order to render assistance to China with its armed forces for the purpose of liberating China from the Japanese yoke.

U. S.-Iran Treaty

A treaty of amity, economic relations and consular rights between the U. S. and Iran was signed Aug. 15, 1955, in Tehran. Like 12 other treaties signed with foreign countries in recent years, it defines basic freedoms and provides for protection of persons and property, exchange, export and income trade, navigation rights and conditions under which enterprises originating in one country are conducted in the other. It will help promote the economic welfare of Iran. It comes into force one month after ratification by U. S. Senate and Iran.

Prisoner Release

An understanding for the release of civilians held prisoner in Communist China and the return of Chinese civilians in the U. S. to China was announced Sept. 10, 1955, by U. Alexis Johnson, ambassador of the U. S. to Czechoslovakia, and Wang Ping-nan, ambassador to Poland of the People's Republic of China (Communist) during negotiations at Geneva.

The understanding was announced in what the State Dept. called "agreed parallel unilateral statements," in order to avoid the term "agreement," which might constitute technical recognition of the Communist regime.

The U. S. agreed that any Chinese who wished to return to Communist China could do so, and if he met with "obstruction in departure" or lacked expense money, he could apply to India for help.

The Chinese agreed Americans were entitled to return home and said the chargé d'affaires of the United Kingdom in China was authorized to give aid.

[There were at the time 29 American civilians detained in jail or house arrest in China on various pretexts. The Chinese in the U. S. were always free to leave, except 129 who were detained when the Korean war broke out because of their technical knowledge, and were given permits to leave before the Geneva meeting began.]

Soviet Proposal on Formosa

A conference of 10 nations in Shanghai or New Delhi to consider the Formosa situation and find means of settling it was proposed to Great Britain by the Soviet Union Feb. 4, 1955. The Soviet govt. suggested that Britain, the Soviet Union and India take the initiative, and that the United States, France, Burma, Indonesia, Pakistan, Ceylon and the Chinese Peoples' Republic (Communist) be invited. In reply the British govt. repeated (1) that a conference without Nationalist China would have no useful result; (2) the discussion should be organized in a form acceptable to the U. N. (2) Britain expressed a hope that "all concerned" would endeavor to stop fighting in the area.

While nothing came of the proposal, it is historically useful as an example of the manner in which the Soviet Union used a diplomatic proposal to continue its hostile propaganda against the United States.

The Soviet declared the situation arose because the U. S. A. "with the help of Chiang Kai-shek" had seized Taiwan (Formosa) which, with the Pescadores and other islands, "belongs to China"; that armed forces of the U. S. had made unprovoked attacks on towns and coastal areas of China and concentrated naval and air forces; that the U. S. had interfered in the internal affairs of China and made aggressive acts and threats of armed force against the Peoples' Republic. The Soviet reminded Britain that it had made a proposal to discuss this in the U. N. in the presence of a representative of the Peoples' Republic as the "lawful representative of China" and elimination of the "representative of the Kuomintang" (Nationalist China).

All-Europe Treaty Proposal

Marshal Nikolai A. Bulganin, premier of the Soviet Union, presented a draft for an All-European Security Treaty at the Geneva Conference July 20. It was intended to achieve collective security and aim at unification of Germany on a peaceful and democratic basis. The language of the draft was similar to that of NATO treaty.

Parties were to be the European states, the United States, the German Democratic Republic (Communist) and the German Federal Republic, with the eventual addition of the unified German state. Disputes were to be settled under the U. N. charter, and the Chinese People's Republic (Communist) have observers in agencies set up under the treaty.

The 4 powers, U. S., United Kingdom, France and Soviet Union, were to continue to deal with the German problem in accordance with previous decisions. Signers of the treaty were to abjure force or threat of force but an armed attack in Europe against a party to the treaty could be met with armed forces, pending collective action under the U. N.

Members were not to "participate in any coalition or alliance or agreements" contrary to the aim of the treaty, but in the first stage (2 to 3 years) the obligations taken under existing treaties were to be honored, except that consultation should supersede military effort. Pending agreements on reducing armaments, prohibiting atomic weapons and withdrawing foreign troops the parties agree "not to take any further steps to increase their armed forces" in Europe under previous agreements. After an agreed time-limit following ratification of the treaty, the Warsaw Treaty of May 14, 1955, the Paris agreements of Oct. 23, 1954 and the North Atlantic Treaty were to become ineffective.

There was no action on the proposed draft, which disclosed the political aims of the Soviet Union.

U. S. Stand on Germany

The U. S. State Dept. issued the following notice Sept. 29, 1955:

The foreign ministers of the United States, the United Kingdom, and France wish to make known their view on certain points in connection with the agreements of Sept. 20, 1955, as reported in the press, between the Soviet Union and the regime in the Soviet zone of Germany.

They wish in the first place to emphasize that these agreements cannot affect the obligations or responsibilities of the Soviet Union under agreements and arrangements between the three powers and the Soviet Union on the subject of Germany and Berlin. The Soviet Union remains responsible for the carrying out of these obligations.

Secondly, the three foreign ministers reaffirm that the Federal Republic of Germany is the only German government freely and legitimately constituted and therefore entitled to speak for Germany as the representative of the German people in international affairs. These three governments do not recognize the East German regime nor the existence of a state in the Soviet zone.

Finally, . . . the three foreign ministers reaffirm the repeatedly expressed position of their governments that the final determination of the frontiers of Germany must await a peace settlement for the whole of Germany.

Austrian State Treaty

The Austrian State Treaty, which restored sovereignty to the Republic of Austria, was signed May 15, 1955, by the foreign ministers of the Big Four and ratified by the United States June 17, 1955. The four ministers who signed were Secy. of State Dulles, Harold MacMillan (Br.), Antoine Pinay (Fr.) and Vyacheslav Molotov (USSR). The foreign minister of Austria, Leopold Figl, also signed. The act took place in the Belvedere (palace) of Vienna. The major terms:

Austria was reestablished as a sovereign, independent and democratic state, within the borders existing before the Anschluss of 1938. The powers agreed to support its projected membership in U. N. Germany, in a future peace treaty, was to renounce all claims on Austria.

Austria guaranteed free elections and "the enjoyment of human rights and of the fundamental freedoms." Former Nazis may not serve in its armed forces, nor may Austria own or produce atomic or nuclear weapons or guided missiles, or other war material for Germany, or civil aircraft for Germany or Japan.

Occupation troops were to leave within 90 days after ratification or so far as possible before Dec. 31, 1955. The occupation was to end when ratification had been deposited with the USSR. Austrian prisoners were to be repatriated as soon as possible. The Danube was to be opened to all states on a footing of equality.

The ambassadors of the 4 powers were to act in concert on execution and interpretation of the treaty for 18 mos. after ratification.

Atomic Information

An agreement for the exchange of atomic information for mutual defense purposes was signed June 15, 1955, by the United States, Canada and the United Kingdom, under terms of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954. It was approved by President Eisenhower. Such information deals with development of defense plans, training of personnel in use and defense against atomic weapons and "the evaluation of the capabilities of potential enemies in the employment of atomic weapons."

The agreement does not permit transfer of atomic weapons or special nuclear material, nor may the governments concerned transfer their information to any nation or regional organization unless authorized.

U. S.-China Defense Treaty

A Mutual Security Treaty between the Republic of China (Nationalist) and the United States was announced by the Dept. of State Dec. 1, 1954. The treaty recognizes the common interest of both in the security of Taiwan (Formosa) and the Pescadores and of the western Pacific islands under jurisdiction of the U. S. It provides for inclusion by agreement of other territories under jurisdiction of both. It provides for continuing consultation on threats of attack and if the Republic of China is subject to unprovoked attack, the U. S. will act according to its constitutional procedures. Ratification by the Senate will be on the agenda for 1955.

U. S.-Korea Defense Treaty

A Mutual Defense Treaty between the United States and the Republic of Korea, signed in Washington Oct. 1, 1953, and ratified by both nations in January, 1954, became effective Nov. 17, 1954. A resolution of the U. S. Senate specified that neither party is obligated to come to the defense of the other except in case of an external armed attack, nor does the U. S. have to give armed assistance "except in the event of an armed attack against territory recognized by the U. S. as lawfully brought under the administrative control of the Republic of Korea." A joint statement, Nov. 17, 1954, said the U. S. would give substantial economic and military aid and "employ its military power against aggressors" in the event of an unprovoked attack on Korea. Conversion of dollars at a realistic exchange rate for U. S. forces is agreed on. Korea leaves its forces under operational control of the United Nations Command.

Southeast Asia Treaty

The Southeast Asia Collective Defense Treaty was signed at Manila, P. R., Sept. 8, 1954, by representatives of 8 nations: United States, Great Britain, France, Australia, New Zealand, Philippine Republic, Thailand and Pakistan. John Foster

Dulles, Secy. of State, signed for the U. S.; the Marquess of Reading, British Minister of State for Foreign Affairs, for Britain and Guy la Chambre for France. The treaty must be ratified.

The treaty calls for continuous self-help and mutual aid to develop capacity to resist armed attack and subversive activities; technical assistance and cooperation to promote economic progress to strengthen the equal rights and self-determination of all peoples.

Art. IV, dealing with aggression, reads:

1. Each party recognizes that aggression by means of armed attack in the treaty area against any of the parties or against any state or territory which the parties by unanimous agreement may hereafter designate would endanger its own peace and safety, and agrees that it will in that event act to meet the common danger in accordance with its constitutional processes. Measures taken under this paragraph shall be immediately reported to the Security Council of the United Nations.

2. If, in the opinion of any of the parties, the inviolability or the integrity of the territory or the sovereignty or political independence of any party in the treaty area or of any other state or territory to which the provisions of Paragraph 1 of this Article from time to time apply is threatened in any way other than by armed attack or is affected or threatened by any fact or situation which might endanger the peace of the area, the parties shall consult immediately in order to agree on the measures which would be taken for the common defense.

3. It is understood that no action on the territory of any state designated by unanimous agreement under Paragraph 1 of this Article or on any territory so designated shall be taken except at the invitation or with the consent of the government concerned.

Owing to the unwillingness of the delegates of the U. S. to become involved in aggression that was not specifically Communist, the U. S. caused the following interpretation to be appended:

The delegation of the United States of America in signing the present treaty does so with the understanding that its recognition of the effect of aggression and armed attack and its agreement with reference thereto in Art. 4, Par. 1, apply only to Communist aggression, but affirms that in the event of other aggression or armed attack it will consult under the provisions of Art. 4, Par. 2.

Events in Foreign Lands

Erection of the first Mormon temple in England was begun in August, 1955, in Newchapel, Surrey. In the first 6 mos. of 1955 Great Britain counted 411,200 visitors from overseas, compared with 365,500 for the same period, 1954.

In Scotland 15 persons out of every 1,000 have the name of Smith, a total of 80,000, exceeding the MacDonalds by 20,000.

Canadian police reports for 1953 listed only 64 murders "known to the police," 3 fewer than the year before.

A jet ferry, believed the first in operation, has been put into service on Lake Victoria in Uganda. It is 32 ft. long and carries vehicles and passengers. The engine sucks in water and expels it as a jet plane does air.

Damage to the Arch of Constantine in Rome, caused by modern traffic, was repaired by supporting blocks of marble with steel bars, suitably disguised. The arch was erected 312 A. D. by the Emperor Constantine to celebrate his victory over Maxentius.

The Krupp establishment in Essen, West Germany, reported gross manufacturing income for 1954 at 1 billion marks (about $235,000,000).

Its director reported that four-fifths of its pre-war property had been destroyed by bombing and dismantling, and the western powers had prohibited it from producing coal and steel.

Great Britain extended its territory in 1955 by formally taking possession of Rockall, a tiny speck of land, 70 ft. tall and with a shoreline of about 250 ft., sticking up like a spike above Rockall Bank, 280 mi. nw of Ireland. It was within reach of a projected guided missiles range in the Hebrides.

Dr. R. A. MacKay, Canadian permanent representative at the United Nations, in August, 1955, turned over $1,500,000 on behalf of Canada to the Technical Assistance Admin., U.N. Canada has contributed $5,322,727 since the program was established in 1950.

Greece opened the first nation-wide electric power transmission system July 15, 1955. Four new plants supply the power: three hydroelectric plants with 95,000 kw. capacity and one steam plant of 80,000 kw. Over 400 cities and villages never before served by electricity will be benefited. Cost, about $115,000,000 was paid for by American aid and Italian reparations.

U. S. Dept. of State Seeks Young People for Foreign Service

The Dept. of State of the United States encourages young Americans to train for appointment to offices in the Foreign Service. Examinations for candidates are given periodically. In December, 1955, the Dept. conducted examinations for candidates in 65 cities. In support of the program 25 officers of the Dept. visited nearly 200 colleges to meet young men and women interested in such careers. The applicant must be at least 20 and under 31 years of age, a citizen of the United States for at least 10 years and, if married, must be married to an American citizen. Those successful in a written examination get an oral examination. The Dept. expects to appoint about 300 officers to the Service in 1956. Beginning salaries are $4,400 to $5,500, and there are insurance, annual and sick leave and retirement benefits. Information may be obtained from the Dept. of State, Washington, D. C.

International Bank for Reconstruction and Development

Eugene R. Black, President; Robert L. Garner, Vice President. Address, 1818 H St., N.W. Washington 25, D. C. European Office: Paris

The Articles of Agreement of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, also known as the World Bank, were drawn up by representatives of 44 nations at the United Nations Monetary and Financial Conference, at Bretton Wood, N.H., July 1-12, 1944. Its official existence dates from Dec. 27, 1945, when the Articles of Agreement were signed by 28 nations in Washington, D.C.; operations were started June 25, 1946. As of Oct. 31, 1955, 58 countries were members.

Afghanistan	Finland	Netherlands
Australia	France	Nicaragua
Austria	Germany	Norway
Belgium	Greece	Pakistan
Bolivia	Guatemala	Panama
Brazil	Haiti	Paraguay
Burma	Honduras	Peru
Canada	Iceland	Philippines
Ceylon	India	Sweden
Chile	Indonesia	Syria
China	Iran	Thailand
Colombia	Iraq	Turkey
Costa Rica	Israel	Union of
Cuba	Italy	South Africa
Denmark	Korea	United Kingdom
Dominican Rep.	Japan	United States
Ecuador	Jordan	Uruguay
Egypt	Lebanon	Venezuela
El Salvador	Luxembourg	Yugoslavia
Ethiopia	Mexico

The purposes of the Bank are: to assist in the reconstruction and development of its member countries by facilitating the investment of capital for productive purposes, and thereby promote the long-range growth of international trade and the improvement of standards of living; to promote participation in loans and investments made by private investors, and to make loans for productive purposes when private capital is not available on reasonable terms.

The subscribed capital stock of the Bank now amounts to $9,050,500,000. The Articles of Agreement stipulate that 2% of each member's subscription be paid in gold or U. S. dollars, 18% in that country's currency, and that 80% be held by the respective country, subject to call by the Bank only to meet its obligations created by borrowings or guaranteeing loans. The Bank is authorized to use the funds paid in under the 2% requirement in its lending operations. To use all or any part of the 18% currency subscription of a member, the Bank must obtain the member's consent. The United States has subscribed to a larger portion of the Bank's capital stock than any other nation. Its share totals $3,175,000,000, of which it has paid in 20%, or $635,000,000.

The Bank's other major source of funds for loans is derived from the sale of its own bonds in the capital markets of the world. By Oct. 1, 1955, the Bank's total of outstanding bonds amounted to $849,000,000. This included 9 U. S. dollar bond issues totaling $705,000,000; 3 Canadian dollar bond issues totaling $36,363,637; 2 pound sterling issues totaling $28,000,000; 2 Netherlands guilder issues totaling $21,052,632; and 6 Swiss franc issues totaling $59,336,824.

The Bank's funds for loans are also increased through the participation by private investors in Bank loans and through the sale of securities from the Bank's loan portfolio. Funds from this source amounted to $213,800,000 by the end of Oct. 1955.

LOANS OF THE BANK

By October 1, 1955, the Bank had made 136 loans in 40 countries, totaling $2,435,658,464. Where the government itself was not the borrower, the government guaranteed the loan. Disbursements on loans aggregated about $1,770,000,000.

A summary of the Bank's lending, showing gross totals lent by country, is as follows:

Algeria: $10,000,000 for electric power development.

Australia: $258,000,000 for projects including agriculture, electric power, transport, industry, coal mining, iron and steel.

Austria: $22,000,000 for electric power.

Belgium: $66,000,000 for steel, electric power and the Congo.

Belgian Congo: $40,000,000 for a 10-year program in transport and other basic services.

Brazil: $194,090,000 for electric power, telephone equipment, railroads and highways.

British East Africa: $24,000,000 for railway, harbour and highway projects.

Ceylon: $19,110,000 for electric power.

Chile: $37,300,000 for electric power, agriculture, and construction of paper and pulp mills.

Colombia: $94,780,000 for railways, highways, agriculture and electric power.

Denmark: $40,000,000 for reconstruction.

Ecuador: $8,500,000 for highways.

El Salvador: $23,645,000 for electric power and highways.

Ethiopia: $8,500,000 for highways, telecommunications, agriculture and industries.

Finland: $50,279,464 for the wood-product industries, electric power and agriculture.

France: $250,000,000 for reconstruction.

French West Africa: $7,500,000 for railways.

Guatemala: $18,200,000 for highway construction and maintenance.

Iceland: $5,914,000 for electric power, agriculture and a radio transmitter building.

India: $139,700,000 for railways, agriculture, electric power and iron and steel production.

Iraq: $12,800,000 for flood control.

Italy: $80,000,000 for projects in South.

Japan: $40,200,000 for electric power.

Lebanon: $27,000,000 for electric power and irrigation.

Luxembourg: $12,000,000 for railways and steel mill.

Mexico: $160,800,000 for power, railways and industry.

Netherlands: $229,000,000 for reconstruction, ships, aircraft and industry.

Nicaragua: $18,200,000 for highways, agriculture and power.

Northern Rhodesia: $14,000,000 for railway expansion.

Norway: $50,000,000 for general economic development.

Pakistan: $77,250,000 for railways, agriculture and natural gas pipeline.

Panama: $7,390,000 for highways and agriculture.

Paraguay: $5,000,000 for agriculture.

Peru: $36,000,000 for highways, agriculture, ports and irrigation.

Southern Rhodesia: $28,000,000 for electric power.

Thailand: $37,400,000 for railways, irrigation and ports.

Turkey: $63,400,000 for grain-storage, power, irrigation, flood control, port improvements and industries.

Union of South Africa: $110,000,000 for transportation and power.

Uruguay: $38,500,000 for power and telephone.

Yugoslavia: $60,700,000 for timber production, power, mining, industry, forestry and transportation.

Net earnings for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1955 were $24,679,487, which amount was added to a supplemental reserve. The Bank's special reserve increased by $13,306,897, bringing total reserves to $183,758,142.

U. S. Aid to Foreign Countries in Fiscal Year 1955

Source: Office of Business Economics, U. S. Department of Commerce

For security reasons data by country do not include the military aid furnished principally under the mutual security program. Data shown include credits which have been extended to private entities in the country specified; the net credits shown for Canada, for example, represent credits extended to private entities in Canada.

Grants are largely outright gifts for which no payment is expected, or which at most involve an obligation on the part of the receiver to extend aid to the United States or other countries to achieve a common objective.

Credits are loans or other agreements which give rise to specific obligations to repay, over a period of years, usually with interest.

The International Monetary Fund

IMF—International Monetary Fund—Ivar Rooth,

Managing Director and Ch. of Executive Board.

The International Monetary Fund was established in terms of Articles of Agreement adopted by 44 nations at the Bretton Woods Conference (July 1944). The Articles of Agreement came into force (Dec. 27, 1945) and at the time of the first meeting of the Executive Directors (May 6, 1946) 38 countries had become members. Twenty countries joined later.

The main purposes of the Fund, as set out in the Articles of Agreement, are: (1) to promote international monetary cooperation through a permanent institution which provides machinery for consultation and collaboration on international monetary problems, and, more specifically, (2) to promote exchange stability and avoid competitive exchange depreciation, (3) to assist in the establishment of a multilateral system of payments in respect of current transactions, which means the eventual elimination of restrictions on the making of payments and transfers for current international transactions and the avoidance of discriminatory currency arrangements or multiple currency practices, and (4) to permit members, under appropriate conditions, to draw upon the resources of the Fund with a view to shortening the duration and lessening the degree of any disequilibrium which may from time to time arise in their balances of payments.

The Fund obtains its resources from the payment by members of quotas, the size of which was determined by the original members agreed at Bretton Woods. Each member pays in gold either 25% of its quota or 10% of its net official holdings of gold and U. S. dollars, whichever is the smaller, and the remainder in the member's own currency. The aggregate of members' quotas as of Oct. 31, 1955 was equivalent to $8,738,000,000. The total subscriptions paid on that date amounted to the equivalent of $8,045,000,000 of which $1,747,190,000 was held by the Fund in gold.

Members are under an obligation, once the foreign exchange values of their currencies have been agreed with the Fund, to make no change in their exchange rates without consultation with the Fund. The Fund, however, is not entitled to object if the proposed change does not exceed 10% of the original par value. Agreed par values were announced (Dec. 18, 1946) for 32 members, to which 12 others have been added. From the commencement of operations on March 1, 1947, through Oct. 31, 1955, exchange transactions of the Fund amounted to the equivalent of U. S. $1,207,700,000. On that date repurchases amounted to $649,700,000 in gold and U. S. dollars.

The Fund holds annual consultations with each individual member that retains foreign exchange restrictions and discrimination. It maintains an extensive program of technical assistance in foreign exchange problems through staff missions to many parts of the world, and provides studies, reports and other publications on international trade and payments. The Fund also conducts a training program for staff members of central banks and ministries of finance.

Of the sixteen Executive Directors of the Fund, five represent the members with the largest quotas: United States, United Kingdom, China, France and India. The voting power of the Executive Directors is approximately proportional to the quotas of the member or members whom they represent. The United States director is entitled to cast 27% of the total vote.

UNITED NATIONS

AS OF JANUARY 1, 1956

The foundations of the United Nations were laid at the Dumbarton Oaks Conference in Washington (1) from Aug. 21 to Sept. 28, 1944, between the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom and the United States; and (2) from Sept. 29 to Oct. 7, 1944, between China, the United Kingdom and the United States. The proposals for establishment of an organization of nations for the maintenance of world peace led to the calling of the United Nations Conference on International Organization at San Francisco where, April 25 to June 26, 1945, the charter of the United Nations was drawn up. It was signed June 26 by 50 nations. Poland, one of the original 51 members, signed Oct. 15, 1945. Four additional nations were admitted to membership in 1946, two in 1947, one in 1948, one in 1949, and one in 1950, bringing the total membership to 60.

The charter pledges signatories to maintain international peace and security, and to co-operate in establishing political, economic and social conditions favorable to these objectives. It precludes the United Nations from intervening in the internal affairs of any nation without prejudice, however, to the application of enforcement measures with respect to threats to the peace, breaches of the peace, and acts of aggression.

The charter came into effect Oct. 24, 1945, when the requisite ratifications by the 5 permanent members of the Security Council (China, France, the USSR, the United Kingdom and the United States) and a majority of other signatories was reached by the USSR depositing the instrument of ratification. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes then signed the protocol formally proclaiming that the charter had come into force.

The seat of the United Nations is in New York, N. Y.

OFFICERS AND COMMITTEES (Tenth Regular Session)

President—José Maza (Chile).

Vice-President—China, Ethiopia, France, Luxembourg, USSR, United Kingdom, United States.

(A country and not a person is named in the list of vice-presidents, as the election is made in the name of a State. The vice-presidents are normally the heads of delegations.)

Committee Chairmen—First (Political and Security, including the Regulation of Armaments) Committee—Sir Leslie Munro (New Zealand); Ad Hoc Political Committee—Prince Wan Waithayakon (Thailand); Second (Economic and Financial) Committee—Ernest G. Chauvet (Haiti); Third (Social, Humanitarian and Cultural) Committee—Omar Loutfi (Egypt); Fourth (Trusteeship, including non-self-governing territories) Committee—Luciano Joubland-Rivas (Mexico); Fifth (Administrative and Budgetary) Committee—Hans Engen (Norway); Sixth (Legal) Committee—Manfred Lachs (Poland).

The General Assembly is composed of all the members. Each nation may send 5 representatives and 5 alternates to each session of the Assembly, but is entitled to only one vote.

Any matter within the scope of the charter may be brought before the General Assembly for debate and the Assembly may make recommendations on any such matter except issues on the agenda of the Security Council. However, the General Assembly in November 1950 decided that if the Security Council, because of lack of unanimity of the permanent members, fails to exercise its primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security, in any case where there appears to be a threat to the peace, breach of the peace or act of aggression, the Assembly should consider the matter immediately with a view to making appropriate recommendations to members for collective measures, including, in the case of a breach of the peace or act of aggression, the use of armed forces when necessary, to maintain or restore international peace and security. On important questions a two-thirds majority of members present and voting is required; on other questions a simple majority is sufficient.

A general or steering committee co-ordinates the proceedings of the Assembly and is composed of 15 members—the president of the Assembly, the seven vice-presidents, the chairmen of the six Main Committee, and the chairman of the Ad Hoc Political Committee.

The Assembly held the first part of its first session in London Jan. 10 to Feb. 14, 1946; the second part in New York Oct. 23 to Dec. 15, 1946. Its first special session was held in New York April 28 to May 15, 1947, to consider the Palestine question. The second regular session was held in New York Sept. 16 to Nov. 29, 1947, and a second special session on the Palestine question in New York April 16 to May 14, 1948. The first part of the third session was held in Paris Sept. 21 to Dec. 12, 1948, and the second part in New York April 5 to May 18, 1949. The fourth session was held in New York Sept. 20 to Dec. 10, 1949. The fifth regular session was held in New York Sept. 19, 1950 to Nov. 5, 1951. The sixth regular session met in Paris Nov. 6, 1951, to February 5, 1952. The seventh regular session of the Assembly, the first to be held at Headquarters, opened on October 14, 1952, and closed on August 28, 1953. The eighth regular session was held in New York from Sept. 15 to December 9, 1953. The ninth regular session was held in New York from Sept. 21 to Dec. 17, 1954.

SECURITY COUNCIL

The Security Council consists of eleven members, five with permanent seats. The remaining six are elected for 2-year terms by the General Assembly; they are not eligible for immediate re-election.

Membership as of Jan. 1, 1955

Permanent members of the Council: China, France, the USSR, the United Kingdom and the United States.

Non-permanent members: Until 1957: Belgium, Iran and Peru. Until 1958: Australia, Cuba and one other to be named in 1956.

The Security Council has the primary responsibility for maintaining international peace and security and members agree to carry out its decisions. The Council may investigate any dispute that might threaten international peace and security.

Decisions on procedural questions are made by an affirmative vote of seven members. On all other matters the affirmative vote of seven members must include the concurring votes of all permanent members; it is this clause which gives rise to the so-called "veto." A party to a dispute must refrain from voting. The presidency of the Council is held in rotation for one month by each member in the English alphabetical order.

Reporting to the Security Council are: the Military Staff Committee, which advises the Council on military requirements for maintaining peace; and the Disarmament Commission which is concerned with the regulation and reduction of armaments and the control of atomic energy.

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL

The Economic and Social Council consists of eighteen members elected by the General Assembly for 3-year terms of office. Retiring members are eligible for immediate re-election. The Council is responsible under the General Assembly for carrying out the functions of the United Nations with regard to international economic, social, cultural, educational, health and related matters.

Membership of the Council as of January 1, 1955: Until 1957—Czechoslovakia, Ecuador, Norway, Pakistan, USSR and United Kingdom.

Until 1958—Argentina, China, Dominican Republic, Egypt, France, Netherlands.

Until 1959—Brazil, Canada, Greece, Indonesia, the United States and Yugoslavia.

The President of the Economic and Social Council for 1955 was Sir Douglas Copland (Australia). The First Vice-President was Santiago Pérez-Pérez (Venezuela) and the Second Vice-President, Joža Brilej (Yugoslavia).

The Economic and Social Council had the following Commissions in 1955:

Functional Commissions

Transport and Communications; Statistical; Population; Social; Narcotic Drug; Human Rights; Status of Women; International Commodity Trade.

Regional Economic Commissions

Economic Commission for Europe.
Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East.
Economic Commission for Latin America.

The 10 formally constituted specialized agencies as of January 1, 1956, are: the International Labour Organization (ILO); the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO); the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO); the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO); the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (Bank); the International Monetary Fund (Fund); the World Health Organization (WHO); the Universal Postal Union (UPU); the International Telecommunication Union (ITU); and the World Meteorological Organization (WMO).

The purposes of ILO are to contribute to the establishment of a lasting peace by promoting social justice; to improve, through international action, labor conditions and living standards; and to promote economic and social stability.

The purposes of FAO are to raise nutrition levels and living standards; to secure improvements in production and distribution of food and agricultural products; to better conditions of country dwellers; and by these means to contribute to expanding world economy.

The purposes of UNESCO are to promote collaboration among nations through education, science and culture in order to further justice, rule of law and human rights and freedoms without distinction of race, sex, language or religion.

The purpose of ICAO is to study problems of international civil aviation and the establishment of international standards and regulations for civil aviation.

The purposes of the Bank are to assist in the reconstruction and development of territories of members by facilitating the investment of capital for productive purposes; to promote private foreign investment and, when private capital is not readily available on reasonable terms, to supplement private investment by providing loans for productive purposes out of its own capital, funds raised by it, and its other resources; and to promote the balanced growth of international trade and the maintenance of equilibrium in balances of payments by encouraging international investment for the development of the productive resources of the International Bank's members.

The purposes of the Fund are to promote international monetary co-operation and the expansion of international trade; to promote exchange stability, maintain orderly exchange arrangements among members, and to avoid competitive exchange depreciations; to assist in the establishment of a multilateral system of payments in respect of current transactions between members and in the elimination of foreign exchange restrictions which hamper world trade.

The purpose of WHO is to aid the attainment by all peoples of the highest possible level of health.

The purposes of UPU are to assure the organization and perfection of the various postal services and to promote the development of international collaboration. To this end, member countries are united in a single postal territory for reciprocal exchange of mail.

The purposes of ITU are to set up international regulations for radio, telegraph and telephone services in order to avoid confusion and to study means to decrease excessive costs of international services.

The purposes of WMO are to co-ordinate, standardize and improve world meteorological activities.

Plans have been made for the establishment of an International Trade Organization (ITO) and an Inter-Governmental Maritime Consultative Organization (IMCO).

The purpose of ITO is to promote the expansion of world trade and the removal of trade barriers. The purposes of IMCO are to promote co-operation among governments in technical problems of international shipping and to encourage the removal of discriminatory action by governments and of unfair restrictive practices by shipping concerns.

TRUST AND NON-SELF-GOVERNING TERRITORIES

The work of the United Nations in the field of non-self-governing territories falls into two categories: (1) the duties and functions of the Trusteeship Council with respect to those territories placed under the International Trusteeship System; and (2) the responsibility of the Organization in connection with information on non-self-governing territories other than Trust territories.

TRUSTEESHIP COUNCIL

The administration of Trust territories is subject to the supervision of the United Nations. Administering authorities are required to render an account of their stewardship to the Trusteeship Council. The Council may entertain petitions from private persons or organizations regarding conditions in the Trust territories and may dispatch regular or special visiting missions to these regions for studying conditions at first hand.

The Trusteeship Council as of Jan. 1, 1956, has 12 members, 6 of them administering authorities. These 6 are: Australia, Belgium, France, New Zealand, the United Kingdom and the United States. China and the USSR hold membership by virtue of being permanent members of the Security Council not administering Trust territories. The 4 other members are elected for 3-year terms by the General Assembly in order to ensure that membership in the Council is equally divided between members which administer Trust territories and members which do not. These are Haiti and India until 1957 and Guatemala and Syria until 1959.

President of the Council (15th session)—Urquía, El Salvador.

Vice-President (15th session)—R. Barges, France.

Vice-President (16th session)—Max H. Dorsinville (Haiti).

Non-Self-Governing Territories. As regards non-self-governing territories not placed under trusteeship, those members of the United Nations responsible for the administration of such territories have pledged themselves in the charter to recognize the principle that the interests of the inhabitants are paramount and to promote their welfare. The administering powers are bound by the charter to transmit to the Secretary-General technical information concerning economic, social and educational conditions in the territories. This information is summarized, analyzed and classified by the Secretariat, and the analyses and summaries are considered by a special committee established by the General Assembly.

INTERNATIONAL COURT OF JUSTICE

The International Court of Justice is the principal judicial organ of the United Nations. All members are ipso facto parties to the statute of the Court. Other states may become parties to the Court's statute on conditions determined in each case by the General Assembly on the recommendation of the Security Council.

The jurisdiction of the Court comprises cases which the parties submit to it and matters especially provided for in the charter or in treaties. The Court gives advisory opinions and renders judgments. Its decisions, which are final, are only binding between the parties concerned and in respect of a particular dispute. If any party to a case fails to heed a judgment of the Court, the other party may have recourse to the Security Council, which may decide what is to be done.

The Court consists of 15 judges elected for 9-year terms by the General Assembly and the Security Council voting independently. No two of the judges may be nationals of the same state. Retiring judges are eligible for re-election. The Court remains permanently in session, except during the judicial vacations. A quorum of nine judges suffices to constitute the Court. All questions are decided by majority. In the event of a tie, the President of the Court or the judge who acts in his place casts the deciding vote.

President—Green H. Hackworth, United States.
Vice-President—Abdel Hamid Badawi, Egypt.

SECRETARIAT

The Secretariat is composed of a Secretary-General appointed by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council and such staff as the organization may require.

The Secretary-General makes an annual report and any supplementary reports which may be necessary to the General Assembly on the work of the United Nations. He may bring to the attention of the Security Council any matter that threatens the maintenance of international peace and security.

Secretary-General—Dag Hammarskjöld, Sweden.

An international staff assists the Secretary-General. Its members are recruited on as wide a geographical basis as possible. In performing their duties, the Secretary-General and his staff must not receive instructions from any authority outside the United Nations. Members of the United Nations have agreed not to exert any influence on them.

The Secretariat is divided into six offices, five departments and one administration. The principal officers of the Secretariat are:

Executive Assistant to the Secretary-General—Andrew W. Cordier (United States).

Legal Counsel—Constantin A. Stavropoulos (Greece).

Controller—Bruce R. Turner (New Zealand).

Director of Personnel—J. A. C. Robertson (United Kingdom).

Under-Secretaries without Department—Ralph J. Bunche (United States); Ilya S. Tchernychev (USSR).

Under-Secretary: Political and Security Council Affairs—Dragoslav Protitch (Yugoslavia).

Under-Secretary: Economic and Social Affairs—Philippe de Seynes (France); Deputy Under-Secretary, Martin Hill (United Kingdom).

Under-Secretary: Trusteeship and Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories—Benjamin Cohen (Chile).

Under-Secretary: Public Information—Ahmed S. Kokhari (Pakistan).

Under-Secretary: Conference Services—Victor Hoo (China).

Director of General Services—David B. Vaughan (United States).

Director-General: Technical Assistance Administration—Hugh L. Keenleyside (Canada); Deputy Director-General, Gustavo Martínez-Cabanas (Mexico).

UNITED NATIONS BUDGET

Secretary-General Hammarskjöld, in June 1955, submitted to the General Assembly budget estimates for 1956, the eleventh financial year of the United Nations. Total expenditures were estimated at $46,278,000 and income at $6,873,600, leaving a net expenditure of $39,404,400 (gross) for 1955. The actual expenditure for 1954 amounted to $40,131,200.

PERMANENT HEADQUARTERS

The construction of the permanent headquarters on the east side of Manhattan in New York City was completed during 1952, with the opening of the new General Assembly building, which comprises the Assembly Hall, conference and committee rooms, radio studios, recording facilities and a master control room. The General Assembly, Secretariat and Conference buildings are interconnected to form one co-ordinated unit. The Secretariat Building accommodates the staff of the United Nations, together with liaison officers for specialized agencies, and offices for the Press and other public information organizations. The Conference Building houses the Security Council Chamber, the Economic and Social Council Chamber and the Trusteeship Council Chamber, as well as three large conference rooms for the Main Committees of the General Assembly, together with appropriate offices, lounges and corridors. To build the U. N. capital the U. S. Government advanced an interest-free loan of $65,000,000 repayable in annual installments until 1982. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., contributed $8,500,000 for land; other parcels were given by the City of New York, which also agreed to pay for reconstructing streets, tunnels, easement and water frontage, at original estimates of $23,000,000, now increased to $26,500,000 because of extra costs.

A further $2 million was appropriated by the General Assembly in 1952 and 1953 for the construction of the Headquarters buildings. In addition $102,566 was received as donated funds. By July 1955 the expenditures and unliquidated obligations totaled $68,594,527. Of the $65,000,000 loan, the United Nations thus far repaid $7 million to the United States. The last installment of $1 million is due in July 1982.

Postal History

Postal History

Air-mail service was established May 15, 1918, between Washington, Philadelphia, and New York. The rate was fixed at 24 cents per ounce or fraction thereof, which included special-delivery service. The present Air-Mail rate is six cents. Forwarding and delivery of Air-Mail is expedited, but no Special Deliveries are made unless a Special Delivery Stamp is attached.

Special Delivery stamps first were issued on October 1, 1885. As originally issued, the Special Delivery Stamp denomination was 10 cents. Present issues are of 20-cent denomination.

Certified Mail Stamps first were issued on June 6, 1955. By using Certified Mail, individuals or business concerns may obtain proof of mailing and delivery. The cost is 15 cents, plus postage. With this new service available, the Registry Service and the extensive safety precautions it requires now are restricted to safeguarding articles of value, as originally intended.

Postage stamps have been issued to honor all deceased Presidents of the United States from Washington to Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Prior to the issuance of the first stamps, letters accepted by postmasters for dispatch were marked "Paid" by means of pen and ink or hand stamps of various designs. Such letters usually contained the town post mark and date of mailing.

United States adhesive postage stamps were first issued under Act of March 3, 1847, and placed on sale at New York, N. Y., July 1, 1847. The series consisted of two stamps, one for 5 cents

Special Handling

Fourth-class parcels will be handled and delivered as expeditiously as practicable (but not special delivery) upon payment, in addition to the regular postage: Up to 2 lbs., 15c; over 2 lbs. and up to 10 lbs., 20c; over 10 lbs., 25c. Such parcels must be endorsed "Special Handling."

Special Delivery

Prepayment of a special delivery fee entitles all classes of mail, inc. air mail and parcels, to the most expeditious handling and transportation practicable, incl. special delivery at office of address: 1st Class mail up to 2 lbs., 20c; over 2 lbs. and up to 10 lbs., 35c; over 10 lbs., 50c. Second, 3rd and 4th Class mail up to 2 lbs., 35c; over 2 lbs. and up to 10 lbs., 45c; over 10 lbs., 60c. Particularly recommended for perishable matter and air parcels likely to reach office of address too late for regular delivery.

Registered, Insured, C.O.D. and Certified Mail

Registry is applicable to 1st, 2nd and 3rd Class matter, and sealed 4th Class matter on which postage at the 1st Class rate has been paid. The mailer is required to declare the value of mail presented for registration and to pay any required surcharge if the declared value exceeds the maximum indemnity prescribed for the registry fee paid by $1000 or more.

Insurance is applicable to 3rd and 4th Class matter. Matter for sale addressed to prospective purchasers who have not ordered it or authorized its sending will not be insured.

C. O. D.: Unregistered—is applicable to 3rd and 4th Class matter and sealed domestic mail of any class bearing postage at the 1st class rate. Such mail must be based on bona fide orders or be in conformity with agreements between senders and addressees. Registered—For details consult postmaster.

Postal Union articles only: Post cards and air letters, 20c each; letters and letter packages, 20c up to 2 lbs.; over 2 lbs. up to 10 lbs., 35c; over 10 lbs., 50c; other articles, up to 2 lbs., 35c; over 2 lbs. up to 10 lbs., 45c; over 10 lbs., 60c. Not available to all countries—consult post office.

Prepayment of replies from other countries. A mailer who wishes to prepay a reply by letter from another country may do so by sending his correspondent one or more international reply coupons, which may be purchased at United States post offices. One coupon should be accepted in any country in exchange for a stamp or stamps of that country sufficient to prepay a surface letter of the first unit of weight (usually either 1 ounce or 20 grams) to the United States. A sufficient number of the coupons should be accepted for the prepayment of a reply by airmail letter not exceeding 20 grams (about 3/4 ounce) in weight. Inquire at post office as to the number necessary to prepay an air mail letter of the desired weight from any particular country. Some countries require that international reply coupons and the letters they are to prepay be presented at the post office.

PARCEL POST

For rates see Table

General dimensional limits.—Greatest length, 3 1/2 feet; greatest length and girth combined, 6 feet.

Prohibited articles. Before sending goods abroad the mailer should satisfy himself that they will not be confiscated or returned because their importation is prohibited or restricted by the country of address. Information concerning prohibited or restricted articles at any U. S. post office.

Packing. Parcels for transmission overseas should be even more carefully packed than those intended for delivery within the continental United States. Containers should be used which will be strong enough to protect the contents from the weight of other mails, from pressure and friction, climatic changes, and repeated handlings. Contents should be solidly packed in the containers, with cushioning material. When sending liquids or easily liquefiable substances surround the inner container with absorbent material.

Sealing. Registered or insured parcels must be sealed. To some countries the sealing of ordinary (unregistered and uninsured) parcels is optional, and to others compulsory. Consult post office.

Customs declarations, and other forms. A parcel post sticker, and at least one customs declaration, are required for each parcel mailed to another country. Information at post offices.

TEST OF NEW MAIL RATE FOR LETTERS INSIDE PACKAGES

By special order of the Postmaster General a new combination mail rate went into effect Nov. 28, on a 60-day trial basis. It permitted the sender of a parcel post package or of a magazine taking second-class rates to insert a written message inside upon payment of an additional 3c postage. Formerly first-class mail rates were demanded whenever a written message was placed inside either package. The new rate asked the sender to state on the cover if a letter was inside and to pay 3c, in addition to the regular rate. If successful the test might be made permanent and thus obviate a letter saying "we are sending under separate cover," which has been a business practice for many years.

Internal revenue and customs receipts are stated on the basis of reports of collections received from collecting officers. Other receipts are reported on the basis of confirmed deposits in Treasury accounts.

²Distribution between income taxes and employment taxes made in accordance with provisions of sec. 109 (a) (2) of the Social Security Act Amendments of 1950, for appropriation to the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund. Appropriation for the fiscal year has been reduced by $350,230,985 representing overappropriation to the trust fund of $90,000,600 in fiscal year 1952, $210,000,000 in fiscal year 1953 and $50,230,985 in fiscal year 1955.

³Amounts equal to taxes on carriers and their employees (minus refunds) are appropriated to the Railroad Retirement account.

⁵Includes adjustment effected during June 1955 between accounts of the military departments and years 1950-1955 inclusive.

⁶Includes $92,820,304 transferred to trust account entitled Secondary Market Operations, Federal National Mortgage Association.

⁷Effective with the fiscal year ended June 30, 1955, the basis for accounting and reporting interest on the public debt has been changed from a due and payable basis to an accrual basis.

(P) Preliminary.

*Revised to exclude from both net budget receipts and budget expenditures the appropriations of receipts to the Railroad Retirement Account.

(1) Average for period March 4, 1789, to Dec. 1, 1800.

(2) Years ended Dec. 31, 1801, to 1842; average for 1841-1850 is for the period Jan. 1, 1841, to June 30, 1850.

(3) Receipts from 1937 on have deducted appropriations to Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund.

(4) Expenditures for years 1932 through 1946 have been revised to include Government Corporations (wholly owned), etc. (net).

(5) Effective January 3, 1949, amounts refunded by the Government, principally for the overpayment of taxes, are being reported as deductions from total receipts rather than as expenditures. Also, effective July 1, 1948, payments to the Treasury, principally by wholly owned Government corporations for retirement of capital stock and for disposition of earnings, are excluded in reporting both budget receipts and expenditures. Neither of these changes affects the size of the budget surplus or deficit. Beginning 1931 figures in each case have been adjusted accordingly for comparative purposes.

(6) Figures for 1918 through 1946 are revised to exclude statutory debt retirements (sinking fund, etc.).

(7) Excludes $3 billions transferred to Foreign Economics Cooperation Trust Fund.

(8) Includes $3 billions representing expenditures made from the FEC Trust Fund.

Appropriations in this table are by sessions of Congress. Fiscal year noted is principal fiscal year for which appropriations are made during a session.

Each session also makes appropriations for prior years to the one stated.

For example, appropriations shown for fiscal year 1954 are those for the first session of the eighty-third Congress and include $73,786,349,999.95 for the fiscal year 1954 and the remainder for 1953 and prior years.

¹National income originating in each industry is the sum of factor costs incurred by the industry in production. Hence, it is the net value added to production by the industry, measured at factor costs. In the business sector of the economy, except government enterprises, it is equal to the excess of the market value of the industry's product and the subsidies it receives over the sum of the following costs: purchases of goods and services from other enterprises, indirect business tax and nontax liability, business transfer payments, and capital consumption charges. In the other sectors of the economy (government, personal, and rest-of-the-world) and also in government enterprises, this value added in production (as measured in the present series) can be described only as factor costs incurred. "National income originating" is a more net concept of value-added than that used by the Bureau of the Census in compiling the Census of Manufacturers. "Value added by manufacture" was obtained in the 1947 Census of Manufactures by deducting from the value of products only the cost of materials, supplies, containers, fuel, purchased electric energy and contract work.

*For certain manufacturing industries, the 1944-47 values shown are not comparable with those given for 1948 and subsequent years. The discontinuities stem from changes in the industrial classification system on which the tabulations of basic data are prepared. Of the industry series principally involved here, five have been terminated in 1947, the others are indicated by footnotes.

*See note 2. Estimates of 1948 national income comparable to those shown for 1947 in the specified industries are as follows: Lumber and furniture products, $3,954 million; Chemicals and allied products, $4,427 million; Products of petroleum and coal, $3,290 million; Metals, metal products and miscellaneous, $12,546 million; Machinery, except electrical, $7,011 million; and Electrical machinery, $3,693 million.

U. S. Internal Revenue Collections by Regions, 1954

Source: Bureau of Internal Revenue. (For Fiscal Year ending June 30, 1954)

Tax receipts are credited by the States in which the collections are made. Receipts in the various States do not indicate the tax burden of the respective States, since the taxes may be eventually borne by persons in other States.

*The figures concerning internal revenue receipts differ from such figures carried in other Treasury statements showing the financial condition of the Government, because the former represent collections by internal revenue officers throughout the country, including deposits by postmasters of amounts received from sale of documentary stamps and deposits of internal revenue collected on liquors through customs officers, while the latter represent the deposits of those collections in the Treasury or depositories during the fiscal year concerned, the differences being due to the fact that some of the collections of the latter part of the fiscal year cannot be deposited or are not reported to the Treasury as deposited until after June 30, thus carrying them into the following fiscal year as recorded in the statements showing the condition of the Treasury.

There is maintained in the U. S. Treasury— (i) as a reserve for United States notes and Treasury notes of 1890—$156,039,431 in gold bullion; (ii) as security for Treasury notes of 1890—an equal dollar amount in standard silver dollars (these notes are being canceled and retired on receipt); (iii) as security for outstanding silver certificates—silver in bullion and standard silver dollars of a monetary value equal to the face amount of such silver certificates; and (iv) as security for gold certificates—gold bullion of a value at the legal standard equal to the face amount of such gold certificates. Federal Reserve notes are obligations of the United States and a first lien on all the assets of the issuing Federal Reserve Bank. Federal Reserve notes are secured by the deposit by the Federal Reserve Bank concerned, with its Federal Reserve Agent, of a like amount of collateral consisting of such discounted or purchased paper as is eligible under the terms of the Federal Reserve Act, or gold certificates, or direct obligations of the United States. Each Federal Reserve Bank must maintain reserves in gold certificates of not less than 25 percent against its Federal Reserve notes in actual circulation. Gold certificates deposited with Federal Reserve Agents as collateral, and those deposited with the Treasurer of the United States as a redemption fund, are counted as part of the required reserve. "Gold certificates" as herein used includes credits with the Treasurer of the United States payable in gold certificates. Federal Reserve bank notes and National bank notes are in process of retirement.

A business failure, as defined for this record, occurs when a commercial or industrial enterprise is involved in a court proceeding or a voluntary action which is likely to end in loss to creditors. Specifically, the Dun & Bradstreet record of failures includes discontinuances following assignment, voluntary or involuntary petition in bankruptcy, attachment, execution, foreclosure, etc.; voluntary withdrawals from business with known loss to creditors; also enterprises involved in court action, such as receivership, and since June, 1943, reorganization, or arrangement, which ment, voluntary or involuntary petition in as businesses making voluntary compromises with creditors out of court. Comparison of this series with the bankruptcy reports of the Attorney General of the United States is not possible. The latter give complete coverage of all types of cases, including farmers, employees, professional men and others not in business, all of which are excluded from the Dun & Bradstreet statistics. Revisions were made in the classification of failures in 1933 and 1939. In these years, two sets of figures are given—the original denoted as "A" for comparison with previous years and the revised denoted as "B" for comparison with subsequent years.

Bureau of the Mint

Source: Bureau of the Mint

The first United States Mint was established in Philadelphia, Pa., then the nation's capital, by the Act of April 2, 1792 which provided for gold, silver and copper coinage. Originally, supervisor of the Mint was a function of the Secretary of State, but it became (1799) an independent agency reporting directly to the President. When the Coinage Act of 1873 was passed, all mint and assay office activities were placed under a newly organized Bureau of the Mint in the Department of the Treasury.

The Bureau of the Mint manufactures all domestic coins, acquires gold and silver bullion, safeguards the Government's holdings of monetary metals, administers the issuance of Treasury licenses for acquisition, possession and use of gold for business purposes. Other activities include the refining of gold and silver, coinage for foreign governments, manufacture of medals for the armed services, manufacture of coinage dies and platinum assay utensils, and special assays of bullion and ores. Coinage production of the three United States Mints for the calendar year 1954 is shown in the statement below.

²After adjusting the gross dollar volume for duplication arising from transactions between cooperatives the net business approximately represents the value at the level at which the farmer does business with his cooperatives. It does not include wholesale business of farm supply cooperatives with other cooperatives or terminal market sales performed for local associations.

³Membership and business volume of this association are allocated to the States in which the members reside and the business originates.

Average Consumers' Price Indexes

REVISED INDEXES, 1947-49=100

Source: Bureau of Labor Statistics, United States Department of Labor

A major revision was incorporated in the Consumer Price Index beginning January 1953. The revised index, based on 46 cities, has been linked to the previously published "interim adjusted" indexes for 34 cities and rebased on 1947-49=100 to form a continuous series. For the convenience of users, the "All-items" indexes are also shown on the 1935-39=100 base on this page.

The revised Consumer Price Index measures the average change in price of goods and services purchased by urban wage-earner and salaried-clerical worker families. Data for 46 large, medium, and small cities are combined for the United States average.

For Cost of Living data on 1935-39=100 base for years 1915 to 1952 consult pages 760 and 761 in the 1953 edition of the WORLD ALMANAC.

AVIATION

Report of Activities of Scheduled Airlines

Source: Air Transport Association of America, Washington, D.C.

COMMERCIAL AIR TRANSPORTATION AND NATIONAL DEFENSE

The scheduled airlines emerged from World War II as an essential part of national defense. Later, Korea showed the usefulness of civilian airlift to national security and the relation of the airline fleet to the military fleet. The Dept. of Defense is fully aware today of the value of airline passenger and cargo capacity in a crisis. Mobilization planning includes immediate use of the airline fleet to supplement military transportation and continued support of the regular commerce of the United States.

For military transportation, the scheduled airlines have formed a Civil Reserve Air Fleet of 290 of their 4-engine aircraft, capable of non-stop over-ocean flights, to support military airlift in an emergency. These planes, representing one-half of the airlines' 4-engine fleet, have been modified to make them adaptable for military use, with airline crews on 48 hours' notice. The combined annual airlift of this fleet is 2.1 billion ton-miles.

AIR FLEET IN RESERVE

The Civil Reserve Air Fleet represents some 400,000,000 dollars worth of aircraft, not to mention the costs of trained crews, maintenance, hangars, ground equipment spare parts and ground personnel. In fact, to maintain such a fleet in readiness might cost the taxpayer almost as much as the value of the fleet each year. To put it another way, in fiscal year 1954, subsidy payments to domestic and international carriers are officially reported as $73,052,000. For this expenditure, the government has in constant readiness 2.1 billion annual ton-miles of total military airlift at an annual expenditure of 3.84c for each available ton-mile. In addition, the government need not train pilots, co-pilots, navigators, radio operators and mechanics to operate the Reserve Fleet. Skilled and experienced airline personnel will accompany each of the aircraft "for the duration."

At the level of peacetime expenditure which currently exists for the Military Air Transport Service, the maintenance of a comparable airlift capability, excluding aircraft and engine depreciation and the "salaries" of flight crews, would cost the taxpayer approximately 30.8c per each annual available ton-mile.

In addition to the Civil Reserve Air Fleet, the scheduled airlines' remaining fleet of approximately 1,100 airplanes, including 2-engine aircraft, would play a role in an emergency. They would provide services essential to the production of supplies and equipment for the Armed Forces. Thus the scheduled airlines would continue to shorten America's first line of defense—the production line.

Although the Civil Reserve Air Fleet is provided by the larger trunk and international carriers, the 14 scheduled local service lines are also an important part of defense. Defense installations call for reliable airline service. Due to decentralization, more and more defense plants are located away from major population centers and must rely upon the local service airlines for fast transportation.

COMMERCE

Larger and faster airplanes and the continued improvement of navigation and traffic control facilities enabled air transportation—domestic, international and territorial—to produce 4,263 billion available ton-miles in 1954, or more than 3 times the 1946 figure and 13½% more than in 1953.

Along with the growth in service, there has been a growth in promotion and competition. Since 1939 the number of scheduled certified airlines has grown from 22 to 59. There also has been a growth in the variety of service.

Domestic revenue passenger miles in 1954 reached a new high of more than 16 billion, nearly triple the 1946 total and 13½% higher than in 1953 (16,230 billion passenger miles is equivalent to a 120-mile trip by every man, woman and child in the United States). Internationally, revenue passenger miles in 1954 came to 3,743 billion, more than 3½ times the 1946 total and an increase of 10.7% over 1953.

The 14 local service airlines, developed to link America's important intermediate cities with one another and with the larger centers, flew 30,000 route miles with 160 airplanes in 1954. They served 440 cities in 42 states and provided the only airline service to 260 of those cities. In the last 7 years their total of revenue ton-miles flown has multiplied more than 5 times.

The airlines engaged in territorial service helped make the U. S. territories part of the economic life of the U. S. Regular territorial air service brings the territories within hours of the 48 states and, in some instances, is the only feasible means of transportation between scattered communities.

For many years Air Transport Association members, in cooperation with the Post Office Department, have been operating helicopter mail service at Los Angeles, Chicago and New York. In December, 1952, the ATA Rotorcraft Committee assumed responsibility for planning future coordination of helicopters with conventional airplane operations.

In 1954, 2 of the 3 companies which operate helicopters exclusively started passenger service to serve metropolitan areas.

Over the years the U. S. scheduled airlines have promoted low-cost air-coach or tourist-class service so that in 1954 they offered the greatest volume of low cost air service in the world.

Revenue passenger miles flown by domestic air-coach services were 32.7% of the total revenue passenger miles. Tourist-class air service accounted for 52.3% of all revenue passenger miles flown by the U. S. scheduled airlines in international service.

Mail

The first scheduled air service in the United States was designed for the sole purpose of speeding the mails. For a long time, payments for carrying mail were the major source of revenue for young airlines.

Today, payments for carrying the mail are only 8.66% of the revenue of the airlines, although the amount of air mail service is greater than ever before. Today, air mail is a greater source of revenue for the Post Office than for airlines. In addition to carrying air mail, the airlines are co-operating in an experiment to see whether first-class mail should not receive truly first-class mail service, by going by air whenever air will speed delivery.

In 1954, volume of air mail service reached an all-time high. Domestically, it registered a 11.82% increase, with 81,386,000 ton-miles in 1954 as compared with 72,784,000 ton-miles in 1953. Internationally, it showed a gain of 44.36%, with 35,323,000 ton-miles in 1954 as against 24,468,000 ton-miles in 1953.

In domestic operations, the scheduled airlines returned an $8,500,000 profit to the Post Office Dept. Since 1952, when subsidy payments were separated from mail payments, air-mail profits to the Post Office have been nearly $22,000,000. Almost 40% of that amount was realized in 1954.

The experiment in moving standard 3-cent mail by air has been conducted on a space-available basis between specific points in the eastern part of the U. S. and on the West Coast. The experiment is now well advanced into its second year.

It is still too early to determine its success, but during its first year senders of letters saved a vast amount of delivery time. Hundreds of millions of letters reached destination an average of 11% hours sooner than if they had moved by surface means. The scheduled airlines cooperating in the program flew 9,600,000 ton-miles of mail. Postage revenues to the Post Office Dept. amounted to $29,500,000. The Department paid the air carriers $1,830,000 for flying this mail and kept $27,670,000, or 94% of the total.

This accelerated mail service is not limited to the larger U. S. cities. Intermediate cities are also taking part in the experiment through the operations of local service airlines in 23 states. The new service in no way infringes upon 6-cent air mail. Space is contracted and air transportation is guaranteed for air mail and it continues to enjoy its traditional priority over other mail, passengers and cargo.

Crash-resistant, flexible gas tanks for airplanes were tested.

A "stratocell" balloon set a new altitude record at 121,000 feet.

A circular platform about as wide as a man was successfully flown.

The world's first multi-jet attack seaplane was introduced to the public.

An experimental F-80C with a magnesium fuselage was flight tested.

An automatic ejection seat was put into use in vertical take-off planes.

A new "windmill parachute" made possible drop of military supplies from high altitudes.

A simulated wind speed of 11,400 miles an hour was maintained for 10 minutes in a wind tunnel.

A ski-wheel landing gear was developed to enable a bomber to land on water, snow, mud and ice.

A "ducted fan" jet engine, quieter and more economical on fuel than conventional jets was tested.

A weather measuring system to tell pilots when to expect to see vital ground reference points was developed.

An experimental wing flap that would permit vertical take-off for conventional looking planes was tested.

A trail of turbulent air was found to follow an airplane, extending for miles and persisting as much as a minute.

The field of noise surrounding a jet bomber in flight was found to be shaped like an apple with the stem pulled out.

A speed record was set for an 18-kilometer (about 11 mi.) course when a Sabre jet fighter was flown at 822 mph.

The periodic wobbling of airplanes during flight called "snaking" was found to be caused by atmospheric turbulence.

Conventional jet fighter planes were launched from a truck platform, making use of the launching equipment of guided missiles.

A record was broken for speed in flight from California to New York when a Thunderstreak flew 2,445.9 miles in 3 hrs., 46 min.

The U. S. Air Force awarded a contract for the development of a vertical rising, man-bearing plane resembling a "flying saucer."

A strato-sailplane, huge two-man glider with pressurized cockpit, was proposed to explore the stratosphere, riding the jet stream.

A new transatlantic record was set when British flyers flew from London to New York and back in a total flying time of 13 hrs., 47 min.

A vertical transparent television tube for an airplane windshield was devised to replace a multitude of dials on the instrument panel.

A closed circuit speed record for a 500-kilometer (about 300 mi.) course was set when a Douglas A4D-1 was flown at 695 miles per hour.

A tiny electronic computer operating on transistors instead of tubes was developed to aid airplane pilots in making split-second decisions.

A new design principle called the area rule was developed and found to give airplane speed gains of 25% in the range above the speed of sound.

A new design principle called boundary layer control was developed; it will enable high speed airplanes to land and take off in shorter distances.

A system was developed for remote control of jet planes with provision for an electronic "brain" to take over control in case radio signals are cut off.

A research rocket was designed to carry 150 pounds of scientific instruments 180 miles into the air during the International Geophysical Year, 1957-58.

A Flying Venetian Blind, an experimental airplane with a bank of slats attached to its wings permitting vertical take-off and landing, was tested successfully.

A convertiplane with a helicopter rotor above the fuselage powered by small jet units at the tip of each blade and a small pusher propeller mounted between the double tail was made public.

A rocket was designed to carry an aluminum ball containing instruments 75 miles into the upper air where it would be dropped; the project was part of plans for the International Geophysical Year.

Through experiments with nylon balls fired at a speed equivalent to 15,000 mph, it was found that the gases around a super-supersonic missile dissociate when the projectile reaches Mach 10, serving to cool the surface of the missile.

INTERNATIONAL AERONAUTICAL RECORDS

Source: The National Aeronautic Association, 1025 Connecticut Ave., Washington, D. C., representative in the United States of the Federation Aéronautique Internationale, world sport governing body for aeronautics. The International Aeronautical Federation was formed (1905) by representatives from Belgium, France, Germany, Great Britain, Spain, Italy, Switzerland and the United States, with headquarters in Paris. Regulations for the control of official records were signed Oct. 14, 1905. World records are defined as maximum performances, regardless of class or type of aircraft used. Records to Nov. 1, 1955.

WORLD AIR RECORDS

Maximum speed over a straightaway course—1,323.312 km.p.h. (822.266 m.p.h.)—Col. H. A. Hanes, USAF, United States, Aug. 20, 1955.

Maximum speed over a closed circuit—1,171.788 km.p.h. (728.114 m.p.h.)—Robert O. Rahn, United States, Oct. 16, 1953.

Distance, Airline—18,081.990 kms. (11,235.6 miles)—Comdr. Thomas D. Davies, USN.; Comdr. Eugene F. Rankin, USN.; Comdr. Walter S. Reid, USN.; Lt. Comdr. Ray A. Tabelling, USN.; United States, Sept. 29-Oct. 1, 1946.

Distance, closed circuit—8,854.3 miles—Lt. Col. O. F. Lassiter and Capt. W. J. Valentine, United States; Tampa, Fla., Aug. 1-3, 1947.

Altitude—22,066 meters (72,394.795 feet)—(Balloon)—Anderson and Stevens, U. S., Nov. 11, 1935.

All other records, international in scope, are termed World "Class" records and are divided into classes: Airships, free balloons, airplanes, seaplanes, amphibians, gliders, and rotorplanes. Airplanes (Class C) are sub-divided into Group I, jet-powered, and Group II, reciprocating engines. A partial listing of such records follows:

WORLD "CLASS" RECORDS

AIRPLANES (Class C, Group I—Jet-powered)

Distance in closed circuit without refueling (International)—1,938.700 kms. (1,143.134 miles)—Elisabeth Boselli, France; Mistral aircraft, Oran-Mont de Marsan course, Feb. 21, 1955.

Distance in straight line without refueling (International)—2,231.200 kms. (1,448.550 miles)—Elisabeth Boselli, France; Mistral aircraft; Creil to Agadir, March 1, 1955.

Altitude (International)—19,406 meters (63,668 feet)—Wing Comdr. Walter F. Gibb, Great Britain; Canberra jet bomber, two Bristol Olympus turbojet engines; Bristol, England, May 4, 1953.

Maximum speed over straightaway course, 3 kilometers (International)—1,211.746 km.p.h. (752.943 m.p.h.)—Lt. Comdr. James B. Berdin, United States, Douglas XF4D Delta-wing monoplane, Westinghouse J-40-WE-8 jet engine; Salton Sea, Calif., Oct. 3, 1953.

Maximum speed over straightaway course, 15-25 kilometers (International)—1,323.312 km.p.h. (822.266 m.p.h.)—Col. H. A. Hanes, USAF, United States; North American F-100C, J-57 P-21 engine; Edwards, Calif., Aug. 20, 1955.

Speed for 100 kilometers (62.137 miles) (International)—1,171.788 km.p.h. (728.114 m.p.h.)—Robert O. Rahn, United States; Douglas XF4D Delta-wing monoplane, Westinghouse J-40-WE-8 jet engine; Edwards, Calif., Oct. 16, 1953.

Speed for 500 kilometers (International)—1,045.206 km.p.h. (649.460 m.p.h.) Maj. John L. Armstrong, USAF, United States; North American F-86H, GE J-73-GE-3 engine; Vandalia, Ohio, Sept. 3, 1954.

Speed for 1,000 kilometers in closed circuit (International)—900.660 km.p.h. (559.643 m.p.h.)—Capt. A. Hans M. Neij, Sweden; SAAF S. 29, deHavilland "Ghost" engine; Nyköping-Natra Course, March 23, 1955.

Speed for 2,000 kilometers (1,242.739 miles) without payload (International)—708.592 km. p. h. (440.298 m. p. h.)—Lt. John J. Hancock, USAF, United States, F-80, Allison J-33 engine, Dayton, Ohio, May 19, 1946. (United States)—same.

Speed for 1,000 kilometers (621.369 miles) with payload of 1,000 kilograms (International)—660.526 km. p. h. (410.431 m. p. h.)—Lt. Col. T. P. Gerrity, pilot; Capt. W. K. Rickert, co-pilot, USAF, United States; Douglas XA-26F, 2 Pratt & Whitney R-2800 engines and 1 GE 1-16 jet engine; Dayton, Ohio, June 20, 1946. (United States)—same.

Climb to 12,000 meters (International)—3 min. 09.5 sec.—Richard Bellingham, Great Britain; Gloster Meteor Mark 8 W.A. 820; Gloucestershire, England, Aug. 31, 1951.

AIRPLANES (Class C, Group II—Reciprocating Engines)

Distance, closed circuit—8,854.3 miles—Lt. Col. O. F. Lassiter and Capt. W. J. Valentine, United States; Tampa, Fla., Aug. 1-2, 1947.

Distance, Airline (International)—18,081.990 kms. (11,235.6 miles)—Comdr. Thomas D. Davies, USN.; Comdr. Eugene F. Rankin, USN.; Comdr. Walter S. Reid, USN., and Lt. Comdr. Ray A. Tabelling, USN.; United States; Lockheed P-2V-1; from Pearce Field, Perth, Australia, to Port Columbus, Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 29-Oct. 1, 1946. (United States)—same.

Altitude (International)—17,083 meters (56,046 feet)—Mario Pezzi, Italy; Caproni 161 Biplane, Montecelio, Oct. 22, 1938. (United States)—14,603 meters (47,910 feet)—Major F. F. Ross, pilot; Lieut. D. M. Davis, co-pilot, USAF, Boeing B-29, Harmon Field, Guam, May 15, 1946.

Maximum speed over 3-kilometer measured course (International)—755.138 km. p. h. (469.220 m. p. h.)—Fritz Wendel, Germany, Messerschmitt B. F. 109R, Augsburg, April 26, 1939. (United States)—663.054 km. p. h. (412.002 m. p. h.)—Jacqueline Cochran, United States; North American F-51, Thermal, Calif., Dec. 17, 1947.

Maximum speed at high altitude (International)—741.339 km. p. h. (464.374 m. p. h.)—Jacqueline Cochran, United States; North American F-51, near Indio, Calif., April 9, 1951. (United States)—same.

Speed for 100 kilometers (62.137 miles) without payload (International)—755.668 km. p. h. (469.549 m. p. h.)—Jacqueline Cochran, United States; North American F-51, Coachella Valley, Calif., Dec. 10, 1947. (United States)—same.

Speed for 500 kilometers (310.685 miles) without payload (International)—703.376 km. p. h. (436.995 m. p. h.)—Jacqueline Cochran, United States; North American F-51, Desert Center-Mt. Wilson Course, Dec. 29, 1949. (United States)—same.

Speed for 1,000 kilometers (621.369 miles) without payload (International)—693.780 km. p. h. (431.094 m. p. h.)—Jacqueline Cochran, United States; North American F-51, near Palm Springs, Calif., May 24, 1948. (United States)—same.

Speed for 2,000 kilometers (1,242.739 miles) without payload (International)—720.134 km. p. h. (447.470 m. p. h.)—Jacqueline Cochran, United States; North American F-51, near Palm Springs, Calif., May 22, 1948. (United States)—same.

Speed for 5,000 kilometers (3,106.849 miles) without payload (International)—544.590 km. p. h. (338.392 m. p. h.)—Capt. J. E. Bauer, Pilot; Capt. J. E. Cotton, co-pilot, USAF, United States; Boeing B-29, Dayton, Ohio, June 28, 1946. (United States)—same.

Speed for 10,000 kilometers (6,213.698 miles) without payload (International)—439.665 km. p. h. (273.195 m. p. h.)—Lt. Col. O. F. Lassiter, pilot; Capt. W. J. Valentine, co-pilot, USAF, United States; Boeing B-29, Dayton, Ohio, July 29-30, 1947. (United States)—same.

LIGHT AIRPLANES (Class C-1-c—2,204.6 to 3,858 lbs.)

Since Jan. 1, 1949, classification of light planes for record certification purposes is based on gross weight rather than the former method of considering only a plane's engine cylinder displacement. The engine cylinder displacement classes were abolished effective Dec. 31, 1949.

Distance, Airline (International)—7,977.920 kilometers (4,957.240 miles)—William P. Odom, United States; Beech Bonanza Model 35; from Honolulu, T. H., to Teterboro, N. J., March 7-8, 1949. United States—same. (Class C-1-d—3,858.1 to 6,613.9 lbs.)

Speed for 100 kilometers (62.137 miles) in a closed circuit (International)—519.480 km. p. h. (322.789 m. p. h.)—Miss R. M. Sharpe, Great Britain; Vickers Supermarine Spitfire 5-B; Wolverhampton, June 17, 1950.

Speed for 500 kilometers (310.685 miles) in a closed circuit (International)—471.348 km. p. h. (292.881 m. p. h.)—Y. D. Forostenco. U.S.S.R.; YAK II, Touchino-Skhodnia course, July 12, 1951.

AMPHIBIANS (Class C-3)

Speed for 100 kilometers (62.137 miles) without payload (International)—389.273 km.p.h. (241.883 m.p.h.)—R. R. Colquhoun, Great Britain; Vickers Supermarine Seagull I, Marston Moor, July 22, 1950.

Distance, Airline (International)—2,300.860 kilometers (1,429.685 miles)—Maj. Gen. F. M. Andrews and crew, United States; from San Juan, Puerto Rico, to Langley Field, Va., June 29, 1936.

(United States)—337.079 km.p.h. (209.451 m.p.h.)—Maj. A. P. deSeversky, Miami, Fla., Dec. 19, 1936.

Speed for 1,000 kilometers (621.369 miles) (International)—Speed 299.461 km. p. h. (186.076 m. p. h.)

—Capt. W. P. Sloan and Capt. B. L. Boatner, U. S. A., AC, United States, Dayton, O., July 31, 1939.

GLIDERS (Class D—Single-place)

Distance, straight line (international)—861.272 kilometers (535.169 miles)—Richard H. Johnson, United States; Odessa, Texas, to Salina, Kans., Aug. 5, 1951. (United States)—same.

Distance to predetermined destination (International)—636.877 kms. (395.736 miles)—V. I. Efimenko, U.S.S.R., A-9 Sallplane; from Grabtsevo (Kalouga) to Melovoe (Vorochilovograd), June 6, 1952. (United States)—535.757 kms. (332.903 miles)—Wallace R. Wiberg; Odessa, Texas, to Guymon, Okla., Aug. 5, 1951.

Distance to predetermined point with return to point of departure—500.020 kms. (310 miles)—Lyle A. Maxey, United States; Kerns Sallplane; from El Mirage, Calif., to Independence, Calif., and return. Sept. 4, 1955. (United States)—same.

Altitude gained (International)—9,174.5 meters (30,100 feet)—William S. Ivans, Jr., United States; Bishop, Calif., Dec. 30, 1950. (United States)—same.

Altitude above sea level (International)—12,832 meters (42,100 feet)—William S. Ivans, Jr., United States; Bishop, Calif., Dec. 30, 1950. (United States)—same.

ROTORPLANES (Class E)

Distance, airline (International)—1,958.796 kms. (1,217.137 miles)—Elton J. Smith, United States, Bell 47D1 Helicopter; from Ft. Worth, Texas, to Niagara Falls, N. Y., Sept. 17, 1952. (United States)—same.

Altitude (International)—8,209 meters (26,931 feet)—Jean Boulet, SE Alouette Helicopter; Buc Airport, June 6, 1955. (United States)—7,474 meters (24,521 feet)—W/O Billy I. Wester, United States; Sikorsky XH-39 Helicopter; Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 17, 1954.

Maximum speed over straightaway course (3 kilometers) (International)—251.067 km.p.h. (156.006 m.p.h.)—W/O Billy I. Wester, United States; Sikorsky XH-39 Helicopter; Windsor Locks, Conn., Aug. 26, 1954. (United States)—same.

AIRSHIPS (Class B)

Airline distance (International)—6,384.500 kms. (3,967.137 miles)—Dr. Hugo Eckener, Germany; L. Z. 127, "Graf Zeppelin," 5 Maybach 450-550 HP engines; from Lakehurst, N. J., U.S.A., to Friedrichshafen, Germany, October 29, 30, 31 and Nov. 1, 1928.

FREE BALLOONS (Tenth category, 4001 cu. meters or more)

Duration (International)—87 hours—H. Kaulen, Germany, Dec. 13 to 17, 1913. (United States)—51 hours, Lieut. C'mdr. T. G. W. Settle and Lieut. Charles H. Kendall, Gordon-Bennett Balloon Race, Chicago, Sept. 2, 3, 4, 1933.

Altitude (International)—22,066 meters (72,394.795 feet)—Capt. Orvil Anderson and Capt. Albert Stevens, United States, take-off approximately 11 miles southwest of Rapid City, S. D., landing approximately 12 miles south of White Lake, S. D., Nov. 11, 1935.

F. A. I. COURSE RECORDS

Los Angeles to New York (International)—1,050.135 km.p.h. (652.522 m.p.h.)—Lt. Col. Robert Scott, USAF, United States; Republic F-84F Thunderstreak, Wright J-65B3 jet engine; International Airport to Floyd Bennett Field, March 9, 1955. Distance: 2,445.9 miles; elapsed time: 3 hours 44 min., 53.8 sec. (United States)—same.

New York, N. Y., to Los Angeles, Calif. (International)—893.105 km.p.h. (554.949 m.p.h.)—Lt. John M. Conroy, United States; North American F-86A, Sabre Jet, GE J-47-13 jet engine; May 21-22, 1955. Distance: 2,445.9 miles; elapsed time: 4 hours, 24 min., 26.64 sec. (United States)—same.

BOOKS

Best Sellers and Highlights of U. S. Production

Book production in 1955 was running slightly higher than in 1954 when reports for the first 10 months were in. Up to Nov. 1, 1955, 10,287 titles had been registered, as compared with 10,100, an increase of 187. New editions of older works accounted for about 8% of the 1955 total. Fiction titles showed a slight decrease, as they had in 1954; the 10-mo. figure was 1,778, compared with 1,861 in 1954. But children's books increased, 1,276 against 1,161. There were also increases in titles of biography, travel, general literature, criticism, medicine, science and technical works. Religious titles were fewer and seemed to have reached their peak in 1954.

American book publication in 1954 produced a total of 11,901 new titles and new editions of older titles, as against 12,050 in 1953. The decrease was credited to fewer imports from abroad, not new books, originating in the United States. The largest increase was in religion, 61 more titles than in 1953.

There were 117 fewer titles in fiction, but this was because there were fewer new editions; new novels increased slightly, 1,512 as against 1,495. Juvenile books with 1,342 titles showed a decrease of 52 titles. Other categories: biography, 743 titles, down 33; education, 260, up 30; fine arts, 314, up 20; general literature and criticism, 556, up 1; travel, 311, down 40; history, 605, up 15; law, 292, up 30; philosophy, ethics, 315, down 17; religion, 875, up 61; science, 707, up 12; technical and military, 444, up 33.

Publishers with the largest lists of new titles in 1954 were: Doubleday (and subsidiaries) 424; Macmillan, 348; Harper (with Hoesber) 295; Oxford, 254; McGraw-Hill, 234; Prentice-Hall (with Hawthorn) 186; Vantage, 168; Simon & Schuster, 163; Lippincott, 147; Dodd, Mead, 135; Little, Brown, 130; Random, 129; Longmans, 126; Dutton, 124; Crowell, 115; Holt, 112; Houghton Mifflin, 111; Knopf, 104; Bobbs Merrill, 102; Rinehart, 102. Among pocket-size books Popular led with 121 titles, Dell and New American Library each had 116. Pocket Books, 111, Bantam and Pennant, 102.

NOVELS OF THE YEAR

Andersonville, a novel reproducing the impact of the terrible Confederate prison on captives and captors was termed Mackinlay Kantor's best work. Sincerely, Willis Wayde, by John F. Marquand, The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit, by Sloan Wilson, and Cash McCall, by Cameron Hawley, author of Executive Suite, used radio and business promotion as effective backgrounds. In Something of Value Robert Ruark made best-seller lists with details of brutalities in turbulent Kenya. The long-awaited novel by Herman Wouk, Marjorie Morningstar, disclosed a sympathetic use of Jewish customs in New York in describing a girl with theatrical ambitions. The device of issuing Thomas D. Costain's The Tontine in two volumes did not discourage readers; the tale was based on a British insurance scheme of the 19th century. Robert Penn Warren added to his career with Band of Angels and John O'Hara returned with a clinical novel of marital frustration, Ten North Frederick.

Other novels of the hour were A Charmed Life, by Mary McCarthy; The Prophet, by Sholem Asch; Alice Sligh Turnbull's The Golden Journey; Madison Cooper's The Haunted Hacienda; Robert Graves' The Lost Eagles; Heritage, by Anthony West; Coromandel! by John Masters; These Lovers Fled Away, by Howard Spring and Jessamyn West's Love, Death and the Ladies Drill Team. Thomas Mann's The Confessions of Felix Krull, Confidence Man, appeared shortly before his death, at 80. Trial, by Don Mankiewicz was the Harper prize novel. Bonjour Tristesse by Francois Sagan, from the French, was high on best-seller lists and Auntie Mame, by Patrick Dennis amused large numbers. No Time for Sergeants, by Mac Hyman, again proved the popularity of a good army story.

William Faulkner did not publish an original work in 1955 but a revision of some of his earlier stories in Big Woods.

GENERAL LITERATURE

In non-fiction the essay gained prestige by Anne Morrow Lindbergh's Gift from the Sea. Robert E. Spiller made a long-needed valuation of modern writing in The Cycle of American Literature. Edmund Wilson wrote with distinction in Dead Sea Scrolls. Gordon N. Ray, professor of English and authority on Thackeray, published Thackeray: the Uses of Adversity, and Thackeray's Contributions to the Morning Chronicle, Edge of the Sea, by Rachel Carson, added up to her reputation. Science also was served by The Natural History of North American Amphibians and Reptiles by Jas. A. Oliver and Wild America by Roger Tory Peterson and James Fisher.

John Lewis Bradley edited Ruskin's Letters from Venice, and Barbara P. McCarthy edited Elizabeth Barrett to Mr. Boyd. Bernard DeVoto's essays in The Easy Chair appeared the week of his untimely death in November. The theater was represented by How Not to Write a Play, by Walter Kerr; Acting is Believing, by Chas. J. McGar a study of Stanislavsky's methods, and The Living Stage, by Kenneth Macgowan and Wm. Melnitz. The public could read plays by current favorites in New Voices in the American Theatre, the authors being Tennessee Williams, Arthur Miller, George Axelrod, Robert Anderson and Herman Wouk. Alfred Kazin collected a group of his critical essays in The Inmost Leaf.

Books on religious and inspirational subjects remained high in popularity in 1955, although new titles were fewer. Billy Graham's The Secret of Happiness had a first printing of 125,000 copies; Norman Vincent Peale added to his audience with Inspiring Messages for Daily Living; Fulton J. Sheen published Thinking Life Through.

An encouraging development was the increasing popularity of paper-bound reprints of classics and other works of literature, showing that book buyers respond when prices are moderate.

ADVENTURE AND TRAVEL

Africa was the subject of a number of books, including Inside Africa, by John Gunther; The Dark Eye in Africa, by Laurens van der Post, and The African Giant, by Stuart Cloete. Mountaineering was recorded in High Adventure by Edmund Hillary, who conquered Everest; South Col by Wilfrid Noyce; Everest, by Michel Morin; The Conquest of Mt. McKinley, by Belmore Browne; The Abominable Snowman, by Ralph Izzard and other books. The Caves Beyond by Joe Lawrence, Jr., and Roger W. Brueker told the story of Floyd Collins; 2,000 Fathoms Down, by Georges Huot and Pierre Wilm described a descent into the earth. William Lord described the Titanic disaster in A Night to Remember.

BIOGRAPHY AND AUTOBIOGRAPHY

The final volume in the late J. G. Randall's Lincoln studies, Last Full Measure, was completed by Richard N. Current. Gen. Chas. de Gaulle gave his war memoirs in the title simply An Autobiography. Mrs. Fiske and the American Theatre was the work of Archie Binns. A needed work in the field of architecture was Talbot Hamlin's Benjamin Henry Latrobe. Edward A. Weeks described his work as an editor and his reading in The Open Heart. One of the most popular best-sellers was Gertrude Lawrence as Mrs. A., by her husband, Richard Aldrich. Wm. Brandon wrote a new account of John C. Fremont in The Men and the Mountain. Recent American politics was reviewed in the first volume of Harry S. Truman's memoirs, Year of Decisions, which had the highest earnings of the year, despite pedestrian writing. Buffalo Bill and the Wild West, by Henry Blackman Sell and Victor Weybright typified the continued popularity of books dealing with characters of the western plains, while The American West, by Lucius Beebe and Charles Clegg supplied chronicle and pictures of the early days.

Also of importance were Dylan Thomas in America, an Intimate Journal, by the poet's former associate, John Malcolm Brinnin; Yehudi Menuhin, by Robert Magidoff; Longfellow, by Edward Wagenknecht; Jefferson Davis, by James Bishop. The Day Lincoln Was Shot, by James Bishop, showed that there were unexplored passages in the Lincoln story. The Pictorial History of American Presidents, by John and Alice Durant, offered biographical data. Of historical interest were Tales of the Mississippi, by Samuel, Huber and Ogden; The Frontier Years, by Mark H. Brown and W. R. Felton, and Civil War in Pictures, text by Fletcher Pratt.

firmed; lung cancer death rate for those who smoke 2 or more packs of cigarettes a day is more than 3 times that of those who smoke less than one pack; the death rate of those who smoke less than 10 cigarettes a day is "appreciable"; deaths from this cause are very low among non-smokers, whether of urban or rural areas; pipe smoking is associated with the disease far less than cigarettes; there is "no significant association" between cigar smoking and lung cancer. The doctors reported lung cancer death rates appeared to be from 3 to 9 times as high among those who smoked cigarettes at some time as among non-smokers, and 5 to 16 times as high among heavy cigarette smokers as among non-smokers. In 1954 about 20,000 men died of lung cancer.

The methods of choosing smokers and non-smokers for study by Drs. Hammond and Horn were criticized as inadequate by Dr. Joseph Berkson of the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., and published in the Proceedings of the Mayo Clinic in July, 1955. He said: "It is unwarranted to conclude from the present statistical studies that smoking does cause cancer." Dr. W. C. Huepner, chief of the environmental cancer section of the National Cancer Institute, Bethesda, Md., published a study in CA, organ of the American Cancer Society, concluding that evidence pointed not to a single cause, but to numerous industrial atmospheric air-pollutants as in great part responsible for cancer, and that data suggest "that cigarette smoking is not a major factor" and did not have a predominant role in the increase of lung cancer. Dr. Paul Kotin of the Univ. of Southern California said not everybody who has lung cancer has smoked, but all have breathed polluted air.

Dr. Cornelius Rhoades, head of Sloan-Kettering Institute and Memorial Center, New York, reported for the Institute that "the conclusion is inescapable to me and to my associates that a real relationship exists between the long, continued inhalation of cigaret smoke and cancer of the lung." He said about one in 5 cases are not associated with smoking but probably 4 out of 5 are. "Very much evidence backs this up."

The Tobacco Industry Research Committee, which first financed studies with $500,000, has increased its fund to $1,000,000. Dr. Clarence Cook Little, its scientific director, has stated that no cancer-causing agents have been identified in cigarettes.

The National Cancer Institute, an agency of U. S. Public Health Service, is supporting a strong national program of research. For the 1955 fiscal year Congress increased its budget from $19,730,000 to $21,737,000.

AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY

American Cancer Society, Inc., 521 West 57th St., New York, N. Y., is the national organization. In its Annual Report for 1954, issued 1955, it reported a 10% decline since 1944 in cancer deaths among women between 25 and 75. This is credited to earlier detection and improved treatment, so that 100,000 women are saved annually who would not have been saved ten years ago. But the growing number of older people has raised the incidence of the disease to one in 4, so that 40,000,000 Americans are in danger of having the disease, according to the estimate. ACS says only about one-quarter of those afflicted by cancer survive the disease today. Wider opportunity for research, medical education and services must be opened in the U. S. to check the disease.

In the fund-raising campaign of 1955 the 51 divisions in the U. S. and possessions obtained over $24,000,000, an increase of nearly $3,000,000 over the 1954 collections.

Officers include Walter J. Kohler, ch., of the board; James S. Adams, vice ch., Howard C. Taylor, Jr., pres., 1954-55, and Dr. C. V. Brindley pres. 1955-56; Melford R. Runyon, exec. vice pres. Dr. Chas. S. Cameron, medical and scientific dir.

Other Health Agencies

Eye-Bank for Sight Restoration, Inc., 210 East 64th St., New York, N. Y., supplies eye-tissue for the blind and supports research and training. Human eyes may be willed for transplantation.

National Assn. for Mental Health, 1790 Broadway, New York, N. Y., supports mental health clinics, training of personnel, research and public education with voluntary contributions averaging $1,250,000 annually.

National Nephrosis Foundation, Inc., 143 E. 35th

St., New York, N. Y. supports clinics, research projects and studies in childhood nephrosis and allied kidney disorders. Nephrosis Foundation of New York & New Jersey has hq at 140 W. 58th St., New York, N. Y.

United Cerebral Palsy, 369 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y., has 325 affiliates and supports studies to increase understanding of cerebral palsy and related neurological conditions. In 1954 its grants totalled $500,000.

Medical Research Summary

Source: Science Service

Intimate kissing was reported responsible for infectious mononucleosis.

A new remedy to speed recovery from mumps was found in the streptococcus germ enzymes, streptokinase and streptodornase.

For persons who have trouble wearing false teeth, a way to anchor the lower ones directly to the jawbone was developed.

Successful transplantation of the thyroid gland from the neck of the 21-day-old baby immediately after its death to the groin of a 29-year-old woman was reported.

Evidence that human beings develop immunity to syphilis after penicillin treatment, suggesting the possibility of vaccination, was obtained.

Whether or not a mole is malignant can be determined by a simple radio-activity test, it was announced.

A frozen human semen bank was successfully established experimentally.

The first skin bank in a civilian hospital storing cadaver skin for burn victims was established.

New drug for gout and rheumatoid arthritis was found in chemical produced in body from phenylbutazone and made synthetically.

Two partially synthetic steroid drugs, metacortandralone and metacortandracin, were reported promising in arthritis and in relieving pain due to bronchial asthma and swollen lung tissue.

Fluorohydrocortisone, synthetic hormone 10 to 50 times more active than the natural one, was reported useful for treating Addison's disease and for diagnosing degree of adrenal gland function and distinguishing between adrenal gland cancer and over-stimulation of the adrenals by the pituitary gland in the head.

Success was reported in stopping bad nose bleeds by injections of estrogen, or female hormone.

Apparatus for taking X-ray pictures at an exposure of one-thousandth of a second instead of the usual one-sixtieth, was expected to be useful in taking X-ray pictures of the heart and its blood vessels.

A chemical basis for itching was found in protein-splitting enzymes called proteases.

A human kidney transplanted from one identical twin to another functioned well for more than 9 months. Longest previous survival was 5½ mos.

Radioactive potassium was used to study chemical activity of the heart muscle.

The heart was found to have two zones, with severe disease of the inner one failing to show on the electrocardiogram.

Camoform was reported promising in amebic dysentery and the non-dysentery form of the disease.

Adrenal glands hormones were reported life-saving for patients in shock after acute heart attacks.

Tonsils and similar glands in the small intestines known as Peyer's patches were pinpointed as primary sites of polio infection.

Tests were started of a weakened live virus throat swab to protect against poliomyelitis.

The paralytic process in polio was reported halted in 48 hours instead of 5 to 7 days by injections of the anti-inflammation enzyme, trypsin.

Successful tests of a vaccine against type 3 APC virus, cause of a common-cold-like illness, with hope for extensive trial in military recruits of a vaccine against 3 types of APC virus were announced.

Benzpyrene was incriminated as the probable lung cancer agent in both cigarettes and city but not rural air.

New antibiotics, or mold remedies, announced were: Soframycin, Rovamycin, Eulicin, streptolydigin, rubidin, streptonivcin, Actinomycin C, Vancomycin, penicillin V, Amphotericins A and B, thioestreptol, Albamycin, Synergistin, cathomycin, and Ramnacin.

New Discoveries in Science, 1955

Science Service, 1719 N St., N.W., Washington, D. C., is an educational institution that furnishes scientific information, promotes the Science Clubs of America, conducts the annual science talent search for the Westinghouse Science Scholarships, and in many activities acts as an agency of liaison between scientists and laymen. It provides newspapers with wire and mail reports of scientific developments and issues Science News Letter, a weekly Chemistry, a monthly, and other publications. Science Clubs of America stimulates amateur interest in science, especially on the part of youth, and school clubs may affiliate without cost. There are now over 15,000 affiliated, with about 300,000 members. The organization administers the National Science Fair held annually in cooperation with newspapers in leading cities. Each year 40 contestants in the science talent search are invited to Washington, D. C., for the Science Talent Institute, where scholarships are awarded.

The following summary was prepared by Science Service, Watson Davis, Director.

ASTRONOMY

A true radio star, first observed radio source of stellar size, was discovered at the north boundary of the constellation Hydra.

Jupiter was found to be the source of radio noise outbursts, the first planet known to act as such a source.

Discovery was reported of the star with smallest known mass, only one-twelfth that of the sun.

The largest star in the universe, Alpha Herculis, was reported to be 200,000 times the diameter of our sun.

Observations made during the lunar eclipse of a stellar radio source indicated that the moon's atmosphere is less than a trillionth as dense as the earth's at sea level.

A sky survey with a large radio telescope disclosed 1,936 heavenly sources sending out radio waves, 500 of which have known positions.

Volcanoes on Mars were reported to erupt as frequently as those on earth; they were thought to explain the origin of strange gray clouds billowing from the surface.

Constellations of blue stars in the Large Cloud of Magellan contain a few stars more than 200,000 times as bright as our sun.

The U.S. Naval Observatory moved its 40-inch telescope to Flagstaff, Ariz.; a new astronomical observatory was under construction near Philadelphia, and two major observatories teamed up to study solar radiation.

The longest eclipse of the sun with the longest period of totality since 717 A.D. occurred on June 20, 1955.

Nine comets were reported during the year, one of which was a rare split comet that appeared almost like a double star. Two were visible to the naked eye.

Plans were completed for construction of a national radio telescope with a 120-foot saucer.

The first section of the Sky Atlas, product of the National Geographic-Palomar Observatory Sky Survey that has been going on since 1949, was published in July at Palomar Observatory, Calif. It disclosed the first 200 sky charts, giving many stars and galaxies photographed by the 48-in. Big Schmidt telescope, some of them 600,000,000 light years away. One light year is about 6 million million miles. The Atlas will be completed in 1956 and will contain 1,758 photomaps. The price per copy, covering only printing costs, is $2,000.

BIOLOGICAL SCIENCES

Changes and discoveries, as reported, include: New species of plants created by irradiation of the parents with atomic bombardment.

Atomic particle radiation was used to induce hereditary changes in plants to make them immune to certain diseases.

Penicillin's germ-killing power was not wholly responsible for its ability to stop up the growth of pigs; it is one or more products from the breakdown of penicillin when it is no longer effective as an antibiotic.

Tobacco mosaic and cucumber mosaic viruses were inhibited by a chemical extract from the seeds of plants.

A gas-filled X-ray tube and a total reflection camera were combined to form a new instrument for studying small viruses and protein molecules.

Tar from both machine-smoked and naturally-smoked cigarettes was found to cause cancer-like tumors on plants.

A chemical (3-Cl-IPC) was found to stop the sprouting of stored potatoes and reduce rotting.

After exposure to atomic radiation, potatoes were found to keep for a year at 48°F.

Green plants were found to luminesce like fireflies, though on a small scale, and a substance was prepared in the laboratory that may be identical to the chemical that makes plants give off light.

A plant growth regulator gave promise of wiping out poison ivy and other pest plants and was observed to cause albinism in the plants on which it is applied.

Chemicals were found that produce degenerative arthritis and bone, joint and artery changes in rats, leading to hope of reversing the changes. Antibodies to all three types of polio were found in blood serum of cows.

Ordinary smallpox vaccination was found to stop a plague of mouse pox, technically termed infectious ectromelia.

A bacterium that thrives on the deadly poison potassium cyanide was discovered.

DDT and also aldrin, dieldrin and endrin were found to be highly toxic to game birds, either killing adults or interfering with the hatching or survival of chicks.

CHEMISTRY AND PHYSICS

Crystals were formed of a highly purified polio virus, removing a little of the mystery surrounding viruses; the crystal has a rectangular box shape with a triangular pyramid on each hand.

An improved model of the streaming birefringence apparatus accurately measured the length of giant elongated molecules such as those in certain viruses.

An infectious virus was created in the laboratory by putting together a protein and a nucleic acid, neither in itself infectious.

A new atomic battery has a hot core of radioactive polonium that acts on 40 thermocouples to produce electric energy.

A button-sized battery delivers constant-voltage electricity for 2 years through use of indium as anode.

A battery charged by the sun's rays was used experimentally to power a transistor radio set.

An atomic light source which can continue for years resulted from bombardment of phosphors by particles from radioactive strontium 90.

Five major atomic power reactor projects were under construction in 1955; atomic engines powered the submarines USS Nautilus and USS Sea Wolf, and two prototype submarine power plants were put to use.

Measurement of the speed of ultrasonic sound passing through liquid organic chemicals provided a new tool for chemical analysis.

A solar cooker was devised with a covering of reflecting plastic that folds up like an umbrella for carrying but opens to concentrate the sun's rays for cooking.

Soaking in water was found to protect living tissues from radiation injury.

Elements 99 and 100 were named einsteinium and fermium to honor two great scientists who died within the year. Element 101 was produced in small quantity (17 atoms) and named mendelevium for the Russian scientist.

Radio waves from heavenly sources were found to show absorption lines just as does light from stars, providing astronomers with a new yardstick for measuring distances within the Milky Way.

New and economical processes of recovering uranium from ore were announced; kerosene is used in one process and the other makes use of ion exchange resins in the form of plastic beads.

A new type of experimental transistor set a high frequency record, reversing current from positive to negative more than a billion times a second.

Boron nitride, an ivory-like substance, proved similar to graphite in resistance to acids but having high electrical resistivity.

An inquiry into the possibility of danger from atomic radiation to life on earth was begun by the National Academy of Sciences.

Protons, hearts of hydrogen atoms, were polarized, an atomic physics achievement equivalent in importance to the discovery of polarization of light.

One of the last gaps in the middle of the list of radioactive forms of common metals was filled by the identification of manganese 53.

Nucleic acids and cholesterol were synthesized from simple acetic compounds.

The complete structure of the ACTH molecule was determined, and each of the 39 amino acids contained was identified.

Amino acids, basic stuff of life, were produced spontaneously by sending electric charges through an atmosphere similar to that of the primitive earth.

A method was reported for achieving lower temperatures than ever before possible by causing atomic nuclei to absorb energy from the motion of atoms when they are released from a strong magnetic field.

Diamonds were made artificially by combining enormous pressure with temperatures of over 5000°F.; garnets were made from mineral hornblende on the same press.

A key building block of living matter, carbamyl phosphate, involved in the building up of urea and the nucleic acids, was discovered and synthesized.

The male sex hormone, testosterone, was synthesized directly from simple coal tar chemicals.

A new concept, the "geon," or gravitational-electromagnetic entity, tying together the familiar effects of both forces, was developed.

A crystalline chemical, stevioside, from the leaves of a wild Paraguayan shrub, was found to be 300 times as sweet as sugar and a cyclic component attached to stevioside offered promise of becoming a raw material for cortisone-like compounds for use against arthritis.

Better fuels including improved gasoline were extracted from crude petroleum by using the common chemical urea to trap "straight chain" molecules.

Technetium was found useful in the construction of atomic reactors.

Molten metallic sulfides were found to conduct electricity as does an ordinary wire.

New chemical understanding of how the evolution of the stars can build light elements into heavier ones was derived from information about isotope transformation in recent studies of fusion reactions.

Radioactive beryllium 7 was found created in the upper air by bombardment of cosmic rays on atoms of nitrogen and oxygen.

Through creation of the anti-proton in the University of California bevatron, it was shown that this particle actually exists and that annihilation of matter would result from the collision of the anti-proton with a proton.

ENGINEERING AND TECHNOLOGY

New devices and discoveries, as reported, include:

A liquid form of nylon.

A loudspeaker with a 4-mile range.

A tiny radio transmitter powered solely by voice.

A postage-stamp size battery to power a defense device.

A missile guided to its target by heat waves from the target.

A torpedo with transistors that reached the target through sound waves in the water.

Paper from glass fiber: used in cigarettes; it doesn't burn, but holds the ash.

A process for coating steel automobile parts with aluminum, to prevent corrosion.

A process for making gasolines of more than 100-octane for high compression engines.

An automatic device for calling elevator floors, based on tape and loud speakers.

Rubber vulcanized without heat or sulfur by exposing experimental rubber to short gamma rays from cobalt 60.

A tiny shock-proof radio transmitter mounted in 20-millimeter projectiles to measure their rotation.

Thousands of simultaneous telephone conversations transmitted in a single two-inch pipe over long distances with the use of waves of 35,000 to 75,000 megacycles.

Television signals and 12-channel telephone conversations transmitted through space for 200 miles without relay stations, using ultra-high frequencies.

A system to broadcast color television programs without a camera.

A tiny ceramic vacuum tube making ultra-high frequency television channels more practical.

An experimental color television receiver that projects images on a cabinet screen.

A "traveling wave" television antenna, consisting of a pipe with thin slots cut in it, emitting a circular wave with no gaps.

New lubricants for extremely low temperature service in turbojet engines, made from one of the major constituents of turpentine.

Silicone rubber in a new tire for supersonic aircraft, to withstand temperatures above 500°F.

Intense heat of over 2800°F. produced in a small furnace the size of a waste basket.

A silicon-modified enamel for coating of electrical wires to make possible smaller electric motors with greater power.

A midget radio transmitter operating on power from the sun's rays converted into electricity by selenium converter.

A new method of radio propagation at very high frequencies, 90% reliable over distances of 600 to 1,200 miles.

Glass rods split in two to guide extremely short millimeter radio waves.

Safety devices on new models of automobiles; including safety belts, energy-absorbing pad on dash, safety double latches on doors, and recessed steering wheel post.

PATENTS

The U. S. Patent Office, Washington, D. C., furnishes copies of patents for a fee. The number of the patent is given in parentheses. Patents of the year include:

A device that emits a whistle when a tire has a slow leak. (2,705,471)

A new method for producing fresh water from sea water. (2,705,407)

A composition for deterring the desire for tobacco, including lobeline sulphate and an anti-acid, suitable for use in capsules, pills or gum. (2,705,695)

A device for illuminating the hats of bandsmen by means of light bulbs controlled by batteries at the waist. (2,705,751)

A turntable under a military tank which can be lowered to scrape dirt and on which the tank can turn. (2,705,378)

A device for tying square knots for splicing broken wires of a wire recorder. (2,705,656)

A patent for an automatic choke, a "mechanism for controlling the starting and operation of internal combustion engines," first applied for in 1932, now granted General Motors Corp., which bought it from the inventors, Peter J. and Clarence H. Jorgensen. (2,705,484)

U. S. Patent Office, May 18, issued a patent on a nuclear reactor to the Atomic Energy Commission. The invention was made by the late Enrico Fermi and Leo Szilard, scientists of the University of Chicago, where the first chain reaction was touched off Dec. 2, 1942. Licenses for industrial use of nuclear reaction will be issued under this patent. (2,708,656)

The Norden bombsight, kept under security wraps for more than 32 years. (2,703,932)

A typewriter that types out words or whole phrases when a code letter is pressed. (2,717,686)

An atomic clock, accurate to one second in 100,000, based on the constant, natural vibration frequency of atoms in ammonia or other molecules. (2,699,503)

The world's largest sun furnace, located in the French Pyrenees. (2,707,903)

A method for separating man-made curium and americium from the rare-earth elements of the lanthanide series. (2,711,362)

A continuous fluidized process for making low-boiling titanium tetrachloride from difficult ores. (2,701,179, 2,701,180)

A propeller-driven motor vehicle for use on ice or packed snow, but adaptable for land or water use. (2,705,935)

A flying submarine with marine propeller and engine for use in the water, and wings and jet engines for travel in the air. (2,720,367)

A water ski that will hold the skier up on water even when he is not in motion. (2,716,246)

A brake shoe that automatically reverses an airplane's propellers for a fast stop when a saddle on the plane contacts a deck plate on a carrier's landing strip. (2,716,009)

A fuel gas that can be substituted for natural gas without adjustment of home appliances. (2,707,675)

An improved method for preparing hydrazine, chemical used in rocket fuels. (2,710,248)

An improved earplug that not only stops noise from reaching the eardrums, but maintains a static pressure difference between the two sides of the eardrum, effective against low frequency noise. (2,719,523)

A glass window that yields instead of shattering when exposed to explosion. (2,721,157)

A collapsible steering wheel that gives when a driver is thrown against it. (2,716,355)

An automobile safety strap that automatically tightens to hold the rider only when the car makes a sudden stop. (2,705,529)

A vertical take-off airplane of the class nicknamed "pogo planes." (2,712,420)

A pod-like escape capsule for pilots of supersonic aircraft, which becomes a boat if it drops on water. (2,702,680)

A method for vulcanizing silicone rubbers for use as high-temperature gaskets. (2,704,748)

A method for synthesizing milk to feed young animals. (2,703,285)

A radio-radar missile control apparatus for detonating a string of missiles at predetermined targets. (2,703,399)

A method for use of radioactive cobalt 60 or strontium 90 in radio pulse generators and transmitters that can be left unattended for a long

A whooping cough vaccine produced by supersonic vibrations. (2,701,226)

Opera Season, 1955-56

OPERA IN U. S. A.

A survey of operatic activities in the United States in 1955 was made by Opera News, published by the Metropolitan Opera Guild, Inc., New York, N. Y. It disclosed a tremendous amount of opera (amateur and professional) sung throughout the country. In addition to the major companies many smaller units are performing, and colleges and high schools are regularly producing standard works. In all over 380 groups were giving one or more performances.

New York had the largest representation, with 53 groups accounted for. In addition to the Metropolitan and New York City Opera companies, the larger units included Amato, with 164 performances of 12 operas; Community Opera, Inc., Juilliard School of Music, L. Petri Opera group, San Carlo Opera Co. Besides those mentioned in the following article there were regular opera seasons by Cosmopolitan Opera Co., San Francisco; Civic Opera Assn., Santa Monica, Calif.; Greater Denver Opera Assn., Denver; Fine Art Opera Co., Chicago; Kentucky Opera Assn., Louisville; New Orleans Opera House Assn., New Orleans; Civic Opera Co., Baltimore; New England Opera Theatre, Boston, giving 55 performances in 22 states; Midwest Opera Assn., St. Louis; Opera Assn., Chautauqua, N. Y.; the Empire State Festival at Ellenville, N. Y.; Opera Under the Stars, Rochester, N. Y.; County Civic Opera Co., White Plains, N. Y.; Grass Roots Opera Co., Raleigh, N. C., which gave 98 performances of 10 chamber works in 24 cities; Karamu Playhouse, Cleveland, O.; Opera Assn., Chattanooga, Tenn.; Lyric Theatre, Dallas, Tex.; Civic Opera Assn., Fort Worth, and Northwest Grand Opera Co., Seattle, Wash., touring.

METROPOLITAN OPERA, NEW YORK

The 71st season of the Metropolitan Opera Assn., New York, N. Y. opened Nov. 14, 1955 and was scheduled to extend through April 14, 1956, with a total of 146 performances of 24 operas. The season opened with a new production of the Tales of Hoffman, in French, with Pierre Monteux conducting. The repertory of operas included Carmen, Don Pasquale, Lucia Di Lammermoor, Andrea Chenier, Faust, Così Fan Tutte, The Magic Flute (in English), Le Nozze Di Figaro, Boris Godunov,

The Tales of Hoffman, La Boheme, Manon Lescaut, Tosca, Samson et Dalila, Fledermaus, Rosenkavalier, Aida, Un Ballo in Maschera, La Forza del Destino, Rigoletto, Il Trovatore, Lohengrin, Die Meistersinger von Nuernberg and Parsifal.

In observance of the 200th anniversary of Mozart's birth, Bruno Walter was scheduled to return to the Metropolitan in January, 1956, to conduct a revival of The Magic Flute, staged by Herbert Graf, with new scenery and costumes by Harry Horner. The English text of Ruth and Thomas Martin was to be used. The first production since 1945-46 of the Donizetti opera-buffa, Don Pasquale, served as the Metropolitan debut of the young American conductor, Thomas Schippers. Director of the work, sung in Italian, was Dino Yan-nopoulos.

Making their Metropolitan debuts during the 1955-56 season were two baritones, Tito Gobbi and Hermann Uhde. Returning to the Opera House after varying absences were Mariquita Moll, Jussi Bjorling, Giuseppe Di Stefano, Martial Singher and Theodor Uppman.

Roster of Artists

The complete roster for 1955-56 follows:

Sopranos—Licia Albanese, Lucine Amara, Nadine Conner, Lisa Della Casa, Victoria de los Angeles, Jean Fenn, Vilma Georgiou, Hilde Gueden, Margaret Harshaw, Laurel Hurley, Dorothy Kirsten, Heidi Krall, Maria Leone, Brenda Lewis, Virginia MacWatters, Zinka Malanov, Mariquita Moll, Patrice Munsel, Herva Nelli, Jarmila Novotna, Roberta Peters, Lily Pons, Della Rigal, Eleanor Steber, Renata Tebaldi, Astrid Varnay, Shakeh Vartenissian, Thelma Votipka, Dolores Wilson.

Mezzo-Sopranos and Contraltos—Marian Anderson, Rosalind Elias, Herta Glaz, Martha Lipton, Jean Madeira, Mildred Miller, Elena Nikolaidi, Nell Rankin, Regina Resnik, Margaret Roggero, Rise Stevens, Blanche Tebom, Sandra Warfield.

Tenors—Charles Anthony, Kurt Baum, Jussi Bjorling, Giuseppe Campora, Gabor Carelli, Eugene Conley, Albert Da Costa, Mario Del Monaco, Alessio De Paolis, Giuseppe Di Stefano, Paul Franke, Giulio Gari, Thomas Hayward, Charles Kullman, James McCracken, Jan Peerce, Brian Sullivan, Set Svanholm, Richard Tucker, Cesare Vailletti, Ramon Vinay.

Auditions of the Air

The National Council of the Metropolitan, established under the leadership of Mrs. August Belmont, is an auxiliary organization for promoting nationwide interest in the Metropolitan. It holds regional auditions to prepare singers for the Metropolitan Auditions of the Air and expands the information work of the Central Opera Service. During 1955 auditions were held in St. Paul, Minneapolis, Dallas and Tulsa. These were to be repeated in 1956, with the addition of auditions in Denver, Seattle, Atlanta and Cleveland.

The $2,000 top prize in the 1955 Auditions of the Air was won by Louis Quillico, baritone, of Montreal, Que., Canada. Miss Madeline Chambers, soprano, White Plains, N. Y., won $1,250, and William Lewis, tenor, Tulsa, Okla., won $750.

Special scholarships were won by Raymond R. Angelich, bass-baritone, and Albert Da Costa, tenor. The scholarships were awarded by the Fisher Foundation.

The Metropolitan Opera Guild observed its 20th anniversary Nov. 2, 1955.

Rudolf Bing is general manager of the Opera. Officers are Lauder Greenway, vice ch. of the board and ch. executive committee; Lowell Waldmond, pres.; Floyd W. Jefferson, vice pres.; S. Sloan Coit, treas., and Reginald Allen, secy.

NEW YORK CITY OPERA CO.

New York City Opera Co. presented two full seasons of opera, spring and fall, in 1955. The fall season, Oct. 5 through Nov. 6, was the 24th of the company at the New York City Center of Music and Drama. It called for 34 performances of 14 operas. The novelty was William Walton's opera, Troilus and Cressida, composed in 1954 and sung for the first time in London that year. An innovation was the production of The Golden Slippers by Tschalkovsky in an English version by Ruth and Thomas Martin. The New York City Opera Co. also used English versions of the Merry Wives of Windsor, Fledermaus, the Marriage of Figaro, Cinderella (Rossini), Love for Three Oranges and the Bartered Bride.

Operas performed in the original language were Madama Butterfly, La Boheme, Carmen, La Traviata, Cavalleria Rusticana and I Pagliacci.

KANSAS CITY

The Starlight Theater in the Kansas City, Mo., municipally-owned Swope Park, gave its 5th season of musicals with 77 performances of 10 plays June to September. Attendance was in excess of 450,000. South Pacific played to capacity for 2 weeks and Guys and Dolls was another big hit. The repertory included Naughty Marietta, Babes in Toyland, Brigadoon, Bittersweet, Finian's Rainbow, Me and Juliet, and Wonderful Town. Richard Berger was production director and William M. Symon business manager.

SAINT LOUIS

St. Louis Municipal Opera gave its 37th season of summer light opera in its outdoor theater June 10 to Aug. 28, with a total of 86 performances to 679,662 patrons, two performances being omitted on account of rain. The success of the season made it unnecessary to call on the guarantors for financial support. Rain and cold weather in June held down the size of the audiences. Half of the season was termed the Rodgers and Hammerstein Stage Festival and included performances of South Pacific, The King and I, Carousel and the Rodgers and Hammerstein Concert, which ran 6 nights. South Pacific was the bill for two weeks and called out the largest attendance, a total of 157,474. Other musicals were The Merry Widow (10 nights), Brigadoon, Wonderful Town, The Vagabond King, Guys and Dolls, The Desert Song and Allegro.

Among the artists who appeared in principal roles were Annamary Dickey, Stephanie Augustine, Joan Bowman, Lewis Bolyard, Bob Shaver, Mary Kreste, Robert Pagent, Oliver Cliff, Christine Mathews, Edwin Steffe, Walter Klavun, Ruth Lawrence, Terry Saunders, Peter Turgeon, Erik Rhodes, Norman MacKaye, Christine Palmer and Eugene Dorian.

Copenhagen's Tivoli Most Popular

Tivoli, famous popular resort in the center of Copenhagen, Denmark, on Sept. 12, 1955, closed its 112th season of 134 days, reporting a total attendance of 4,065,000, averaging over 30,000 a day. When Tivoli was first laid out it was in the out-skirts of the city; today the City Hall stands just beyond its boundary. Tivoli is a collection of restaurants, dance and concert halls, with accommodations for visitors who love to linger beside tables, but it also makes concessions to self-service stands and floors for jitterbugs.

Radio Authorizations for 1955, by Categories

Radio authorizations on the books of the Federal Communications Commission, as of July 31, 1955, totaled more than 1,400,000. More than 300,000 of these were non-broadcast, over 6,000 others were broadcast and the remainder were various types of radio operator authorizations.

Authorizations in the non-broadcast field were:

Amateurs	137,700
Marine	51,500
Aeronautical	44,500
Industrial	25,200
Public safety	18,600
Land transportation	20,600
Common carrier	1,200
Miscellaneous	3,200

Operator authorizations were:

Commercial	986,400
Amateur	137,000

These radio station authorizations represent the number about 600,000 are mobile.

About 65 categories of stations were rendering different types of radio communication services on the land, on the sea, and in the air.

Broadcast authorizations were:

AM commercial	2,873
FM commercial	555
FM educational	129
TV commercial	584
TV educational	34
TV auxiliary	534
TV experimental	15
International	39

The rapid growth of television continued unabated during 1955, setting new records. About 7,800,000 TV sets were purchased, bringing the U. S. total in use to 39,400,000. Approximately 1,400,000 old sets were scrapped. 70% of all homes had TV receivers, although 96% of all dwelling units were within TV signal range. Only 3.5% own two or more sets. Home viewers showed their definite preference for 21-inch screens, over 80% having purchased sets of this size.

PROGRAMS

Advertisers spent over $1 billion to sponsor programs and 465 TV stations operated to bring information and entertainment to every segment of the American people. TV sets are the greatest retail value of any consumer commodity, reported H. Leslie Hoffman, pres., Radio-Electronic-Television Manufacturers Assn. In an address celebrating National TV & Radio Week (Sept. 18-24), Mr. Hoffman estimated that the average consumer was paying only 3c per hour to watch television; this figure includes set depreciation and servicing.

Electronic journalism received a boost in January when the first filmed excerpts of a press conference with Pres. Eisenhower was released for showing on TV. In March TV received its share of Emmy awards. See Special Awards.

The battle over pay-as-you-see TV, sometimes called toll TV or subscription TV, reached its peak by June 9, the Federal Communications Commission's deadline for filing comments prior to FCC's decision to allow or prevent fee TV. Toward year's end, no decision had been reached. Chief proponents of subscription TV are Paramount's International Telemeter, Skiatron, and Zenith's Phonevision. These companies assert paid TV would bring better programs without commercials; that by collecting a small charge from viewers who desire the service, more expensive shows than advertisers can afford could be shown. Opponents of subscription TV, including the TV networks, National Association of Radio & TV Broadcasters and the Joint Committee on Toll TV consisting of theater owners, claim that fee TV would destroy free TV, that the public would be forced to pay for what it already gets without charge.

Theater TV showing of the Marciano-Moore championship fight resulted in the second largest boxing gate in history. This match was not shown on home screens. About 325,000 fight fans attended over 125 movie theaters to see the match, paying $1,240,000 in admissions.

TV SERVICING

Set owners paid a record $975,000,000 for parts and $825,000,000 for labor to service their TV receivers. According to combined reports from 40 TV-electronic service technician associations, at least 75% of this business was done by full-time servicemen. There are 60,000 service outlets employing 100,000 technicians in this category. An all-time high of 2,750,000 picture tubes and 150,000,000 radio-TV receiving tubes were replaced.

COLOR TV

What was probably the most successful show in the history of TV was seen on March 7, over NBC, by an estimated 65,000,000 viewers. It was the 2-hour play, Peter Pan, presented in color.

Fall of 1955 saw the first major push in color TV, with programs running close to 75 hours per month, a five-fold increase over 1954. Color receiver prices dropped from $1,000-$1,200 to $700-$800, and further price reductions were in prospect as sales volume increased.

Among the many excellent plays shown in color were Heidi, Cyrano de Bergerac, Alice in Wonderland, The Constant Husband, Caine Mutiny Court Martial, and The Devil's Disciple. More people saw these and other shows in color than ever before, but the overwhelming percentage of viewers saw them in black-and-white, because only a relatively small number of color sets are in use. An estimated 50,000 color TV receivers were purchased in 1955.

Among technical advances was the first cross-country transmission of color TV recorded on video magnetic tape. On May 12 an experimental program was sent over commercial microwave relays from RCA's David Sarnoff Research Center, Princeton, N. J., to the Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing laboratory in St. Paul, Minn.

The end of September saw the introduction of a new color picture tube, a three-gun post-acceleration type with electron-optical masking, by General Electric. Production is not expected to start until 1957. Meanwhile, RCA continued promoting its shadow-mask tube already in mass production.

Allen B. DuMont Laboratories developed a new kind of studio color TV pickup system called Vitascan. It employs cathode-ray tube beam to scan the scene, with photomultiplier tubes picking up the reflected light, thereby eliminating the need for an iconoscope.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS

Willis Motors Electronics Div. announced in January the first experimental flat TV picture tube, only a few inches deep. This was heralded as a possible step toward picture-on-the-wall TV.

In March, Bell Telephone Laboratories and Massachusetts Institute of Technology reported the transmission of TV programs 200 miles without any relays.

DuMont demonstrated the Electroncam for the first time on April 14. It is a combination electronic camera which transmits a TV scene and records it on film simultaneously, thereby providing high quality kinescopes and low cost film production.

Printed circuits were used in a sizable number of TV sets for the first time in 1955. This method utilizes automation production techniques.

FCC raised the power limitation for very high towers, and started considering whether low-power VHF drop-in stations should be allowed. Both would have the effect of extending the broadcast service radius to more people.

CBS, GE and RCA utilized closed-circuit TV systems to facilitate information exchange and instruction in medicine.

FOREIGN DEVELOPMENTS

London had its first taste of commercial TV Sept. 22, competing with the established single channel service of the government-owned British Broadcasting Corp. Commercials are strictly regulated, with advertisers having no control over the actual production of shows. Public acceptance of the new service was reported as excellent.

TV activity in about 40 foreign countries rose to peak levels. An estimated 8,000,000 sets were in use, the great majority of them in Great Britain and Canada, served nearly 150 stations.

In several foreign countries, particularly in Asia, where per capita income is low, numerous central TV sets were set up in village squares, town halls and similar locations where large numbers of people could gather to view a single set.

The leading importers of TV and allied electronic equipment made in the U. S. were Canada, Mexico, Brazil, Cuba, Venezuela, Italy and Colombia.

Forest Fires in 1955; Loss in California

Source: Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture

During the first nine months of 1955 unusual and spectacular forest fires burned tremendous acreages and drew national attention.

First trouble spot of the year was the South where swamps caught on fire. Although the fires originated in many different ways, the primary reason for the extensive burn was the low water level. Several years of drought left many southern swamps with 4 to 5 feet less water in them than usual. It took summer rains to douse the fires and raise the water level.

The scene of trouble shifted then to California. A passing lightning storm one June weekend left some 490 fires in its wake on National Forest lands alone. Not since 1918 had northern California forests been so hard hit in June. The fires were quickly controlled with the cooperation of the state forest fire fighting organization, private landowners, and use of new equipment, smoke-jumpers, and helicopters.

But troubles were not over for California. Between Aug. 27 and Sept. 13, on Federal, state, and privately owned lands: 436 forest fires burned 307,113 acres valuable for timber, watershed protection, and recreation. Approximately 1,250,000 board feet of commercial timber with a value at wholesale of over $100,000,000 burned. Of this less than 75% could be salvaged. Millions of seedlings, which would have supplied timber for the future, were killed outright. Cost of replanting will be about $5,000,000. Losses of houses, other buildings, and improvements totalled $3,800,000.

State and Federal agencies could not place a dollar figure on watershed losses. They estimated, however, that one fire alone damaged 72,000 acres on the Santa Ynez watershed north and west of Santa Barbara with a potential value of $6,000,000.

On Sept. 10, the peak of this siege of fire in California, over 14,000 men, 550 bulldozers, and 3,000 fire fighting supply and service vehicles were on the fire lines. State and Federal forest firefighting agencies spent more than $3,500,000 to bring the fires under control.

Decrease in Total Fires

In spite of these bad fires in California, the national forest system as a whole reported only 7,072 fires between Jan. 1 and Sept. 30, 1955, as compared with 8,967 for the same period of the preceding year, and with a five-year average for the same period of 9,178.

During 1954 state and Federal agencies reported a total of 176,891 forest fires in the United States. The average for the past 5 years was 181,740.

On lands under organized protection against fire (figures are not available on causes of fire on unprotected lands) campers started 4,875 fires in 1954 as compared with 5,140 in 1953 and 5,667 in 1952. This reduction occurred in spite of an estimated 22% increase in the recreation use of the woods since 1952.

During 1954, 40,520 fires were of incendiary origin; 30,139 were caused by trash and brush heap fires that got out of control; smokers started 23,330 fires. Other causes were railroads, 2,872; lumbering operations, 2,928; lightning, 7,780; miscellaneous, 14,650.

The Smokey Bear campaign, conducted by state and Federal forest services under the direction of the Advertising Council, continued to encourage forest fire prevention, as did also the Keep Green Programs sponsored by forest industries and the State Foresters, and other organized efforts of state publicity bureaus, women's groups, men's clubs, and young people's organizations.

The breakdown of fires and acreages burned in 1954 by regions follows:

Region	No. of fires	Acreage burned
Rocky Mountain	5,200	102,674
Pacific	4,677	178,639
North Central	11,748	693,432
Southern	137,709	7,217,180
Eastern	17,557	641,038

New Fire-fighting Methods

Spurred to action by previous disastrous fire losses in 1953, Federal, state, and local forest fire fighting agencies in California pooled men and facilities in 1954 to test new fire fighting methods. Also participating in the study were the University of California School of Forestry, U.C.L.A. Engineering Dept., Federal Civil Defense, U. S. Weather Bureau, California Office of Civil Defense, and 6 branches of the Dept. of Defense, and some private industries.

The studies included tests of chemicals sprayed in water solution on forest fuels around a fire to make an effective fire line that would stop the spread of the flames. The studies also indicated that these chemical fire lines may be put in by aerial application. The project also tested the use of aircraft working in conjunction with ground crews. Helicopters laid hose in steep rough terrain in a fraction of the time required by large crews on the ground. Large helicopters could deliver men and fire pumps with water to any part of a fire in rugged terrain and could supply water to a fire at close range. These new fire fighting techniques showed great promise in tests. Much remained to be done in perfecting such methods for use on fires.

Seven Modern Civil Engineering Wonders of the United States

The American Society of Civil Engineers, founded 1852 and the oldest organization of engineers in the United States, on Oct. 20, 1955, published the report of its special committee naming the Seven Modern Civil Engineering Wonders of the United States. The project originated during the society's centennial year and led to nomination by members, of whom the society has 39,000. Over 200 projects were considered. The final seven:

Chicago Sewage Disposal System, of the Sanitary District of Chicago. Involved "Herculean tasks" by means of which the Chicago drainage canal was dug, the Chicago River reversed, control gates built at the former mouth of the river, and sewage discharged via the Desplaines and Illinois Rivers into the Mississippi. "Activated sludge plants" treat sewage to make it safe for discharge into the canal.

Colorado River Aqueduct, Southern California. longest conduit ever built, carrying water by canal, tunnel, siphon, over desert land, serving 66 municipalities with pop. of 6,000,000.

Empire State Building, New York. N. Y. man's tallest building, 102 stories, plus 222-ft. television tower, total 1,472 ft., 57,000 tons of steel, 75 mi. of water mains, 17,000,000 ft. of communication wires. Building weighs 365,000 tons, less than the weight of excavated material.

Grand Coulee Dam and Columbia River Basin Project, by U. S. Bureau of Reclamation. See description, pages 211, 212.

Hoover Dam, by U. S. Bureau of Reclamation.

World's tallest dam. "In mastery of mind over matter it set a new level of attainment." Cooling process was hastened by circulating cold water through network of pipes laid on each 5-ft. lift of concrete. Construction set pace for subsequent dams. See description, page 212.

Panama Canal, called "greatest of geographical surgical operations." Led to new data through quantity of earth removed, size of machinery, control of disease. See page 193.

San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge. Between its twin suspension spans is a great center anchorage pier, "the most spectacular foundation job of modern times," involving the sinking of a gigantic caisson to a depth of 242 feet. This was done with the aid of unique dome-shaped dredging wells which permitted the use of compressed air to control the flotation of the huge units. A tunnel was bored through Yerba Buena Island the largest, not the longest, tunnel in the world.

All projects but one, the Empire State Building, were built by public agencies. Five will pay costs through charges or tolls. In judging the wonders the committee considered contribution to community welfare, pioneering in design and construction, uniqueness, beauty, size and the extent to which a project was copied successfully. The final committee was composed of James Kip Finch, dean emeritus of the School of Engineering, Columbia Univ., Waldo G. Bowman, New York; Louis R. Howson, Chicago; Malcolm Pirnie, New York; Daniel V. Terrell, Lexington, Ky.; Ralph A. Tudor, San Francisco.

Babe Ruth's Lifetime Record, 1914-1935

George Herman (Babe) Ruth, one of baseball's greatest players, died in Memorial Hospital, New York City (Aug. 16, 1948), of cancer after two years' illness. He was 53. Born in Baltimore, Feb. 6, 1895, Babe Ruth spent most of his youth in St. Mary's Industrial School in that city. When he left the school in 1914, he joined the Baltimore Orioles as a pitcher and outfielder, and later in the same year was sold to the Boston Red Sox where he quickly made his mark as a left-handed pitcher. Thus began his baseball career which continued until 1938 and during which he established many records. He played with the New York Yankees from 1920 to 1934 as an outfielder, and in 1927 set a new record of 60 home runs in one season. His last public appearance was at the premiere of the motion picture "The Babe Ruth Story" in New York City, July 26, 1948.

Record of All-Star Baseball Games, 1933-1955

An All-Star game is played annually by teams composed of players from the American and National League selected by a nation-wide poll of fans. After deductions for taxes and expenses, a portion of receipts normally goes to the Ball Players' Benevolence Fund and other current worthy causes, balance to the players' pension fund. The game was not played in 1945.

Kimberly Kid Sold For $150,000

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Jenney of Walnut Hall Stud, Lexington, Ky., purchased the famed trotting stallion Kimberly Kid for $150,000, Dec. 1, 1955. It was the second largest price ever paid for a harness horse, exceeded only by the $500,000 figure paid by Hanover Shoe Farms for Adios earlier in the year.

Kimberly Kid Sold For $150,000

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Jenney of Walnut Hall Stud, Lexington, Ky., purchased the famed trotting stallion Kimberly Kid for $150,000, Dec. 1, 1955. It was the second largest price ever paid for a harness horse, exceeded only by the $500,000 figure paid by Hanover Shoe Farms for Adios earlier in the year.

Nashua Defeats Swaps in $100,000 Match Race

Nashua, 3-year-old bay colt owned by the late William Woodward, Jr. of New York, avenged a loss to Swaps in the 1955 Kentucky Derby by winning their mile and a quarter winner-take-all $100,000 match race by 6½ lengths at Washington Park, Chicago, Aug. 31, 1955. Time: 2:04½.

Nashua, with a 1955 record to date of eight-for-nine, was ridden by Eddie Arcaro. Swaps, ridden by Willie Shoemaker, entered as the favorite at odds of 3 to 10 with a season record of eight-for-eight. Weights were the same as for the Derby—126 pounds for each horse.

Race Horse Sets World Record for Total Victories

Camarero, 4-year-old racehorse owned by Juan and Jose Coll Vidal, set a new world record for total victories by an undefeated thoroughbred in winning for the 53th time, Quintane Race Track, San Juan, P. R., Aug. 7, 1955.

Man o' War died of a heart attack (Nov. 1, 1947) at the Faraway Farm of his owner, Samuel D. Riddle, in the rolling meadow country eight miles north of Lexington, Ky., where the big red stallion had spent most of his life. It is estimated that Man o' War brought approximately $1,000,000 in prize money, stud fees and the sale of foals to his owner.

Man o' War was foaled March 29, 1917, in the late August Belmont's stables near Lexington. His sire was Fair Play and his dam Mahubah. Riddle bought him at the Saratoga yearling sales (1918) for $5,000. Man o' War made his first start, as a two-year-old, at Belmont, June 6, 1919, and won. The only time he lost in 21 starts was when Upset beat him in the Sanford Stakes at Saratoga (Aug. 13, 1919).

Man o' War, after his retirement (1921), sired many famous racing horses, including War Admiral, Crusader, Mars, Battleship, Clyde Van Dusen, Bateau and Fair Manhurst. During the 26 years of his retirement, more than 1,500,000 persons visited his farm to view him at close quarters.

Public Schools Athletic League of New York

By Tom Orr, School Sports Authority

The Public Schools Athletic League of New York was organized in 1903 by the late General George Wingate as its first president. On Dec. 31, 1904, the P. S. A. L. presented its first athletic program with a track meet in Madison Square Garden and since then has held meets every year.

The league's program has been devoted to the development of health, sportsmanship and good citizenship through athletics. More than 100,000 boys annually participate in its outdoor and indoor track meets, cross-country, baseball, basketball, handball, soccer-football, swimming, fencing, golf, tennis, hockey and football games.

Joe Louis and His Record in 71 Ring Contests

(Exclusive of exhibition bouts during World War II)

Joe Louis (Joseph Barrow), who held the world heavyweight boxing championship longer than any other fighter (11 years 8 months 7 days), announced March 1, 1949 his undefeated retirement from the ring after 25 successful defenses of the title and joined the International Boxing Club, a boxing promotion organization, but fought a number of bouts in 1950 and 1951 in an unsuccessful comeback attempt. He was born near Lexington, Ala., May 13, 1914.

Dog Show Winners

The origin of the dog is shrouded in obscurity, although evidence of its existence as man's companion as early as 3500 B.C. has been found in Egyptian tombs. At some early time man began to breed dogs for particular purposes, in the beginning for hunting and guarding the home, later for herding and protecting flocks and, finally, for sport and diversion.

At present there are two main divisions or classes of dogs, with a number of sub-divisions in each: including Sheepdogs, Retrievers, Setters, Spaniels, and various hounds; the working dog group, etc.; the terrier group; the toy group, including Chihuahuas, Toy Spaniels, Mexican Hairless, Pekingese, Pomeranians, Toy Poodles, etc. The second main group, non-sporting dogs, includes Boston Terriers, Bulldogs, Chowchows, Dalmatians, French Bulldogs, Keeshonds, Poodles and Schipperkes. In all more than 111 different breeds are recognized and shown in the United States. Of the estimated dog population of over 22,000,000 in America, approximately 3,500,000 pedigrees are registered.

Intercollegiate Rowing Association Records

The leading American rowing colleges, except Yale and Harvard, have sent eight-oared crews into competition since 1895. Columbia won that year over the four-mile course on the Hudson River at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., defeating Cornell and Pennsylvania in that order.

In 1896 Cornell defeated Harvard, Pennsylvania and Columbia. In 1897 Cornell defeated Columbia and Pennsylvania. The following year, 1898, the three-mile course on Lake Saratoga was used, Pennsylvania defeating Cornell, Wisconsin and Columbia. In 1899 the crews returned to Poughkeepsie. Pennsylvania won that year. Subsequent winners were: 1900, Pennsylvania; 1901, Cornell; 1902, Cornell; 1903, Cornell; 1904, Syracuse; 1905, Cornell; 1906, Cornell; 1907, Cornell; 1908, Syracuse; 1909, Cornell; 1910, Cornell; 1911, Cornell; 1912, Cornell; 1913, Syracuse; 1914, Columbia; 1915, Cornell; 1916, Syracuse.

Racing was dropped during World War I years and was resumed by four crews over a two-mile course on Lake Cayuga, Ithaca, N. Y., on June 19, 1920, when Syracuse won in 11 m. 27½ sec. The colleges again returned to Poughkeepsie in 1921 and for four years rowed over a three-mile course,

Freshman races were rowed over a two-mile course at Poughkeepsie from 1896 to 1916, the winners being: 1896, Cornell; 1897, Cornell; 1898 (at Saratoga), Cornell; 1899, Cornell; 1900, Wisconsin; 1901, Pennsylvania; 1902, Cornell; 1903, Cornell; 1904, Syracuse; 1905, Cornell; 1906, Syracuse; 1907, Wisconsin; 1908, Cornell; 1909, Cornell; 1910, Cornell; 1911, Columbia; 1912, Cornell; 1913, Cornell; 1914, Cornell; 1915, Syracuse; 1916, Cornell. They rowed at Lake Cayuga in 1920, Cornell winning, and returned with the varsities to the Hudson in 1921 when Cornell won.

The Junior varsities first rowed at Poughkeepsie on the two-mile course in 1914, Cornell winning. In 1915 Cornell won and in 1916 Syracuse. The race was rowed on Lake Cayuga in 1920, Cornell winning. In 1926 the course was lengthened to three miles.

The regatta was suspended 1942-1946 and was resumed in 1947 over the three-mile course.

In 1950 and 1951 the regatta was held in Marietta, Ohio, and on Onondaga Lake, Syracuse, N. Y., 1952-1955, inclusive.

Yale-Harvard Rowing

The Yale-Harvard rowing contests were begun in 1852. The original race, the first intercollegiate event, was an 8-oared race with coxswain rowed over a two-mile course at Center Harbor, Lake Winnepesaukee. From 1859 through 1875 coxswains were dispensed with and the 6-oared boats were steered by a rudder controlled by the bow oar, in races at various sites. The two colleges returned to eight oars with cox for their first four-mile race, June 30, 1876, on the Connecticut River at Springfield, Mass., Yale winning in 22 m. 2 sec. The course was changed to the Thames River at New London, Conn., in 1878.

The race was omitted in 1917, but in 1918 a two-mile race was rowed on the Housatonic River, Derby, Conn., on June 1, which Harvard won, time 10 m. 58 sec. From 1892 to 1923 inclusive Yale won 30 races and Harvard 30. Previous records for the varsity, freshmen and junior varsity crews will be found in The World Almanac for 1936 and later issues.

Yale-Harvard freshmen eights began their contests in 1899 on the Thames, Harvard winning. The 1902 race was a dead heat. The course has been two miles except 1915 and as noted below. From 1899 to 1923 inclusive the record was: Freshmen

NAVY ENDS LONGEST ROWING STREAK

Navy's skein of 31 rowing victories in three years was broken in its defeat by Pennsylvania in the Adams Cup regatta on the Charles River, May 7, 1955, ending the longest winning streak in the history of intercollegiate rowing. In winning, Penn set the fastest time ever made in an Adams Cup regatta, 8:47.7.

Olympic Games Records

The modern Olympic Games, first held in Athens, Greece (1896), were the result of efforts by Baron Pierre de Coubertin, a French educator, to promote interest in education and culture, also to foster better international understanding through the universal medium of youth's love of athletics.

His source of inspiration for the Olympic Games was the ancient Greek Olympic Games, most notable of the four Panhellenic celebrations. The games were combined patriotic, religious and athletic festivals held every four years. The first such recorded festival was that held in 776 B.C., date from which the Greeks began to keep their calendar by "Olympiads," or four-year spans between the games.

Originally the games were simple—the first is said to have consisted merely of a foot race of approximately 200 yards on the plain near the small city of Olympia—but they rapidly gained both in scope and in popular acclaim as demonstrations of national pride. Competition was based on the highest ethical standards and only amateurs who also were Greek citizens were allowed to participate. Winners were awarded laurel, wild olive and palm wreaths, and were accorded many special privileges thereafter in their individual communities.

Under the Roman emperors, the original concept of the games was lost and they deteriorated into professional carnivals and circuses until they were banned by the Emperor Theodosius (394 A.D.).

Baron de Coubertin planned a revival of the games on a world-wide basis (1894) and was able to enlist nine nations to send their athletes to the first modern Olympics in 1896. Since then, many thousands of athletes representing more than 50 nations have competed, and the games further expanded (1924) to include the Winter Olympic Games. The two world wars were responsible for cancellations of the games scheduled for 1916, 1940 and 1944.

Public Schools Athletic League of New York

By Tom Orr, School Sports Authority

The Public Schools Athletic League of New York was organized in 1903 by the late General George Wingate as its first president. On Dec. 31, 1904, the P. S. A. L. presented its first athletic program with a track meet in Madison Square Garden and since then has held meets every year.

The league's program has been devoted to the development of health, sportsmanship and good citizenship through athletics. More than 100,000 boys annually participate in its outdoor and indoor track meets, cross-country, baseball, basketball, handball, soccer-football, swimming, fencing, golf, tennis, hockey and football games.

English Channel Swimmers

The usual route of Channel swimmers, from Cape Griz Nez, France, to Dover, England, is about 20 miles. Those swimming in the opposite direction are so noted. Times are expressed in hours and minutes and are swimming official by the Channel Swimming Association only if swimmers are accompanied by official observers.

WORLD JET SPEEDBOAT RECORD

Donald Campbell of England, son of the late Sir Malcolm Campbell, onetime world speed king on land and water, set an official world record of 202.32 m.p.h. in his turbojet hydroplane Bluebird on Ulswater Lake, England, July 23, 1955. The record is listed by the Union of International Motorboating under a separate classification for jet-driven craft.

The unofficial jet record of 206.89 m.p.h., fastest speed ever reached on water, was set by John Cobb over a measured mile on Loch Ness, Scotland, Sept. 29, 1952, before his speedboat Crusader disintegrated and killed the British auto and boat racing ace. This performance, certified by the Marine Motoring Association, did not constitute an official world record because the required record run was not made.

International Yacht Races for the America's Cup

Competition for the America's Cup grew out of the first contest to establish a world yachting championship, one of the carnival features of the London Exposition of 1851. The race, open to all classes of yachts from all over the world, covered a 60-mile course around the Isle of Wight; the prize was a cup worth about $500, donated by the Royal Yacht Squadron of England, known as the "America's Cup" because it was first won by the United States yacht America. Successive efforts of British yachtsmen have failed to win the famous trophy which remains in the United States. For details of individual races see the World Almanac for 1954 and previous years.
